Gamble to Padres

Oscar Gamble, who hit 31 home runs last season with the White Sox, signed a multi-year contract worth more than $1.5 million Wednesday with the San Diego Padres. The White Sox now have lost Richie Zisk and Gamble to free agent status, and the duo produced 61 home runs in 1977. — Sect. 2, Page 1.

The late Elvis Presley was indeed a multimillionaire who lived a life of opulence. An inventory of the singer's estate reveals some details of his reclusive lifestyle. — Page 3.

Hunters hunted

Prostitutes from all over the Midwest descended on the rustic northern Michigan resort town of Idlewild in caravans of lavish mobile brothels to go on the prowl for deer hunters. The invasion started the weekend before deer season. — Page 4.

Joe Woods slated

Joseph I. Woods, former Cook County Sheriff, was slated Wednesday as the Republican candidate for county board president. It will be Woods' second run at the county top spot. — Page 7.

Bond for McAndrew

Bond was set Wednesday in Cook County Circuit Court at $1 million for Michael T. McAndrew, who police say is the man responsible for a series of Northwest suburban kidnapings and armed robberies. McAndrew was arrested without a struggle Tuesday in a bar. — Page 12.

Housing "strong"

The great American home has been the great American success story of 1977. In a year when pessimists said no average family could afford the prices, the actual housing market has been one of the economy's strongest areas. Columnist Louis Rukeyser explaines why the negative forecasts went wrong in Business. — Sect. 4, Page 1.

Snow tonight

Chicagoland may have a white Thanksgiving as partly cloudy skies give way to a winter storm watch later in the day. Temperatures will be in the 30s. More snow is expected Friday, along with highs in the low 30s.

Quake rocks Argentine area

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — A major earthquake rocked the lower half of South America Wednesday, killing dozens of persons in collapsed buildings and triggering landslides and geysers that cut transportation and communications.

Damage was greatest in Argentina's San Juan province in the towering Andes, where the government said 50 persons died, several hundred were injured and destruction was widespread. The death toll was expected to rise as rescue crews searched for bodies.

Buildings collapsed as if they were made frmm children's building blocks, rail and highway communications were cut by the shearing wave motion of the quake, telephones went dead and water and electric services were severed.

THE QUAKE registered 7 on the open-ended Richter scale, the Argentine Seismic Center said. The U.S. Geological Survey in Washington reported it measured 7.4 and it was measured at 8.2 in Sweden. Anything greater than 7.0 is capable of causing widespread, heavy damage.

The force of the quake was so powerful that it caused tracking needles on seismographs in Buenos Aires to vibrate wildly and finally jam off scale.

The first shock came at 6:29 a.m. (3:29 a.m. CST) while most Argentines were sleeping. Five aftershocks later were reported.

The shock was felt up and down Chile's Pacific Coast and windows were reported broken 1,200 miles away in the Atlantic coast city of Porto Allegre, Brazil.

It also was felt in Uruguay and in Venezuela.

THE QUAKE CAUSED a loud roaring sound as the shock waves raced through the mantle of the earth, observers said.

The epicenter of the earthquake was reported near the city of San Juan, capital of San Juan province, 785 miles northwest of Buenos Aires. The city was the site of Argentina's last

Class X crime plan approved by House

by STEVE BROWN

Of our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. James R. Thompson Wednesday won approval for Class X felonies, the crown jewel of his get-tough-on-crime plan.

While some called the Thanksgiving eve vote in the House the most far-reaching criminal justice action in 30 years, others labeled it a turkey.

Although the measure, H. B. 1500, passed by a 145-24 margin, some lawmakers sharply criticized the sentencing law, which establishes determinate sentences for all crimes. The Senate approved the bill Tuesday.

Through a series of compromises, Thompson's Class X label was embodied in a more comprehensive sentencing package developed over the past two years by an Illinois House committee.

SOME OF THE MOST pointed criticism was raised by State Representatives Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine. Schlickman tried unsuccessfully to have the bill referred to committee for further study.

Schlickman argued that the page amended version of the bill sh..ld be debated in committee before final action is taken.

Mugalian said the bill will not solve problems or reduce the incidence of crime.

"Class X is a gimmick, a political relations ploy," Mugalian said.

He said the bill assigned the same type of penalties both for violent and calculated crimes.

"If this is mere punishment or revenge, why do we equate the sentences," Muglian said.

IN A NEWS CONFERENCE after the House action, Thompson cautioned that H.B. 1500 is not a cure-all.

"This is a start, but we have to be willing to provide other resources to the police and judges," the governor said.

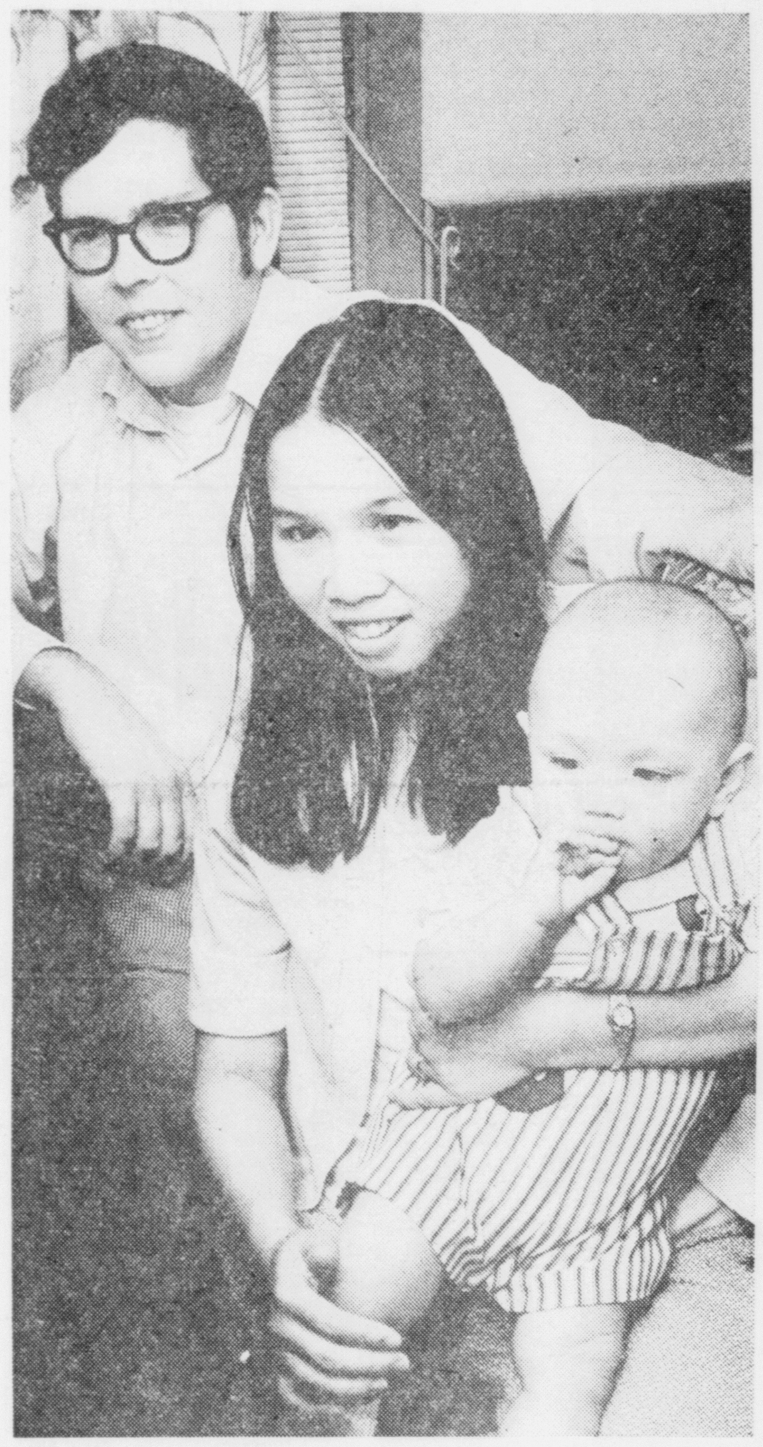
Partisan feelings continued to simmer despite broad based support for the bill. House Speaker William Redmond, D-Bensenville, took issue with Thompson because the governor threatened to raise campaign funds for Class X supporters and work for the defeat of those who opposed him.

"I for one was offended by this action by the governor," Redmond said.

Speaking for the new law, State Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glencoe, said the measure marks the end of indeterminate sentencing in Illinois where a murderer could get a 400 year sentence from a judge only to have the term reduced to 10½ years by the parole board.

Besides the Class X catagory for 10 so-called heinous crimes, the package also:

- Increases minimum sentences for most serious, non-Class X felonies.
- Abolished parole, but allows inmates to reduce prison terms with day for day good time, which could cut terms in half for good behavior.
- Establishes a review commission to submit annual reports on the effects of the new sentencing package.
- Provides tough standards for habitual criminals, sentencing them to life in prison for convictions of three Class X felonies.



THANKSGIVING DAY is always a special one for the Emmett Morgan family of Streamwood. Morgan and his wife, Nguyet, who met during the Vietnam War, live with their son, Emmett, and Nguyet's brothers and sisters, who escaped before the Viet Cong takeover in Vietnam.

Thanksgiving is special holiday for Viet family

by ANNA MADRZYK

Tuyet Thi Phan's eyes fill with tears when she thinks about Thanksgiving.

She looks at 11 members of her family happily clustered around the kitchen table in their Streamwood home. And she starts to talk quietly about the special meaning today's traditional American holiday of thanks has for a Vietnamese refugee family.

"We have many things to be thankful for. We can come here and see brother and sister we thought we'd never see again. We get good night's sleep. We have a very good life," Tuyet says, tears now running down her face. "We have many things to be happy for."

IT'S BEEN MORE than two years, but Tuyet, 21, remembers when a night's sleep often was broken by the sound of gunfire.

And along with most of her sisters and brothers, she remembers the family's smuggled ride to Tan Son Nhut air base in the back of a van driven by Americans — when the family held their breath at a checkpoint hoping 2-month-old Dat would not cry.

Her sister, Nguyet, already was here in the United States with her husband, Emmett Morgan, whom she met while he was in the service in Vietnam. Their memories of the time are different — reading anxiously each day about the fall of provinces closer and closer to Saigon, where Nguyet's family lived, running around "like chickens with our heads cut off" to make arrangements to bring the family here.

And they especially remember July 20, 1975, the day the Morgans in their Vega, along with a small caravan of relatives in their cars, finally were able to pick up the family and bring them to their new home.

IT'S FOR THAT DAY, and the days since, that the family is thankful.

They'll celebrate today as they have in other years with a traditional American turkey and stuffing — and egg rolls and rice. It's "gatay day," the Vietnamese

Village urged to apply for funds

Arlington Heights should apply for U.S. community development funds despite proposed rule changes requiring the money be spent to directly benefit low-income persons, Northwest Opportunity Center officials say.

Arlington Heights officials are protesting rule changes proposed by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development that would require 75 per cent of the money be used to benefit blighted or deteriorating neighborhoods, which Arlington Heights does not have. Such a rule would prohibit the village from receiving $1.5 million in community development funds over the next three years, village officials say.

But a memorandum sent to village officials by Michael Raimondi, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center, and Jean Meier, a housing counselor, says that "a more positive interpretation" of the proposed rule changes should be made by the village.

"Even if the rules were to be adopted in their present form, the village could formulate projects which would be both eligible under the regulations and of great benefit to the citizens of Arlington Heights," the memorandum says.

POTENTIALLY eligible activities suggested by the memo from the Northwest Opportunity Center include a low-interest rehabilitation loan program, code enforcement on the backstretch area of Arlington Park Race Track, access ramps for handicapped and elderly persons and activities in support of new housing construction for low-income persons.

Raimondi and Meier recommend that special priority be given to the new housing construction and backstretch code enforcement. Their memo urges the village administration "to be open to all such proposals so that Arlington Heights can benefit from the proposed regulations, rather than be harmed by them."

Village officials, however, indicated they will continue to protest the proposed rule changes. Telegrams have been sent requesting support from U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, Sen. Charles Percy and Rep. Philip Crane,

Inventory shows Elvis lived like a king

MEMPHIS , Tenn. (UPI) — —The late Elvis Presley was indeed a multimillionaire who lived a life of opulence at Graceland mansion but an inventory of the singer's estate sets no figure for his exact worth.

The inventory, filed in probate court by attorneys for Presley's father, does reveal some details of the singer's reclusive lifestyle.

Presley, who died at the mansion Aug. 16, surrounded himself with numerous television sets and figurines of every imaginable sort, from whales, owls, elephants and tigers to likenesses of himself, Joan of Arc and the Venus de Milo.

TWO OF THE TELEVISION sets, the inventory revealed, were imbedded in the ceiling, of his master-bedroom, above his nine-foot-square bed.

He had an extensive collection of guns — at least 50 — including three machine guns.

The singer, who amassed the bulk of his wealth from recordings and personal appearances, had a noninterest bearing account at the National Bank of Commerce in Memphis with a balance of $1,055,173.

He also had $35,000 in various savings accounts, one of them with as little as $39. And there were two $10,000 savings bonds that had not reached maturity.

THE INVENTORY, an item-by-item listing of tangible possessions, did not divulge the late singer's royalty or contract rights, which are expected to be enormous.

RCA Victor, his recording company, has estimated the value of the recording royalties alone at about $150 million.

Taken one room at a time, the survey of Presley possessions shows his 18-room mansion is furnished in a collection of Louis XIV and Louis XV sofas and dining room pieces.

Presley's taste in lighting fixtures ranged from cut glass chandeliers to Tiffany lamps. Mexican tin-and-glass hanging lanterns were suspended from his bedroom celing.

IN HIS BEDROOM dressing area, where he was found dead, Presley had a standing scale, 55 jackets and shirts, a plaster statuette of a Roman athlete and one of a tiger, five hunting knives and daggers.

There were also several pieces of rings and jewelry, including a gold cross pendant with 236 round diamonds and numerous other stones.

The bedroom for his 9-year-old daughter, Lisa Marie, is furnished with a king-size circular bed and yellow chest of drawers and a population of stuffed animals and dolls.

His attic contains several retired musical instruments, including a guitar inlaid with mother of pearl bearing his name.

"HE KEPT A personal trophy room, where he displayed his discharge papers from the Army, record albums, scrapbooks, plaques and trophies. There are numerous portraits and drawings of the late singer throughout the mansion.

For recreation, Presley had his swimming pool and racquetball courts, a pool table and electric games, pianos, stereo and projection television equipment, as well as a stable with four horses, a colt and a Shetland pony.

Well known was his passion for automobiles. The inventory lists two Stutz Blackhawks, a black Ferrari, a 1955 Cadillac, and four other vehicles, six golf carts and six motorcycles.

His airplanes include a Convair 880 jet customized for 28 passengers and a nine-passenger Jetstar.

Presley's will, filed less than a week after his death, named his father as executor and trustee of the estate. It names Lisa, Vernon and his 85-year-old grandmother, Minnie Mae Presley as principal beneficiaries. Lisa eventually will inherit the total fortune.

Secret memo raps FBI's treatment of city rioters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI Wednesday made public a secret memo saying former Attorneys General Ramsey Clark and Nicholas Katzenbach — after they left office — picitured urban rioters as a "police persecuted minority."

The document, dated March 3, 1974, noted Clark publicly said the FBI's counter-intelligence against the rioters had "a very lawless tone" and said Katzenbach joined him in saying they were not previously informed about it.

The files included copies of a 1967 Clark directive urging the FBI to get all the information it could about whether the riots were planned and organized, and a 1965 Katzenbach memo praising the FBI for planting informants in the Ku Klux Klan.

HOWEVER, CLARK'S memo had urged the FBI to take "prompt and vigorous" legal action and Katzenbach's spoke only of the FBI's "informant system in the Klan organizations."

Neither memo suggested using disruptive tactics of the "Cointelpro" operations to head off violence by the rioters or by the Klan.

Katzenbach told UPI he had testified about his Klan memo before the Senate Intelligence Committee on Dec. 3, 1975.

"The conclusion of the FBI was not the conclusion the (Sen. Frank) Church Committee drew," Katzenbach said. "It (the committee) said the bureau interpreted the letter as approval and praise of a 'white hate cointelpro.' I had never heard of Cointelpro. I was not aware of any improper activity."

THE INCIDENTS were described in the FBI's files on its "Cointelpro" operations to disrupt and neutralize black extremists and violence-prone organizations.

Most of the files were released Monday but the one involving Clark and Katzenbach was withheld pending clearance from the Justice Dept., an FBI spokesman said.

In the file, Clark was quoted by The Washington Post on March 12, 1974, as saying records of the FBI's efforts to head off rioting and other violence by ghetto blacks in the late 1960s had "a very lawless tone."

"I don't think any of the tactics are ever acceptable for a government to use," Clark said. He said FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover "showed an almost deranged attitude on certain subjects like . . . the coalition of black nationalist groups."

BUT AN INTERNAL FBI memo by J. T. Smith, now retired, commented, "Clark has chosen to forget that in 1967 he was very concerned with the relationship of black nationalist groups."

The file said Clark told Hoover on Sept. 14, 1967, "We must be certain . . . to take every step possible to determine whether the rioting is preplanned or organized, and if so to determine the identity of the people and interests."

Smith's memo, addressed to Assistant Director W. R. Wannall, said Clark was "overreacting" to the measures the FBI took to head off violence.

"Yet, he recognized this violence when he was in a position of responsibility," Smith said.

FORMER ATTORNEYS General Katzenbach and Richard Kleindiest also "joined Clark in saying they were not informed of the (counter-intelligence) programs" while they were in office, the file said, again quoting The Washington Post.

Katzenbach referred to the FBI's project of disrupting the Ku Klux Klan in Alabama.

"I do recall being asked by the bureau if agents could go visit Klan leaders, not to arrest them, but to make their presence known and to let the Klan know it was being watched," Katzenbach told the Post.

But the FBI file included a memo in which Katzenbach told Hoover on Sept. 3, 1965: "I have been aware in a general way of the accomplishments of the bureau in the area of Klan penetration, but I appreciate the benefit of detailed information on this subject . . .

"MAY I TAKE this opportunity to congratulate you on the development of your informant system in the Klan organizations and on the results you have obtained through it."

"In retrospect, as indulged in by our former attorneys general and the liberal elements, the black nationalists s and extremists of the 1960s are made to appear as a police-persecuted minority,' Smith said.

'26 deaths linked to liquid protein'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of deaths possibly linked to liquid protein diets has jumped to 26 — 10 more than previously reported — and for the first time men are among the victims, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said Wednesday.

Percy told the Food and Drug Administration it should stop over-the-counter sales of the product immediately. He said liquid protein should be dispensed on a prescription basis only if studies show it is safe.

Percy said a warning issued earlier this month by the FDA telling consumers to use the diet only under a doctor's care was inadequate. He said 10 of the victims, all women, were under a doctor's care when they died.

HE SAID NINE of the 10 women were taking potassium supplements. Some researchers have speculated that a lack of potassium might have been responsible for the deaths.

"These were women who started the so-called 'Last Chance Diet' out of hopes of losing weight and instead lost their lives," Percy told FDA Comr. Donald Kennedy in a letter. "How many more persons must die or become seriously ill before the government moves forcefully in this matter?"

On Nov. 9, the FDA said 16 deaths had been associated with the diet, but six of them were discounted because of underlying medical problems.

AT THAT TIME, all the victims were women. Percy said the new figures include at least two men.

Percy said he obtained the revised death totals from the Center for Disease Control. The FDA confirmed the figures.

He said the 26 possible liquid protein deaths occurred in California, New Mexico, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Florida, New York, Ontario, New Jersey, Ohio and Virginia.

"This underscores even more the apparent cause and effect relationship between premature death and use of the liquid as part of the fast," Percy said.

He said information from the CDC also indicates that eight healthy women who died suffered from an inflation of heart tissue — a problem rare among persons of that age.

THE FDA SAID Percy's letter contains "no information not already known to the FDA . . . It is not correct that FDA intends to do nothing but ask manufacturers voluntarily to put warning labels on their products."

"The FDA commissioner and his staff have repeatedly said that FDA would take stronger action if the facts warrant," a spokesman said. "This includes full consideration of the possibility of regulating the products as a drug."

The label the FDA has recommended and wants to require would tell users to stay off the diet if they are taking prescription drugs and not to go on the diet without a doctor's advice.

FOR MARY SERAFIN, pushing wheelchair, and other passenger service managers at O'Hare Airport, Thanksgiving is much like any other day, only busier. Serafin says holiday travelers face some unique problems because so many people are flying, and missed connections can be a headache.

Traveler in need is just her speed

by LYNN ASINOF

The day before Thanksgiving is just like any other day for Mary Serafin — only more so.

Serafin, a passenger service manager for American Airlines, is one of the people who handles all the special travel problems of passengers at O'Hare Airport. That could mean anything from meeting a passenger with a wheelchair to walking a seeing eye dog that is looking for the nearest fire hydrant.

"There is not a day you get the same problems," Serafin said.

BUT ON THE DAY before Thanksgiving, Serafin said she is liable to run into almost all of them — unescorted children, handicapped travelers, passengers with missed connections and foreign-speaking travelers.

One of three passenger service managers on duty Wednesday, Serafin said she expected to put in a 10 or 11 hour day, instead of her usual 8½. "I stay as long as they need me," she said.

And with 140,000 travelers expected to descend on O'Hare Wednesday, Serafin and the other passenger service managers had their hands full all day.

Serafin said Thanksgiving travelers face some unique problems because so many people are flying. When a flight comes in late, for example, the missed connections can be a major headache, as was the case with flight 253 from Boston.

ABOUT TWO DOZEN people missed connecting flights to Tucson, Phoenix and Tulsa, leaving Serafin with about a half hour of frantic ticket writing. "It was bad because there was nothing available," she said, explaining that normally open seats were all filled with holiday travelers. "I had to send an elderly woman to Tulsa through Kansas City."

A lot of elderly people travel during the Thanksgiving holiday, creating a large demand for wheelchairs.

Many, like 83-year-old Romanza Perry of Indiana, are en route to see their grandchildren. And it is passenger service managers who make it possible for them to fly.

"I'm just thankful for the service," said Mrs. Perry, on her way to visit her son in Phoenix. "I'm crippled and that does make a difference."

MET AT THE PLANE by passenger service manager Trina Silich, Mrs. Perry was wheeled to her connecting flight and checked in without having to take a step.

Sometimes, Silich says, the wheelchair traffic can create a minor traffic jam. "There were 10 chairs on one flight to Palm Springs," she said.

Somtimes people take advantage of the special services offered by the airlines. Silich tells of a supposedly blind woman she escorted to the baggage claim area who calmly identified her own bag.

"Sometimes I think on wheelchairs they do take advantage of the service, because they can get on the plane first," Serafin said. "You also get a ot of personal attention."

Serafin, who must walk over 20 miles a day, says people often ask her "Don't you ever get tired of smiling?" With a big grin, she said "No."

"I love the job. I go home and I have a feeling of accomplishmnt," she said. "That's because I love people."

Thor Heyerdahl sailing out to sea in reed boat

• Adventurer Thor Heyerdahl set sail Wednesday from southern Iraq in a giant reed boat in hopes of discovering how mariners 5,000 years ago navigated the Indian Ocean. "We'll keep sailing as far as the boat keeps sailing," he said. The 63-year-old Norwegian climbed aboard the 60-foot canoe-shaped craft dubbed the Tigris with a 10-man crew of Iraqis, Danes, Soviets, Americans and Japanese.

• Mackenzie Phillips, 18, costar of the "One Day At A Time" TV series, was booked on suspicion of possessing dangerous drugs and hospitalized Wednesday when found lying in a Hollywood street. Sheriff's deputies said the actress, daughter of musician John Phillips, was found intoxicated. As she was being booked on suspicion of being drunk in public, officers said, a substance believed to be cocaine was found in her purse.

Arabs have option to start war with Israel: Dayan

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan Wednesday dispelled some of the euphoria arising from the visit of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat with the statement that the Arabs retain the option to resume war if Israel does not withdraw from the occupied territories.

Dayan said Sadat's concept of "no more war" means that belligerency will not end until Israel evacuates the territory it captured in the 1967 Middle East war. This is why Israel has "arrived at an hour of decision," he said.

Elaborating on this point in a television interview, Dayan said Israel should reevaluate but not revise its positions on its future borders and on the Palestinian issue because of the Sadat visit.

"It is possible that this time around we will reach real negotiations for peace, for peace treaties, perhaps with all the other Arab countries," Dayan said.

"WE MUST establish our bottom line so that we do not cause peace negotiations to fail. Negotiation is around the corner, at least with Egypt," he said.

If developments do take a quicker pace, Dayan said, "It is possible we would have to decide whether we are ready to accept peace and pay for it by accepting the terms demanded of us or prefer the status quo and reject such conditions."

Dayan, speaking two days after Sadat and Prime Minister Menahem Begin made public vows of "no more war," explained Sadat's view.

"Even the insensitive ear understands their (Egypt's) approach to our holding conquered land — it is not 'no more war' and conquered land," he said, adding: ". . . there will not be disarmament while we remain in the Sinai."

Prostitutes see fast buck in wilds of deer season

IDLEWILD, Mich. (UPI) — Prostitutes from all over the Midwest descended on this rustic northern Michigan resort town in caravans of lavish mobile brothels to go on the prowl for deer hunters, state polic said Wednesday.

Troopers said the women, dressed in fur coats and evening gowns, lured weekend outdoorsmen from the only tavern to luxurious motor homes for sex and drug parties that cost patrons $20 to $75 each.

the invasion started the weekend before deer season began Nov. 15, with 50 suspected prostitutes spotted on the streets Saturday night alone. When CB radio enthusiasts spread the word about the illicit doings, business picked up.

STATE TROOPERS began a crackdown after complaints from residents, most of them retirees. In two weeks, 18 hookers, one as young as 16, were arrested. Repeat offenders got jail sentences up to 30 days.

"We're sick and tired of this shabby business," said Harry Solomon, Yates Township supervisor. "It got so bad that our wives couldn't walk to a store without being propositioned.

"Those women were doing anything they could get away with figuring there would be no police surveillance."

One prostitute told a reporter she came from Chicago the opening weekend "when all the boys have money" and planned to return for the season windup — "their last big fling." She said she charges $75 a night for parties that feature sex, liquor and cocaine.

The prostitute influx began slowly a couple of years ago, "but it's gotten progressively worse," Solomon said. "This is a recreation and retirement area and the taxpayers are getting up in arms over this.

"WE ONLY HAVE these incidents during deer season. It's quiet the rest of the year, and that's the way we want to keep it — quiet and rustic."

Of the CB radio broadcasts, Solomon said, "that's the thing that brought the mob in. They were wondering where the action was, and it was here."

Troopers arrested five women and a 16-year-old girl in the first crackdown Nov. 14 and aother 12 women Monday. District Judge Richard Cooper issued jail sentences of five days for first offenders and up to 30 days for repeaters.

"No one ever has been able to entirely stop prostitution since the dawn of history," said Det. Sgt. George Pratt of the state police post in Reed City.

"And we can't make much of a dent in it with only 10 or so troopers available around the clock for highway traffic patrols and regular duties in an area of several hundred square miles."

No talk on bank heist suspect: FBI

The FBI has refused to comment on a report that it has narrowed the list of suspects to one person in the $1 million theft from the First National Bank of Chicago. "We have no comment to make," FBI spokesman George Mandich said Wednesday. "We have narrowed it down, but not to the point where you could count one, two or three persons." The Chicago Tribune quoted FBI sources in its Thursday morning editions as saying the FBI is concentrating its investigation on a veteran bank employe who was suspended last week, reportedly at the bureau's request. "That report did not come from the FBI," Mandich said. The theft occurred over the Columbus Day weekend, Oct. 8-10. The money was taken from a delivery cart kept inside the bank vault and in a restricted teller's area just outside the vault.

Elgin patient charged in murder

A patient at the Elgin Mental Health Center was charged with murder Wednesday in the death of another patient whose head was pushed into a toilet. The victim, Robert Kay, 63, died Tuesday of lack of oxygen, Kane County Coroner Mary Lou Kerns said. He also had suffered chest injuries. Kane County First Assistant State's Atty. Don Hudson said he charged James Tedford, 24, Elburn, with murder. Tedford allegedly tried to push two patients' head into toilets Monday.

Hudson said he will recommend that Tedford be moved to the Kane County Jail and that he be held without bond. Asked if any additional precautions were taken after the incident, Robert Mackie, head of the center, said, 'In terms of absolutely restraining a person, we have to exercise extreme care . . . As a normal routine, all patients are watched as carefully as we can."

Man convicted in Thai's slaying

Victor Gaskins, 19, was found guilty Wednesday of the murder and armed robbery of a man officials think still may be alive. The Cook County Circuit Court jury deliberated more than 12 hours before finding Gaskins guilty of stabbing to death Tawyeeds Sirikul, 27, a Roosevelt University exchange student who is the son of a Bangkok, Thailand, policeman. Charges were filed after a decomposed body was found March 19 in the basement of Gaskins' South Side home.

Assistant Public Defender Richard Kling added an aura of intrigue to the mystery Tuesday when he argued before Judge Frank J. Wilson and the jury that the murder may have been a hoax. Kling said Sirikul and several of his Thai friends could have carried out the scheme, and contended Sirikul is alive and well in Bangkok. The body identified by the county medical examiner's office as Sirikul's was so badly decomposed that officials at first identified it as the body of a Caucasian, Kling said. The decomposed body was cremated two days after it was identified. No dental studies were done.

Convicted attorney sentenced

Tax attorney Roger S. Baskes, 42, Highland Park, was sentenced Wednesday to serve two years in prison for allegedly participating in a tax evasion scheme. Baskes was convicted Sept. 9 by a jury. His law partner, Burton W. Kanter, 47, was acquitted of conspiring to impede the Internal Revenue Service from collecting taxes. The government charged Baskes, Kanter and two others, Samuel Zell and Allen Hammerman, conspired to conceal $700,000 in a bank in Nassau, Bahamas, to avoid U.S. taxes for their firm's clients. Zell and Hammerman testified for the government and charges were dropped against them.

Nullification of divorce asked

Walter J. Henely, whose contract with the City of Chicago to operate the newsstand variety concessions at O'Hare International Airport has been canceled, filed a petition in Circuit Court Wednesday to nullify his Oct. 15 divorce. In the petition, Henely said his former wife, Marilyn, got more than her fair share of a settlement because the division of property was made before Mayor Michael A. Bilandic canceled the contract on Nov. 5. Unless the divorce is nullified, Henely said, his former wife will receive a "windfall" settlement. Mrs. Henely was not awarded a portion of the concession profits but was awarded an estimated $2 million in property.

Man fined for business at his home

An Arlington Heights man Wednesday pleaded guilty to charges of operating a novelty business out of his home and paid a fine of $75 in Cook County Circuit Court.

The negotiated plea and minimal fine paid by Lawrence Rice, 1128 S. Fernandez Ave., were arranged because none of Rice's neighbors agreed to testify, Village Prosecutor Ernest Blomquist said.

Blomquist said he probably would have requested the maximum fine of $500 if Rice's neighbors had cooperated.

"I WOULD HAVE appreciated more help from the community on this. The neighbors called and complained but without them testifying we had a tenuous case, so we went to plea bargaining rather than going for the maximum," Blomquist said.

Neighbors have complained for about two years that the Novelty Distributing Co. has been operating at Rice's home in the Surrey Ridge subdivision.

Rice's company deals in the distribution of novelties sold at sporting events, such as knit caps and pennants, village officials said.

Brain disease takes Patricia Ways

Patricia Ways lost her battle against a rare brain disease Tuesday.

The pretty, active Prospect Heights woman, who two years ago was named "Miss School Spirit" at Hersey High School, died at 4:15 p.m. in Americana Healthcare Center, Arlington Heights.

She had been in a coma since early October.

Wednesday, the Ways family met to prepare for her funeral. Robert Ways remembered his daughter in a sad, but steady voice.

"She thought she was going to tear the world apart," he said. "And if she'd hung around, I'm sure she would have . . . we're going to miss her. She was a real beauty."

MISS WAYS, who marked her 19th birthday two weeks ago, studied psychology in college before she was stricken with Dawson's Disease last March.

Patrica Ways

The disease stems from childhood measles and strike only one in a million persons. It attacks the nerves, causing a gradual loss of mental and physical ability.

While it is a gradual loss during several years in many cases, Miss Ways' health deteriorated quickly. Doctors at Wyler Silvain & Arma Children's Hospital in Chicago tried a last-chance experimental drug treatment program to arrest the disease. It did not have time, however, to take effect.

She was admitted into the program as a result of publicity surrounding the admittance of Linda Madden, a Colorado girl, suffering from the same disease.

"You knew the odds and we did too," Ways said. "It became evident she was one of those not going to make it."

AMID THE STRUGGLE to understand and cope with Miss Ways' illness and death, the family grew very close, he said.

The family celebrated her last birthday two weeks ago in her hospital room. She had opened her eyes wide and had looked at each of them, her father said.

It was the last time she communicated with anyone.

They had visitied her shortly before her death — her sisters, Karen, 18, and Linda, 16, and her brother, David, 13.

MRS. WAYS and David left her side just 40 minutes before she died, Ways said. She just stopped breathing. She was dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, of respiratory failure.

"She was a real jewel," he said.

Ways commended Wyler and Americana, saying, "Everybody did the best they could." He also said he found "There are a lot of warm people out there," after Miss Ways received many cards and visits from well-wishers.

Head-on crash hurts man, 23

A 23-year-old Lake Zurich man was in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, Wednesday after being trapped in his car for 20 minutes following a head-on crash in Palatine Township.

Thomas Knowles, 20 Aldine, Lake Zurich, drove his car across the center line on Quentin Road about a half mile south of Lake-Cook Road and crashed into a car driven by Susan Annen, 30, of 1029 E. Heatherlea, Palatine, at about 4:30 p.m., police said.

Mrs. Annen was treated for minor injuries and released at Northwest.

Knowles suffered multiple fractures and numerous cuts and was placed in the intensive-care unit of the hospital.

He was pinned in his automobile for about 20 minutes while Cook County Sheriff's police and Cook County Forest Preserve Rangers worked with equipment to release him. He was rushed to the hospital in a Palatine Fire Dept. ambulance.

HUGE CRACKS in the earth surround house in San Juan province, Argentina. The house sunk several feet when an earhquake hit the area Wednesday.

major quake, which killed an estimated 5,000 persons on Jan. 15, 1944.

It suffered only minor damage Wednesday because most of the buildings had been rebuilt to withstand earthquakes after the last disaster.

The Social Welfare Ministry said most of the deaths were reported at Caucete, a town of 25,000 inhabitants north of the province capital.

Caucete was 80 per cent destroyed, the ministry said.

A FREIGHT TRAIN was trapped near Caucete when geysers of hot water suddenly sprung from the earth in front and behind the train and the tracks split apart, Noticias Argentinas, a private news agency, reported.

Provincial authorities declared a 9 p.m. curfew in Caucete to prevent looting when all electrical power to the town was cut off by the earthquake. Police and military personnel were rushed to the area from nearby provinces to treat the injured and search for survivors trapped in the ruins of their homes.

A landslide blocked the highway between Chile and Argentina over the Andes mountains and border police said it would take at least two days to open the road. Other highways in San Juan Province also were reported blocked by landslides.

FIRST REPORTS of the disaster came through ham radio operators who quickly set up a national emergency network as part of existing civil defense plans.

An amateur radio operator in Buenos Aires said the network was handling numerous requests from the San Juan Radio Club, which appeared to be operating mobile units in the Caucete area, mainly a sparsely populated rural zone.

Telephone service was partially restored but remained chaotic.

"You can't imagine what it's like trying to handle hundreds of calls from individuals and even the president's office," said an operator in San Juan.

Treasury hopes to spark the $2 bill

The Treasury Department Wednesday renewed its effort to convince skeptical Americans the $2 bill is a practical currency and should replace the singles in their wallets. The department said it persuaded two supermarket chains to circulate the $2 bill in a six-state area for a trial period of six months. "The Treasury is asking only that $2 notes be routinely used by the businesses in normal day-to-day transactions," said Bette Anderson, undersecretary of the treasury.

All 165 Safeway stores in Northern Virginia, Washington, D.C., Maryland, Delaware and Southern Pennsylvania will begin handing out $2 bills as change to customers. Grand Union's 24 stores in the Glen Falls-Sarasota County area of New York also will participate in the experiment. Mrs. Anderson said retailers in Portland, Ore., tried the same appraoch, at Treasury's urging, and the circulation rate of $2 bills in that area has increased by more than 2,000 per cent in two months and circulation of the $1 bill has declined 15 per cent.

Lance still giving advice to Carter

Bert Lance is still giving advice to President Carter in private White House meetings even though the former budget director is under investigation by three government agencies, press secretary Jody Powell confirmed Wednesday. Lance, a member of Carter's tightly knit inner circle until he resigned under fire in September, conferred Monday with the president in a session not listed on Carter's public schedule. The Justice Department has been looking into allegations involving Lance's past practices as a Georgia banker. No decision has been made on whether any charges should be filed against him. "The president," Powell told reporters, "has said all along that Bert Lance was and is his friend.

Captive told: make me pregnant

A young Mormon missionary testified in Epsom, England Wednesday that his spurned girlfriend kidnapped him from his church, shackled him to a bed in an isolated cottage and demanded he make her pregnant as his ransom. Kirk Anderson, a 21-year-old missionary from Provo, Utah, said in testimony at a pre-trial hearing that Joyce McKinney told him after his abduction, "If there was to be a ransom, the ransom would be that I give her a baby." Anderson said Miss McKinney and an accomplice took him to a lonely cottage where he was chained and shackled to a bed and forced to have sexual intercourse with her after she tore off his clothes.

Miss McKinney, 27, of Ashville, N.C., and Keith Joseph May, 24 of Maywood, Calif., are charged with kidnapping Anderson from his Epsom church Sept. 15 with toy guns and holding him captive for three days in a cottage 185 miles southwest of London.

Vance fails to freeze Venezuela oil

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance failed Wednesday to convince Venezuela to agree to an oil price freeze and left for Washington after a three-hour meeting with President Carlos Andres Perez. "We agreed on everything except oil prices," Vance said before leaving Venezuela, the chief hemispheric supplier of petroleum to the United States and the last stop on his four-day Latin American tour.

Woods slated for county chief

by KURT BAER

Joseph I. Woods, former Cook County Sheriff, was slated Wednesday as the Republican candidate for Cook County Board president.

It will be the 61-year-old Woods' second run at the county top spot.

He was defeated in 1970 by incumbent County Board Pres. George W. Dunne.

Woods said he was asleep when told that he had been endorsed unanimously by the suburban county board members late Tuesday.

"We have a much better shot than in 1970. For one thing, we have some fantastic vote getters at the top of the Republican ticket. And we do have some issues, particularly taxes, on which to campaign," Woods said after his slating by the Cook County Republican Central Committee Wednesday.

THE COMMITTEE also reslated Woods and five other incumbent suburban members of the county board for county commissioner.

A peculiar state law allows a candidate to run for board president and county commissioner at the same time.

JOSEPH I. WOODS

WILLIAM F. GRIFFITH, 8 W. Euclid Ave., Arlington Heights, who was a candidate for county commissioner but not endorsed by the slatemakers, said he would decide later this week whether he will start an independent campaign.

"I haven't quite made up my mind," Griffith said Wednesday. When he presented his credentials to the slatemakers earlier this month, however, Griffith declined to promise to support the party ticket if he was not slated.

Wood and Tecson were the two most frequently mentioned possbile candidates to oppose Dunne. D. Daniel Baldino, suburban representative on the regional Transportation Authority, also was rumored to be interested in the board presidency.

"Joe Tecson is not as well-known in the county as I am, and it will cost less for me to get my message across to the voters,," said Woods, whose 1970 television commercial on the subject of safe streets and abandoned cars are notorious among political commentators.

TYRRELL, CHAIRMAN of the Cook County Republican central committee, said he hoped to raise "several hundred thousand dollars" for the county candidates.

Tyrrell said he thought the Republican slate was "outstanding." Other endorsed candidates are:

• Louis J. Kasper, 53, Chicago, candidate for sheriff. He is administrative assistant to State's Atty. Bernard Carey.

• Terrel E. Clarke, 57, Western Springs, candidate for assessor. He is an insurance broker and former state senator.

• Virginia Hayter, 44, Hoffman Estates village president, a candidate for county clerk.

• Edward W. Gjertsen, 36, Des Plaines, candidate for county treasurer. He is president of an interior design firm.

• Robert Cronin, Mount Prospect, a candidate for the board of (tax) appeals. He is an attorney.

• Spencer Leak, 37, Chicago, a candidate for the board of (tax) appeals. He is a funeral director.

• Anthony Torres, 48, Chicago, candidate for county superintendent of schools. He is superintendent of River Grove School District 85½.

• Linda L. Huff, 29, LaGrange Park,; Ted Ritter, 51, Evanston; and Deloris Foster, 30, Chicago; candidates for trustee of the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

Donald Mulack, 35, Chicago, assistant attorney general and head of the office's consumer fraud division, plans to oppose Kasper in what could be a bitter primary fight.

Woods, who at one time stidued for the Roman Catholic priesthood, was commissioned a special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in 1951. He resigned 10 years later to become chief investigator for the Better Government Assn.

He was elected county sheriff in 1966 and served in that office until 1970 when he was elected county commissioner. In September 1973, he was named president of Purolator Security Inc., Armored Express Division. He left Purolator in 1975 and took a job as vice president of Kane service of Chicago, a security guard firm.

Carter OKs law delaying saccharin ban 18 months

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Wednesday signed legislation that will delay the Food and Drug Administration's proposed ban on saccharin for 18 months while the government conducts further tests on its possible link with cancer.

The new law requires a warning label on all food products containing the artificial sweetener to advise consumers that saccharin has been found to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

The new law also requires warning labels on vending machines that dispense saccharin products and allows the FDA to require special signs in supermarkets as a further warning to consumers.

THE MOST COMMON use of saccharin is in diet soft drinks, but it also is used in other foods for persons such as diabetics who must limit their sugar intake.

While the ban is in effect, the legislation requires further tests by the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare on the health effects of saccharin and food additives in general.

The FDA moved last spring to pull saccharin from the market after one Canadian study showed saccharin caused cancer in rats and a second linked the artificial sweetener with bladder cancer in human males.

The agency had hoped to implement the ban on saccharin food products this fall and was considering strengthening the action to outlaw over-the-counter saccharin sales without a prescription.

the FDA action caused an uproar among diet soda users who launched a massive letter-writing campaign to pressure Congress into stopping the action.

Rural fire district urged to create own department

Mount Prospect officials Wednesday night urged the Elk Grove Rural Fire Protection District to create its own fire department because the village can no longer afford to service the district, including a 130-acre oil tank farm.

Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann said tax monies from the district allocated to Mount Prospect for fire protection to the area do not compensate for services provided by the Mount Prospect Fire Dept.

For the past 25 years, the village has contracted with the district to provide fire service to the 2,500-acre unincorporated area between Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village.

FIRE DISTRICT trustees said they were disappointed the village had not forewarned them of the proposal nor had they been informed of any problems Mount Prospect has had fighting fires in the area.

"It's just like someone kicked me in the forehead," said fire district trustee James Sheldon. "We need some time. How much time I don't know. We have a responsibility to all the people in the district, including the people who own the tank farms. I would not want to see the homeowners in our district get caught up in the middle of something they have no control over. It would be bankruptcy for every homeowner."

Mount Prospect receives about $125,000 annually in tax revenues from the rural fire district to provide paramedic, ambulance and other fire services to the area. Only $13,000 is generated from the controversial fuel storage tank property just northwest of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road.

Village officials say fires near the tank farms like the one Saturday which killed two men, are difficult to fight because of an inadequate water supply at the 130-acre site.

"WE'RE AT A dead end," Zimmermann said. "We cannot afford to render services to the district that we have been because it is incapable of generating money that will compensate us for those services.

"You can conduct a referendum to float bonds to start your own fire department. I don't think there's any alternative unless you can get Elk Grove, Arlington Heights or Des Plaines to take over the contract for you," he said.

It would cost the district at least $1 million to set up its own fire department, said Mount Prospect Fire Chief Lawrence A. Pairitz.

Owners of the tank farm property continually have balked at village proposals to annex to Mount Prospect because they say they would be burdened with additional taxes. The fuel storage tanks are owned by seven major oil companies and two pipeline firms. Village officials have pushed for annexation of the hazardous property because they say the additional tax money raised would help improve fire fighting conditions there and could be used to bring additional water to the area.

"We tried to talk common sense to the oil companies, and they don't understand anything but the dollar I guess," Zimmermann said. "They have been unreasonable. They are uncooperative and there's no way to force the issue on them."

Storage tanks and gasoline loading terminals are owned by Marathon, Ohio, Cities Service, Shell Oil, Texaco, Atlantic Richfield and Union Oil of California companies. The Badger Pipeline and West Shore Pipeline companies also own property near the tank farms.

Village urged to seek funds

A second public hearing on the village's participation in the community development program is scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

"The village administration will recommend Monday that the finance committee and the housing commission proceed as if last year's regulations govern this year's application as well because the regulations being proposed will not be finalized by Jan. 12 when our application is due for review by NIPC (Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission)," said James Holzwart, administrative assistant for the village.

NONE OF THE congressmen who were sent telegrams last week have responded, Holzwart said.

Arlington Heights has applied for the community development grants the past two years and received a total of $453,000. The money has been allocated to acquire land for a downtown parking garage and the Arlington Heights Historical Society, to relocate a sewer line, install sidewalks and to fund a housing counselor.

Similar uses of community development money by most other cities eligible to receive the funds are the reasons for the proposed rule changes, HUD officials say.

Blood drive Nov. 26

Arlington Heights residents are invited to join church parishioners in donating blood Saturday at St. Edna's Church, 2525 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights. The SureBlood Drive will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the church hall. To schedule an appointment, call Cupie Johann 392-6548.

A blood donation can be credited to the Arlington Heights Community SureBlood program as well as to a participating SureBlood group program.

The only carbonated soft drink with vitamins!

Try this incredible drink. Incredible, because a new, exclusive manufacturing process makes it possible to put vitamins in a carbonated soft drink for the first time.

It's a multiple vitamin supplement that's a delicious substitute for junk foods and commercial soda pops.

One 12 oz. can supplies more than 1/2 of the U.S. recommended daily allowance of vitamins A, C, D, E, and B-Complex factors. The Vitamin E is natural. The Vitamin C is from rose hips.

Nutri-Pop has no artificial coloring. No artificial flavoring. And sweetened with Fructose too.

It tastes just like your favorite soft drink, yet it's different and the difference is nutritious.

Holiday bus riders to get a cut-rate

Thanksgiving bus riders will get a cut-rate on North Suburban Mass Transit District buses. Special 30-cent fares will be in effect for adults. Senior citizens fares are 15 cents.

Only limited bus service, however, will be available for holiday travelers today. In the Northwest suburbs, buses will operate between Des Plaines and Woodfield Shopping Center, Des Plaines and Evanston and Des Plaines and Jefferson Park.

On Friday, NORTRAN's "Shoppers Special" will leave downtown Des Plaines at 9:15 a.m. arriving on North Michigan Avenue at 10:40 a.m. The return bus leaves from Michigan Avenue and Washington Street at 2:15 p.m. and Michigan and Chicago avenues at 2:20 p.m.

Adult fare is $1.25. Children will pay 60 cents.

Toys for Tots collection kicks off on Friday

Starting Friday, persons wishing to donate toys to the 30th annual "Toys for Tots" campaign can drop off their donations at the nearest 7-Eleven Food Store.

Convenient toy deposit barrels will be inside each store, with pickups scheduled three times a week. The U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, which sponsors the annual drive expects to collect 1 million toys this year.

"We are making a special appeal this year to donate toys that are either new or in good shape and immediately usable," said Mitch Telson, 7-Eleven Great Lakes Division Manager. "The job here is just too big and there isn't enough time to repair toys as in the past."

Toys will be delivered to more than 100 child-help agencies in the area and then distributed to needy youngsters.

Northwest suburban 7-Eleven stores accepting toys include those at 1610 E. Walnut Ave., Hanover Park; 945 S. Bartlett Rd., Schaumburg; 2383 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg; 1901 W. Golf Rd., Schaumburg; 504 W. Golf Rd., Schaumburg; 870 N. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg; 2310 W. Hassell Rd., Hoffman Estates; 2323 Hassell Rd., Hoffman Estates; and 2375 Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

U.S., Vietnam back to conference table

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and Vietnam will resume talks on establishing diplomatic relations next month although Washington still refuses to pay Hanoi war reparations, the U.S. State Dept. announced Wednesday.

The next session, scheduled for Dec. 7-10 in Paris, will be the third meeting the two nations have had on possibilities for establishing normal diplomatic ties.

"Both sides agreed during the last round of talks in Paris (June 2-4) that they would meet again at a convenient time, and the United States and Vietnam have now decided mutually that the Dec. 7-10 would be a convenient time," department spokesman Tom Reston said.

Election law loopholes get House pre-holiday work

From our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois House moved Wednesday to plug some of the loopholes in the controversial consolidated election law enacted last spring.

The action ends the possibility that local public officials elected last spring for four-year terms would be required to run again in 1979.

The bill also provides an "emergency" provision for tax increase referendums. When the law was passed local government units could have referendums only five times every two years.

THE EMERGENCY provision allows school districts, park district and municipalities to seek circuit court approval to hold special referendums.

While most of Wednesday's action took place in the Illinois House, the upper chamber also ended a deadlock over funding for community colleges.

In passing a bill to set a rate for state reimbursement, community colleges will now start receiving more than $112 million in state payments that have been delayed for several months.

The Thanksgiving eve action, which marks the last time the lawmakers will meet this year, also saw another attempt to restructure the state board of elecions, which was declared unconstitutional earlier this year by the Illinois Supreme Court.

The new measure replaces the current four-member board with an eight member panel. However, Gov. James R. Thompson said he might veto the bill or use his amendatory veto powers to alter the appointment procedures approved by the legislature.

THOMPSON OBJECTS to provisions that allow the highest ranking state official of the opposite political party to name four members to the board. He insists the governor should retain all of the appointment power.

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, won approval for two measures in the closing hours of the session.

One bill seeks to block further state payments to firms and other health care providers convicted of fraud in the public aid program.

The second measure will extend a number of state supported health care benefits to migrant workers, shifting some of the costs for such care from townships to the state.

The Illinois House also reversed itself by resurrecting a measure initially sponsored by State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, to require the state to pay the full cost of placing patients in local mental health programs.

ERA boycott of Illinois grows: reps

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — Several state legislators who are pushing for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment say the economic boycott against Illinois and other states that have failed to pass the amendment is expanding.

State Rep. Susan Catania, R-Chicago, said there is a growing trend in states that have passed the Equal Rights Amendment to ban payments for any travel expenses for conferences in states that have not ratified the amendment.

Catania's report comes on the heels of growing concern by several Chicago based tourism and convention organizations that about $15 million has been lost in Illinois because boycotting organizations have refused to schedule meetings in the state.

STATE REP. Eugenia Champan, D-Arlington Heights, who along with Catania and several other lawmakers attended the International Women's Year convention in Houston, said she also has seen a growing interest in the boycott.

"There is a movement by the ratified states to prohibit the expenditure of their funds in states that have not passed ERA," Mrs. Chapman said.

Both women pointed to the reported boycott as the reason several Chicago Democrats privately have agreed to back ERA, which fell six votes short of success last spring.

DESPITE THE reports of the boycott spreading, the lawmakers indicated too many legislators were absent Tuesday and Wednesday to warrant another ERA vote.

"We don't intend to have another vote until there are 107 affirmative votes in the floor of the Illinois House," Catania said, hinting action might not come until after the March 1978 primary election.

"Nobody likes a boycott, but if the Catholic Church advocates boycotting certain things, then I don't think I could find a fintr model for our efforts," Catania said.

While the reported boycott has been aimed primarily at blocking efforts for conventions in states that have not ratified the ERA, Catania indicated the boycott may be taking other tacks.

"I heard from one woman in Houston who said she had contacted an Illinois popcorn producer to say she no longer would buy his product because ERA had not been ratified. I think this is growing," Catania said.

Death toll may hit 15,000 in Indian disaster

HYDERABAD, India (UPI) — Officials Wednesday predicted the death toll from a cyclone and tidal wave that devastated the South Indian coast will reach 15,000.

Officials also reported the first cholera fatalities following the weekend disaster.

Indian air force helicopters dropped food packets to villages still isolated after the twin disasters in Andhra Pradesh state, north of Madras. International relief agencies contributed food, medicine and clothing.

"The death toll will go over 15,000 persons," said Andhra Pradesh information director Rajinder Sinha.

"What we are accounting for is only the urban and semiurban areas and we have no idea yet of the calamity that has hit the interior."

STATE EDUCATION Minister V. Krishna Rao said at least five persons had died of cholera in three villages devastated by the cyclone, which is equivalent to a typhoon or hurricane.

Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister J. Vengal Rao said doctors and nurses "have begun a massive medical operation to prevent epidemics."

He said the state government had enough money and medical supplies to take care of those in the relief centers. Medical teams will innoculate thousands of refugees and then will try to reach villages in rural areas, he said.

The cyclone slammed into the coastal area packing 90-mph winds and was followed by an 18-foot tidal wave that wiped out villages and left 100,000 persons homeless.

A reporter for a Hyderabad newspaper who managed to reach some storm-ravaged areas said Wednesday that in one village "the roads are unusable because they are full of dead bodies, debris and garbage that rushing sea waters gathered and piled up three feet deep."

The cyclone and tidal wave destroyed more than 1.5 million acres of rice, sugar cane and banana crops, the chief minister said.

$1 million bond set by court for McAndrew

A $1 million bond was set Wednesday in Cook County Circuit Court for Michael T. McAndrew, who police say is the man responsible for a series of Northwest suburban kidnapings and armed robberies.

McAndrew, 19, was arrested without a struggle Tuesday near Bensenville by detectives from Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village as he was drinking a beer at the Inn-Between Tavern, 1300 Irving Park Rd.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Marvin J. Peters in Des Plaines Wednesday set McAndrew's bond at $1 million, half the amount recommended by Assistant State's Atty. Terry Sullivan.

McANDREW IS scheduled to appear in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court Dec. 12 for a preliminary hearing on 13 charges filed against him by area police this week. Other charges from Westchester and Chicago are pending.

The $1 million bond also will be used to cover additional charges of armed robbery and bail jumping from an incident in Elk Grove Village last year, police said.

McAndrew, dressed in a dark blue T-shirt and light blue pair of jeans, told Peters he has no place of residence, but "I stay at friends' houses."

Peters determined that McAndrews was indigent and appointed assistant public defender Sam Amirante to serve as his attorney. McAndrew, sporting a skimpy mustache and goatee, kept his head bowed during the hearing and did not speak to newsmen.

McAndrew will return before Burke Dec. 21 for a preliminary hearing on the two charges.

ROLLING MEADOWS police have charged McAndrew with four counts of armed robbery, one count of armed violence, one count of kidnapping and one count of unlawful restraint.

Des Plaines police have charged McAndrew with armed robbery. Mount Prospect police have charged him with two counts of armed robbery.

Schaumburg police have filed a count of armed robbery against McAndrew. Elk Grove Village police charged him with a count of aggravated kidnaping and one count of armed robbery. Elk Grove Village police still have charges of forgery, burglary and armed robbery pending from last year.

Police in Westchester are expected to file two aggravated kidnaping charges, two armed violence charges and possibly an attempted murder charge against McAndrew, authorities said. McAndrew has also been identified in at least two of three armed robberies in Chicago Police Dist. 16 on Harlem Avenue, authorities said.

Northwest suburban police chiefs hailed McAndrew's arrest as proof that police departments can work together effectively and efficiently to curb area-wide criminal problems.

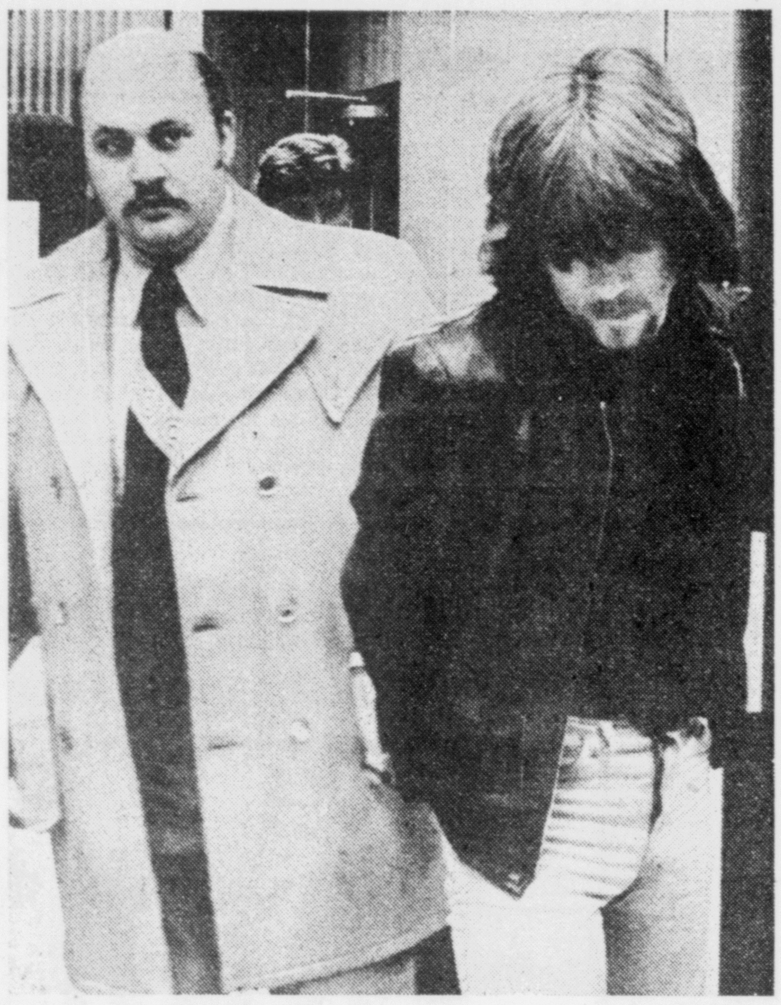
A MASSIVE POLICE manhunt for McAndrew was organized weeks ago by police in Schaumburg, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Rolling Meadows and Des Plaines with each department assigning one or two men to a special task force.

"By taking the men from each department, we were able to locate and capture McAndrew without draining the manpower of any one department," Sgt. Patrick Hallihan of Mount Prospect a street organizer of the task force, said.

"This kind of cooperation in the future will be a tremendous asset to law enforcement," Rolling Meadows Det. Sgt. Charles Smith said. "We need this type of approach."

"It was a good, solid, joint effort," Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph J. Doney said. "It shows we can still take a criminal without killing anyone."

Schaumburg Police Chief Martin J. Conroy said the effort "was a form of mutual aid. We have to have this type of cooperation in this area to solve problems like this."



ACCUSED KIDNAPER Michael T. McAndrew, right escorted from court Wednesday by Elk Grove Village Det. Russell Sonneveld after being ordered held on $1 million bond.

Winter storm in the air here as watch issued

Your Thanksgiving Day turkey may be accompanied by more than cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie.

A low pressure area moving this way from Colorado has prompted the National Weather Service to issue a winter storm watch, so you'd better keep the snow shovel handy. The storm watch, which is expected to last through Friday, includes northern Indiana and all of Iowa.

While he Northwest suburbs may be threatened with an early winter blizzard, they at least were spared by the snow storm that passed through the upper Midwest on Wednesday, dumping eight inches of snow in northern Iowa and five inches across sections of southern Minnesota. There also was heavy snowfall in northern Wisconsin.

AUTOMOBILE accidents on icy highways killed two persons in Iowa. Fourteen hockey players from Hamline University, St. Paul, Minn., were injured in Mankato, Minn., Tuesday when a bus in which they were riding skidded down a street, bounced off a car, and plunged down a 200pfoot embankment into a creek bottom.

The threat of snow is not expected to prevent holiday travelers from traveling, or Christmas shoppers from shopping this weekend.

Highways around O'Hare Airport were packed Wednesday evening as travelers funneled in for outgoing flights, the Illinois State Police reported. More than 140,000 passengers went through the airport Wednesday, and airport officials expect as many Sunday.

MILLIONS OF holiday travelers also packed bus and train terminals, and Amtrak added more cars on trains on the most heavily traveled routes.

Greyhound Corp., which is in the midst of contract talks with union drivers, said there would be no strike on Thanksgiving Day and drivers probably would remain on duty through the weekend.

State police expect the heaviest Thanksgiving day traffic from 5 to about 10 p.m. There also will be heavy traffic all day Friday, as Christmas shoppers take to the highways, with a slight respite Saturday before the crush of returning travelers Sunday night.

THE NATIONAL Safety Council estimated 460 to 560 persons will die and another 20,000 to 25,000 will be injured in traffic accidents during the holiday period that began at 6 p.m. Wednesday and ends at midnight Sunday.

Heyden Lynch, a Safety Council traffic specialist, said, however, the holiday death toll forecast was below the average for a similar, nonholiday weekend in late autumn. He said reduced travel and increased use of alternate transportation may be factors in the reduction of fatalities.

Motorists in Illinois will pay about 3 cents more for a gallon of gasoline during the Thanksgiving holiday weekend than during the same holiday period last year, the Chicago Motor Club said Wednesday.

Last Thanksgiving, prices averaged 63.6 cents for a gallon of regular, 69 cents for premium and 66.7 cents for unleaded, the motor club said.

About 35 per cent of the gas stations in the Chicago area will be open, and about 45 per cent downstate.

Abnormal temp record set in past 18 months

The weather just hasn't been itself recently.

Jack Villmow, a Northern Illinois University climatologist, said most of central and eastern North America is in the middle of a record-breaking period of abnormal weather.

Villmow said most people aren't aware of the weather abnormalities, which began in May 1976 and have continued for about 18 months.

During this period 10 months had temperatures significantly below normal and three months had readings significantly above normal. The deviations are apparent when plotted on dot graphs with weather data dating back to the 1890s.

"Statistically, one out of three months should be abnormal, and this is true of weather patterns over the long term," Villmow said. "But here in 18 months we've had 13 months abnormal for more than two out of three."

In climatological terms, a "normal" or "near normal" month has an average temperature within two to five degrees of the longterm average for that particular month, the climatologist said.

The last long period of abnormal weather ran from February 1917 through April 1918, when 10 months were significantly below normal and one month was significantly above normal.

Dr. King essay entries are open

Entries are being accepted for an essay contest sponsored by the Chicago Suburban Chapter of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the Minority Information Referral Center in Des Plaines.

Winners of the essay contest will be announced at the annual Dr. Martin Luther King Dinner Jan. 14 at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel, Arlington Heights.

The dinner also will be sponsored by the Chicago suburban chapter and the referral center.

Contestants should limit their entries to 500 words or less, writing on the life and work of King and his impact on society.

Senior high school students will write on the theme, "There's Got to be a Morning After," and junior high school students will write on the theme, "I Have a Dream."

Deadline for the receipt of entries is Jan. 6.

Prices will be $100 U. S. Savings Bonds for first-place winners in each division, and $50 savings bonds for second place winners.

Entries should be mailed to the Dr. King Essay Contest, in care of the Minority Information Referral Center, 770 Lee St., Des Plaines, Ill. 60016. More information may be obtained by calling 297-4705.

"Our aim: To fear God, tell the truth and make money."
H C. PADDOCK, 1852 - 1935

It's 'cold turkey' for tomorrow

Today is the day for family gatherings, prayer and good food.

Tomorrow is also a special day. Tomorrow is Cold Turkey Day.

The Chicago and Illinois lung associations have designated the day for smokers who want to begin their holiday season by quitting cigarettes, cigars or pipes "cold turkey."

Coming as it does a week after the National Smoke-out, when smokers were encouraged to give up their habit for a day, Cold Turkey Day may seem to some of those addicted to tobacco to be overkill.

However, for those who have smokers as loved ones and who want to see them quit their self-destructive, annoying habit, Cold Turkey Day is one more day to remind them of the need to quit.

For added encouragement, the lung associations offer the following facts: Smokers are sick 88 million more days each year than non-smokers; one million persons died in the last three years because they smoked cigarettes; and, the ultimate argument for those who fear weight gain if they quit, a person would have to weigh 60 to 100 pounds more than average to tax his heart as much as he does by smoking a pack or two a day.

The Chicago Lung Assn. offers help to those who want to stop smoking through free consultation and clinics. Those wanting help can call the association office at 243-2000.

The best advice we can give is this: celebrate Thanksgiving today and have a wonderful time. Tomorrow, if you smoke, celebrate Cold Turkey Day.

You and everyone around you will feel better — and enjoy Christmas that much more.

Two celebrations of past

Two Northwest suburban churches celebrated significant anniversaries Sunday, serving to remind all of us of the area's history.

For the First Methodist Church in Palatine, it was the 120th anniversary of the church founded by settlers who until then had been served by circuit riders.

And in Arlington Heights, St. James Catholic Church celebrated, with the help of John Cardinal Cody, its 75th anniversary.

The two churches were founded by two of the distinct groups that settled the Northwest suburbs — the hardy native-born Protestant settlers who journeyed west before the Civil War and the equally hardy German immigrant families who followed in the late 19th century.

The two anniversaries remind us of our heritage, for the Northwest suburbs owe much to both groups.

Don't downgrade roads

The Federal Highway Administration is proposing to relax highway standards which could affect motorists traveling thousands of miles of roads built with federal money.

The changes would not affect interstate highways, but would involve many other roads.

The National Transportation Safety Board opposes the changes, saying they will result in an increase in "hazards and accidents" on these roads.

The effect of the changes, if adopted, would be to declare "safe" roads and highways which have serious safety problems. For example, the changes would permit old narrow bridges to remain in place, even though roads leading to them have been improved and widened. Also, the width of required traffic lanes would be reduced, as would the banking on roads.

The reason for the highway administration proposal is twofold. First, by bringing many substandard highways within federal guidelines, the government's legal liability in suits stemming from auto accidents on the hazardous roads would be reduced. Second, the changes would allow highway departments to save money on repairs otherwise needed to upgrede these roads.

Changing federal standards in this way makes no sense. If these highways are unsafe, they should be corrected in reality and not on paper. The taxpayer's money might be saved by instituting these changes, but the price — dangerous roads and increased accidents — would not be worth it.

Linguistic sterility meets its match in this contest

Paul Greenberg

First, a cautionary tale about interceding in disputes linguistic or pugilistic — which may not prove all that different. One of my favorite grown-ups when I was a boy (I think they're called Role Models these days) was Mr. B. J. Smith, the watchmaker who had a stall of his own in my father's shop on Texas Avenue in Shreveport.

One day, passing by the saloon up the street where he was wont to spend an occasional hour or afternoon, Mr. Smith happened upon a fight and tried to separate the combatants. At least that was his version; I've always suspected he joined in on the side of the underdog, which would have been just like him. Who else but a connoisseur of underdogs would have followed the Shreveport Sports so faithfully through some of their dimmest years in the Texas League?

At the time, Mr. Smith was about 40 years past his prime as a semi-pro pitcher and he emerged from this match bloody, bowed and out on bail. I remember being particularly impressed by the sight of the blood overflowing his socks where somebody, probably the underdog, had delivered a vicious kick to the shins.

SO, FULLY AWARE of my folly, I will proceed to try and separate John (Uppercrust) Simon, toney interpreter of the English language for readers of Esquire, and Patrick J. (Uppercut) Owens, a wild-swinging Welshman formerly of Pine Bluff, Arkansas, and Hungry Horse, Montana. Patrick J., in the white trunks, struck the first blow, which appeard in Newsday under the title "A Spitball for Teacher's Pet," after years of provocation — namely John Simon's prose. Simon's rejoinder now has appeared in Esquire magazine.

The burden of Patrick J.'s case — or rather its gravamen, a word Patrick J.'s ear would surely prefer, and quite rightly, for it redounds of gravitational pull and weighty matters — is that John Simon is the teacher's pet of Jacques Barzun and his school of linguistic sterility. Pat not only nailed Professor Barzun ("one of the great polymath bores of recent scholarship") but in his own way suggested a remedy for one of the professor's disciples: "I find myself persuaded that a committee should be appointed to frog-march John Simon, the critic, into a mud puddle, there to splash his velveteen knickers." It is an apt metaphor and, knowing Pat, he may not have been entirely metaphorical in suggesteing it.

SIMON NOW HAS STRUCK back — well, slapped back — in Esquire, accusing Patrick J. of, among other things, schizophrenia and misogyny. Which is a fair sample of John Simon's rhetorical technique. His idea of great refutation is to call his adversary sick. Patrick J. also stands accused of being anti-culture (by which Mr. Simon seems to mean anti-Kultur) and of patronizing poor poor folks.

Both charges indicate the (absent) sense of proportion and humor in John Simon's work, for Patrick J. is one of the great gormandizers of Western culture, eating up poolroom atmospherics and B. Kliban (the author of "Never Eat Anything Bigger Than Your Head") while spitting out Realpolitik and Wagner like watermelon seeds. What informs and galvanizes Pat's writing is a vibrant class feeling, but it ain't directed against the poor. Only when he slips into the statesmanlike mode of the Nieman Fellow he is do the juices in his stuff dry up.

John Simon's prose is untainted by juices, except of the most bitter kind. His wit is a methodical catalogue of insults. He is immune to parody, at least of himself. For he corrects Patrick J. for writing "us literary virtuosi" instead of "we literary virtuosos," apparently unaware of what class of savants is being mimicked here.

PATRICK J. ALSO stands accused in Esquire of using "grandiloquent fustian" while speaking of plain folk, as though a defense of simplicity had to be simple. Patrick J. happens to be an artist at the Grandiloquent Fustian, the way other are at the harpsichord, having raised himself on A. J. Liebling and H. L. Mencken.

He slips just enough of the G. F. into the least expected places to make it strike home. I can remember arriving at the Pine Bluff Commercial dragging my college degrees behind me and watching Pat, the natural, sit down to pound out stuff I hated to admit to myself was infinitely superior to mine and much shorter. It was a sight that aroused admiration, envy and sheer hatred. All of which I was obliged, by the college code of the Fifties, to keep barely concealed. I haven't felt that particular mixture of feelings since, except perhaps in the vicinity of a chessboard or tennis court.

John Simon is anything but natural. He's the sort of writer who would, and in this article does, prefer a verb like "elicit" to "bring" in a phrase of Pat's: "schizophrenia does more than John Simon ever will to bring beauty from the mouths of plain folk." The preference for the three-syllable Latate verb "elicit" over the simple, everyday Anglo-Saxon sound of "bring" is revealing. So is Herr Simon's wanting to substitute some artificial, eye-stopping, ear-banging verb in place of the common one. His article in Esquire is replete with such choices, which have to be seen, or rather heard, to be unappreciated.

THIS BRINGS US to the most evident lack in the whole Barzun-Simon school of visual linguistics: A due appreciation for the sound of the language. Judging by his article in Esquire, Simon appears gifted with an aluminum ear. (That's a tin one with pretensions.) I am received of a brief lecture I once received from an autocratic assistant when I tried to insert a comma in an article to indicate an oral pause: "One does not punctuate by ear, Mr. Greenberg."

With that, I will crawl away from this fray before my socks start to fill. It's not Doktor Simon who worries me but Patrick J., who may not take kindly to an apprentice coming to his defense when he can damnably well defend himself. If any real damage is done, I suspect it'll come from the underdog in this match. The world hasn't proven all that different from life on Texas Avenue.

Nixon, staff don't live in poverty

(Last of two related columns)

SAN FRANCISCO — Motorists elsewhere may be turning increasingly to smaller, fuel-saving cars, but Richard Nixon apparently still prefers big, heavy gas-guzzlers.

Nixon currently leases for staff use — at a cost of $512 per month — both a 1976 Oldsmobile Custom Cruiser station wagon and a 1977 Oldsmobile 98 Regency four-door sedan equipped with virtually every available optional accessory.

Nixon himself remains eligible for around-the-clock Secret Service protection, and among its benefits are free chauffeur service in government-owned heavy sedans and limousines.

NIXON'S CHIEF aide, former Marine Corps Lt. Col. John V. Brennan, says the big, heavy staff cars were leased because they befit the VIP status of the Nixon visitors they ferry to and from Casa Pacifica, the ex-president's estate in San Clemente, Calif.

But another factor may also explain why Nixon is paying more annually for the loan of two cars than most people pay to buy one outright — the taxpayers are picking up the entire bill.

In fact, public funds were used during the recently concluded fiscal year to buy more than $2,290 worth of gasoline for the pair of autos, $72 in car washes and assorted maintenance expenses.

For travel around his estate, Nixon has used public funds to buy two electric carts similar to those used on golf courses. A cart purchased earlier this year cost $2,800 while one bought in late 1976 cost $2,385. The earlier purchase is bedecked with optional equipment like seven yards of fringe for the canvas roof, new carpeting, custom striping and a monogram.

A STORAGE BUILDING for the carts cost $430, and the vehicles' batteries must be replaced at regular intervals, at a cost of more than $250 for a set of six. Again, the purchases were made with public funds on the grounds that the carts are "required for inter-building transportation for Nixon and his staff."

That information comes from previously unexamined documents, maintained in the files of the General Service Administration (GSA) regional office here, detailing Nixon's expenditures under the Former Presidents Act.

Although perhaps a bit extravagant, Nixon's post-White House expenditures would generally raise few eyebrows. There have, however, been a few slip-ups.

THREE MONTHS ago, for instance, Brennan submitted a bill for a $95-a-night hotel room at Beverly Hills' posh L'Ermitage. GSA auditors promptly returned it on the grounds that the price far exceeded the authorized rate for government travel, and Brennan now is embarrassed by the episode.

Those close to Nixon have repeatedly complained about Congress' determination to hold his expense account well below that enjoyed by other former presidents. But an inspection of the records shows that he and his staff certainly aren't impoverished.

I would like to recommend that the residents of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 see the production of "The Music Man" at the Marriott Lincolnshire before it leaves Dec. 11. The scene of the bickering school board in the town of River City, Iowa bears a startling resemblance to our own.

The latest blowup in Dist. 59 has occurred because our new board members are doing exactly what they campaigned against last spring: They have not been honest with their constituents and their hasty, thoughtless actions have lost the public confidence. Without allowing time for any feedback from those who elected them to office, the board released its new promotion policy, and the results are frightened children, frantic parents, and harassed principals and teachers.

What we need is a "Music Man" — one independent thinker on the board to pull them all together and create harmony from chaos! Who is the real "leader" on our board?

Marilyn Ruben
Elk Grove Village

THE PARENTS OF Elk Grove Twp. District 59 need to be made aware of the travesty that has been adopted by the school board as policy. The school board at its regularly scheduled meeting on Nov. 7 voted into immediate effect a promotion program for use in Dist. 59 that reads in part:

"Iowa Test of Basic Skills will heavily influence a decision to provide more monitoring and intervention activities within the classroom. Students receiving a reading composite score and a math composite score more than one year below grade level will not proceed to the next grade level."

The promotion program containing these statements was presented by Board Secretary Sharon Chavoen under the guise of a minority report from the Curriculum and Testing Committee of the district. Despite much evidence and statements by parents, teachers, administrators and board members that the Iowa Test of Basic Skills should not be used on an individual basis as a judgment tool, board members Harold Harvey, Richard Stamm, Sharon Chavoen and Paul Kucharski voted this policy into effect. Board members Emil Bahnmaier, Barbara Somogyi and Judith Zanca, to their everlasting credit, voted against the adoption of a promotion program that contained the quoted statements.

The school board of Dist. 59 is not cognizant of facts pertaining to this matter because they refuse to acknowledge that they exist. It is tragic that these are the people that are making the important policy decisions that directly affect the education of our children.

U.S. must be the 'catalytic' force in further Mideast peace efforts

by HARRY B. ELLIS

President Carter is likely to play a key role in persuading Saudi Arabia and Jordan to line up, at least tacitly, behind President Sadat of Egypt and thus prevent a split that might doom Arab voices of moderation.

As a first step, says a top-ranking American analyst, Sec. of State Cyrus R. Vance may travel to the Middle East before the end of this year with the aim of producing "agreement in principle" that a Geneva peace conference should be convened early in 1978.

Both President Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin, conscious of a mutual need to broaden their forum, characterized their Jerusalem talks as a prelude to a wider Geneva meeting, embracing Israel, Egypt, Syria, Jordan, perhaps Lebanon, plus representatives of Palestinian Arabs.

THOUGH Saudi Arabia will not be at Geneva, King Khalid's support of Sadat's venture to Israel is seen as crucial, partly because the Saudis are principal bankrollers of the troubled Egyptian economy.

Shorn of Saudi financial help the Egyptian economy would spiral downward, erasing much of President Sadat's current popularity among Egyptians and weakening, if not ending, his peacemaking role.

"Saudi Arabia," says Joseph J. Sisco, former U.S. undersecretary of state for political affairs, "has no interest whatsoever in undermining the kind of moderate leadership represented by Sadat."

Results of the Sadat-Begin talks, says Sisco, should not be prejudged by the turmoil now being generated in the Arab world, as Arab hard-line elements — notable the governments of Libya, Iraq, and to some extent of Syria — seek to isolate President Sadat from other Arab leaders.

"AN "APPROPRIATE yardstick" by which to judge the Sadat visit, said Sisco, "is what diplomacy can produce in the next six or seven weeks."

Here Sisco and other analysts foresee a key role for the United States, temporarily shunted aside by the high drama of th personal meeting between Messrs. Sadat and Begin on Israeli soil.

"The U.S.," said Sisco in a Voice of America broadcast, "is going to have to play the catalytic role in bringing about the substantive changes" in Arab and Israeli positions that would lead to peace.

Top U.S. officials fastened on Sadat's definition of "security for Israel" as a "main issue" in the tough negotiations that lie ahead.

SOME ANALYSTS see in this stress on security, echoed by Begin, a possible note of flexibility — both by Arabs and Israelis — on the critical problem of frontiers.

Sadat, in his historic address to the Knesset, adhered to the Arab demand that Israel withdraw from all Arab territories seized during the 1967 war.

The word "security," however, appeared to emerge as a central point in the hours of private discussions which the Egyptian and Israeli leaders held, following the Knesset address.

What, asked a senior American expert, does security mean for Israel in Sinai?" "Access to Sharm el-Sheikh," he added — the position at the foot of the Sinai peninsula which, now garrisoned by Israeli forces, safeguards Israeli ship passage from the port of Eilat to the Red Sea.

"THE PEOPLES ON both sides (Israel and Egypt), said Sisco, "are ahead of their governments" in wanting peace.

If this is so, the two governments — buttressed by the Begin-Sadat pledge not to let Egypt and Israel go to war again — might find territorial exchanges in the Sinai easier to make than before, it is said here.

The same principle, said an expert, could be applied to "hard nut problems like control of Golan Heights between Syria and Israel, where opposing Syrian and Israeli troops are crowded into meager space.

If, said the expert, it could be mutually recognized that "there is a genuinely delicate security" problem for Israel on Golan — where Syrian guns used to fire down on Israeli fishing boats in he Sea of Galilee and on Israeli villages — then the problem might be eased into a more flexible framework.

EMMETT MORGAN and his wife Nguyet will give thanks, along with Nguyet's sisters and brothers. They are together after a harrowing escape from Vietnam.

Thanksgiving special as Viet family gathers

equivalent of Thanksgiving.

"All in all, we're very lucky to be able to see each other," Morgan says. The family left on one of the last major flights out of the country and "it was close," he says.

"I THINK THE main difference is almost everything people here enjoy today, like going to school, is something most Vietnamese people didn't take for granted," Morgan says. "Life as we know it — it just didn't exist. You lived from day to day, not knowing where you'd be tomorrow."

They have more certainty now. Morgan is the legal guardian for Nguyet's sisters, Anh, 17, Hong, 16, Cam, 14, and brother, Duc, a fifth grader. Tuyet is in school, as is another sister, Suong, who attends Barat College in Lake Forest.

The youngest children, Hanh, Thu and Dat, and their mother, are staying with the Morgans temporarily.

THEY'VE ALL COME a long way since they first arrived, when they couldn't speak any English. The children had frequent nightmares and were so nervous they'd jump if someone came up behind them.

"The kids have adjusted magnificently," Morgan says. They are acclimated to everything from American food to the music of rock singer Leo Sayer, Morgan says, and gets lots of giggles in response.

Ask them if they like it here and they all nod yes.

DUC, WHO GOES to Woodland Heights School in Streamwood, likes the Six Million Dollar Man and baseball and football, American food and his friends at school. He misses Vietnam "a little bit sometimes."

So does his sister, Cam, who goes to Tefft Junior High School in Streamwood.

"I miss country, I miss my friends. After one year here, I tried to remember how my school (in Vietnam) looked, how my friends look," Cam says.

But Nguyet, holding her 8-month-old baby, Emmett, on her lap, says with certainty that she does not miss Vietnam.

"NO," SHE SAYS. "My family, (misses Vietnam) not me." She will become a citizen soon, and her family has permanent resident status.

It isn't easy making ends meet in such a large household. Mrs. Morgan is back at work, and with only one car the logistics problems are "out of sight," her husband says.

But being together is much more important.

And Tuyet remembers something else to be thankful for.

"There's one more thing I want to say," she begins, adding she wants to thank the Americans that helped the family out, gave them aid and clothes and gifts.

Tuyet is not one to forget.

4-year battle for divorce delayed

Lt. Col. Duane Swimley spent the day in Divorce Court again Wednesday, one more day in his four-year battle to divorce his Schaumburg wife who has been convicted of trying to have him killed.

Swimley, 48, a 24-year Air Force veteran, was told by a judge the case is continued until Jan. 18 because "the lawyers weren't ready."

"Are they all nuts?" he said. "It's easy to talk about not being ready for trial when I'm paying everyone's bills, I suppose.

"I've tried everything. I just don't understand it. A guy's wife tries to kill him and he gets kicked around in the courts like an old duffle bag."

HIS WIFE, Marlene, 37, was convicted by a Cook County Circuit Court jury in 1975 of solicitation to commit murder and sentenced to three to nine years in prison. She has been free on bond for the last 30 months, pending an appeal.

Mrs. Swimley continues to live in the Schaumburg family home, drawing $1,100 a month temporary support ordered by the court in April, 1974.

On Wednesday, she petitioned the court to hold her husband in contempt for failure to fix her leaking roof, provide her with either his Lincoln Continental or a Ford Ranchero as transportation, and correct a faulty septic tank.

In a counter petition, Swimley charged his wife has "taken from him and caused to disappear "two snowmobiles, two other cars, furniture, clothing, guns and tools, and has refused to turn over to him his expensive collection of oil paintings.

Oscar Gamble going to San Diego

Now that it is official, White Sox owner Bill Veeck can send in for a refund on some of those scoreboard fireworks he probably had in stock.

Oscar Gamble, the other side of the power tandem that included the already-departed Richie Zisk, agreed to sign a multiyear contract with the San Diego Padres Wednesday. Estimates on the money involved ranged from $1.5 million to just under $3 million.

The loss of Gamble and Zisk eliminates a combination that produced 61 home runs and 184 RBI for the Sox last summer.

GAMBLE SAID he would have signed with Veeck if the Sox owner had come up with better terms. Gamble says the Sox were $1 million short while Veeck says the difference is about half that much.

Zisk signed with the Texas Rangers two weeks ago. His contract agreement, which netted him almost $3 million, was also long-term.

The 27-year-old Gamble was the Padres' fifth selection in baseball's second free agency re-entry draft. The club's other two outfield picks, Lyman Bostock and Larry Hisle, signed with the California Angels and Milwaukee Brewers, respectively.

With the Sox last season, Gamble betted .294 with 31 homers and 83 RBI.

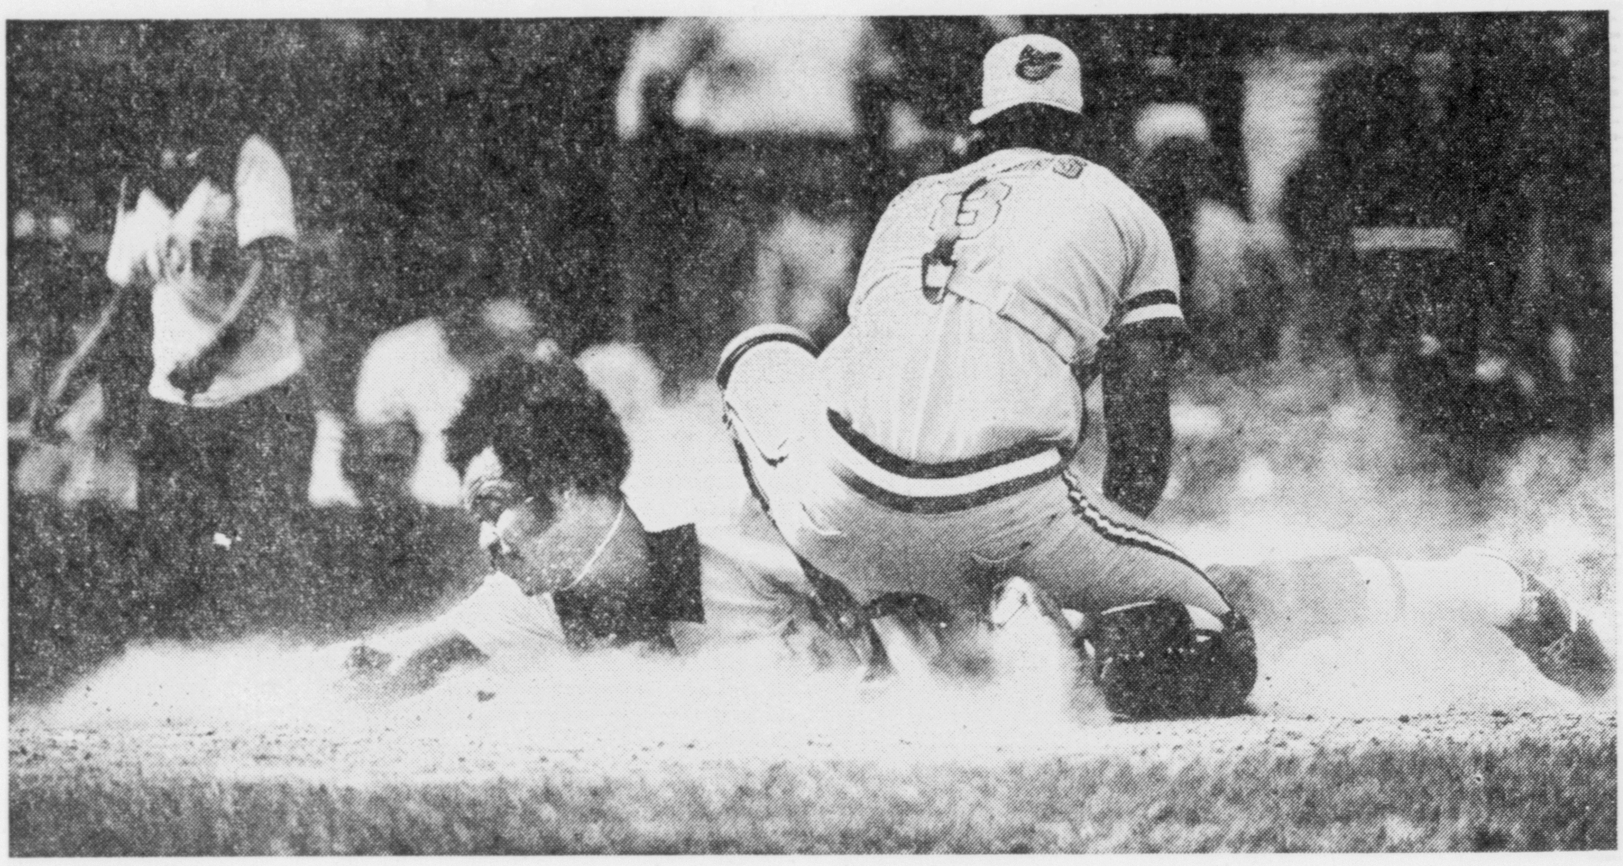
"OSCAR GAMBLE is the type of player we feel will fit in well with our club," said Padre owner Ray Kroc. Before last season, the former Sox slugger of one year had 80 total homers since breaking into the major leagues with the Cubs near the close of the 1969 season.

"The agreement we have with Oscar is something we feel we can live with," added San Diego general manager Bob Fontaine.

Gamble was traded to the Sox last spring by the New York Yankees in a deal that brought Bucky Dent to the soon-to-be World Champions. Gamble will join the crowded Padres' outfield, which includes Dave Winfield, George Hendrick and Gene Richards.

It is possible the Padres will try to deal either Winfield or Hendrick at the winter meeting in an effort to bolster their pitching staff, which was hurt last year by the injuries to Randy Jones and Brent Strom.

Despite the signings of free agents Rollie Fingers and Gene Tenace in the first re-entry draft a year ago, the Padres finished fifth in the National League West for the second year in a row.



GAMBLE'S GONE. Oscar Gamble, sliding across home plate against the Baltimore Orioles, is through sliding for the White Sox. He signed a multi-year contract Wednesday with the San Diego Padres after smashing 31 home runs for Chicago in the 1977 season.

USC's 'The Union' strikes each week

Some years ago, when O. J. Simpson was carrying the ball 40 or more times a game for USC, someone asked the coach if he didn't think O. J. was being overworked. "Why?" snapped John McKay. "He don't belong to a union."

Well, USC halfbacks in This Year of Our Lord 1977 do belong to a union. The Union.

It'll be of no great concern to Cesar Chavez or the Teamsters or the CIO, but the USC backfield is a loose confederation of labor which calls itself "The Union."

IT'S LARGELY disorganized labor, however, and is not holding out for better wages, shorter hours and good working conditions. Ed Garvey needn't prick up his ears. The Union already has a commissioner. Mosi Tatupu is in charge of hard yardage and labor relations on the Trojans. There are thus very few jurisdictional disputes. Mosi weighs 225 and is built along the general lines of a Coke machine, according to his coach.

The existence of The Union was revealed by Charles White after a recent game. It's strictly a company union. It should probably be called The Amalgamated Society of Tailbacks because SC has so many tailbacks it sometimes looks as if they were going to be able to use one per play. If a guy doesn't make 10 yards, he goes to the back of the line, and might not get back in the game till the next half — or the next week. Some place in Southern California there's a little old person-maker who lives in a tree and periodically stamps out 5-11, 187-pound halfbacks who can hold a football in one hand and run 100 yards in 9.6 with it. SC has a standing order for five of them a year. SC hasn't had a tired tailback since O. J. Simpson's senior year and 400th carry. If they all wore the same number, the press would think it had its first 4,000-yard single-season collegiate ground gainer.

The Union is not militant. Tailback Charles White is emphatic on that. If it were, of course, it would hold out for a schedule that included Harvard and Juniata instead of Notre Dame and Alabama.

The tailbacks would have a clause in there that nobody had to carry the ball on the Notre Dame 2-yard-line without combat pay and a paid-up double-indemnity insurance policy.

THEY COULD also hold out for champagne in the water buckets plus above-the-title billing in the ads and promos. "Charles White, Lynn Cain, Dwight Ford, Rod Connors, Mosi Tatupu and an all-star supporting cast, and introducing Bernard Tarver, in the gripping melodrama 'Will Solidarity Find a Way to Beat Notre Dame?' " type of hype.

They might even want Edith Head to re-do their uniforms. I mean, a star with a strong union should come out in white silk and gold sequins and silver stars like a motorcycle daredevil. A good union would also find a way to get 4.0 grades for the entire backfield, redshirts and all. I mean, how can a worker do his best when he's afraid he might flunk blocking sled? Also, if The Union should spread horizontally throughout the game, they might even get fumbles outlawed and interceptions penalized.

They already have introduced featherbedding for tailbacks. But the production record of The Union is a black eye for organized labor. There seem to be baffling slowdowns. Nobody calls in sick, but, when the tailback assembly line cranks out 49 points against Stanford one week and slumps to 10 against Washington the following week, management has the right to call in the head of The Union and see where communication is breaking down. I mean, would General Motors put up with bumpers being installed on the side or steering wheels in the back seats? After all, The Union never promised them a rose garden, but hinted at a Rose Bowl, at least.

The Union has one last chance to redeem the labor movement next week. It meets up with a bunch of nonunion finks from UCLA on Friday in an encounter that could do more to set back Big Labor than anything since the Haymarket Riots. It'll mean more than any old Rose Bowl. The hopes of Samuel Gompers, John L. Lewis, Sidney Hillman, Eugene V. Debs and Bella Abzug ride with these trade unionists.

But one more loss, and backfields go back to the old sweatshop days — right back to the old O. J. Simpson preunion conditions. Scab labor.

Bears hope to beat odds, Detroit on national TV

by BOB GALLAS

DETROIT — The Bears find themselves in a very familiar position today as they battle the Detroit Lions in a nationally televised game.

For three weeks now, the Bears have had their backs to the wall. One more loss virtually would eliminate them from the playoff picture. They have responded with a 28-27 win over Kansas City and 10-7 triumph over a confused Viking team as the Bears put together their first two-game winning streak of the season.

But their toughest test comes here today. They have won only once in their last nine trips to Detroit, where the Lions are 5-0 this season. The schedule is definitely in the Bears' favor after today, if only they can get by the Lions. That's a very big if.

THE BEARS HAVE not won in Detroit since 1971 so head coach Jack Pardee knows he'll be bucking heavy odds.

"Really there are no clear-cut differences between the two teams," Pardee said. "After that first game (which the Bears won 30-20 in Soldier Field) I know Tommy Hudspeth (Detroit head coach) said they have a better team. But it will be the team that plays best today that will win."

A total of 16 new faces will be in the lineup from the first time the two teams met, just two months ago. Seven of the lineup changes belong to the Bears. But the key players in today's battle will be familiar.

Bear running back Walter Payton, who carried 40 times for a National Football League record 275 yards against the Vikings last Sunday, will put his show on display to the nation. The game will be telecast nationally and will be seen locally on WBBM-TV, Channel 2, starting at 11:30 a.m. Payton averaged nearly seven yards per carry but the Bears still only scored 10 points. The tendency has been to "let Walter do it," but the Bears will need more today against the blitzing, stunting Detroit defense.

PAYTON MUST come back with only three days rest after his Herculean performance but says he "will be ready."

"On a lot of those carries Sunday I ran out of bounds or didn't take a good lick," Payton said. "I only carried 27 or 28 times when I really felt it. I was surprised to learn I carried 40 times. It didn't feel like it."

As for the Lions, the Bears are expecting the unexpected. In the opener, the Lions completely confused the Bears for awhile by opening in a double tight end formation.

"They seem to do something a little different each week," said Pardee. "Most of their surprises involve (Charlie) Sanders and (David) Hill. It's their way of using their two best athletes instead of having one on the bench."

BOTH TIGHT ENDS have seen considerable action so far. Sanders is a 10-year pro, while Hill is in his second year.

"Hill looks like Charley Sanders did 10 years ago," said Pardee. "They split him (Hill) out wide as a wide receiver and use him on the reverse. He's a good football player."

Pardee said that Detroit's constant shifting on offense, to one or two backs or to one, two or sometimes three tight ends, will mean the Bears will have to be alert both on the field and sidelines to prevent mismatches either speed or size wise.

"They'll split Hill out wide and you have the world's largest wide receiver (6-foot-2, 230 pounds) against the world's smallest defensive back (Bears cornerback Virgil Livers, who may not be the smallest but is only 5-8½, 178 pounds)."

TODAY'S CONTEST finds both teams with 5-5 records and tied for second in the NFC Central Division, one game behind the 6-4 Vikings. A win today would find the Bears in great shape schedulewise.

The Bears would be at winless Tampa Bay, home against the Packers and at the New York Giants in their remaining three. Meanwhile, the Vikings must travel to Green Bay, play San Francisco at home and travel to Oakland and Detroit. The Lions, likewise, are at Green Bay, and must travel to Baltimore before finishing with the Vikings.

Today's game also will feature the reunion of the Payton brothers for the second time this season. Eddie Payton, Walter's older brother, is now with the Lions after being cut by the Browns earlier this season. The elder Payton is primarily used as a kick and punt returner, but last week threw an option pass, which fell incomplete.

"We're going to have to play better defense this time," said Pardee, who was forced to go with a flex defense, which has two defensive linemen on the line of scrimmage and two a yard off, to slow down the potent Lion running game in the season opener. But the Lions had to abandon their most efficient running attack when they fell behind.

"They elected to pass, we sure didn't force them into it," Pardee said.

Wide receiver added to roster

The Bears added a wide receiver to the roster Wednesday to replace Brian Baschnagel, who underwent surgery Monday to repair torn ankle ligaments suffered in Sunday's 10-7 win over Minnesota.

Steve Rivera, a second-year pro cut by the San Francisco 49ers earlier this year, is expected to make the trip to Detroit today but only will be used in an emergency situation since he hasn't had time to learn the Bear offense.

"He does the same things well that Baschnagel does," said head coach Jack Pardee, of the former University of California star. "He can block, catch the football and has excellent concentration."

Rivera, 23, is 5-foot-11 and weighs 184 pounds. He shattered virtually all of California's receiving records. He finished third in the nation his senior year among collegiate receivers with 57 catches for 790 yards.

Classy Blazers drive past Bulls

PORTLAND — A long jumper by Corky Calhoun and a layup by Dave Twardzik helped the Trail Blazers hold off a late surge by the Bulls, who lost 116-111 here Wednesday night.

The Bulls are now 8-8, and will play again Friday night against the SuperSonics in Seattle.

After the lead bounced back and forth through most of the first quarter, the Trail Blazers began to build a sizable advantage in the second period.

Portland got going with eight straight points early in the quarter capped by a long jumper from Johnny Davis. That gave the Blazers a 39-29 bulge, which they maintained throughout the remainder of the half.

Forward Scott May pulled the Bulls to within six points as his two free throws made the score 43-37. But Portland stormed right back.

THE BULLS HAD trouble handling the Blazers' fast break after the first quarter, and with only a few minutes to play before the half, they trailed, 50-37. The margin was boosted by a three-point play for Bob Gross.

During the first quarter, the score was tied four times with the Bulls owning the lead most of the way. The Blazers hinted toward what was to follow by using speed to built a 29-25 lead near the close of the opening period.

The Blazers were without star forward Maurice Lucas, who was on the bench with an injury. In the 10 previous contests between the two teams, Portland came away with a victory nine times.

After falling behind by 16 points midway through the third quarter, the Bulls narrowed the margin to 78-71 late in the period. But the Blazers called a timeout to get things under control.

Kings explode early, belt Hawks

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Black Hawks coach Bob Pulford had a good reason to want to beat the Los Angeles Kings here Wednesday night.

The Hawks ice boss and general manager was making his first appearance in the Los Angeles area after leading the Kings to the fourth best record in the NHL last year. Apparently, he did his job of building the Kings too well.

Los Angeles defeated the Hawks 8-3.

THE HAWKS, who showed signs of a defensive collapse while skating against the Rangers Tuesday, again were struck by numerous lapses as the Kings scored five times in the last half of the first period.

After a scoreless opening 10 minutes, goallie Tony Esposito and the Hawks were bombarded by goals by the Kings' Don Kozak, Syl Apps, Hartland Monahan, Pete Stemkowski and Ernie Hicks. The final four scores came within 2:21 of each other.

None of the first period goals were a result of a power play, though Kozak's score came two seconds after Keith Magnuson's interference call was completed. The Hawks' defenseman had not yet returned to play.

The Hawks finally scored at 1:21 of the second period on a goal by Ted Bulley, his fifth, assisted by Phil Russell. Three minutes later Stemkowski put the Kings ahead by five once more, scoring his second goal of the game.

THE SUDDEN surge in goal production by the Kings caught them by surprise as much as the Hawks. Averaging a measly 2.5 goals per game until Wednesday, the Kings recently acquired goal scorer App from Pittsburgh to put some pep in their attack.

The Hawks entered the game 0-4-3 in their last seven starts, while Los Angeles had not won in its previous four home contests.

In a move to relieve some of the confusion concerning the Hawks' defense, the Hawks sent seldom-used defenseman Randy Holt to Cleveland.

NL's top rookie sets higher goals

NEW YORK (UPI) Andre Dawson, the National League's Rookie of the Year, said he reached most of the goals he set for 1977 and now is looking forward to reaching two more next season: 30 homers and a .300 average.

The Montreal Expos' center fielder was selected as the NL's top rookie by a one vote margin over New York Mets outfielder Steve Henderson, who became a regular after coming to New York in the trade with Cincinnati for Tom Seaver.

The 23-year-old Dawson gained 10 of the 24 votes cast — two writers from each National league city participated in the balloting of the Baseball Writers Assn. of America — while the 25-year-old Henderson, who spent the first three months of the season in Indianapolis, was named on nine ballots.

SAN DIEGO'S Gene Richards was third with four votes, while Floyd Bannister of Houston received the remaining vote.

Dawson, who batted .282 with 19 homers, 65 RBI and 21 stolen bases, became the second Montreal player to win the honor. Carl Morton, in 1970, was the first.

"I set quite a few goals at the beginning of the season and came very close to most of them and went over a few," said Dawson from his Miami, Fla. home. "At the beginning of the season, things looked shaky, but I did reach most of the goals I set.

"Now next year, I have to prove that 1977 was not just a lucky year. I'm going to set my goals even higher. I can eventually hit 30 home runs and well over .300 — I'm not saying I will do it next year, but my goals will be around that area."

DESPITE HIS self-assurance, Dawson was not completely confident of winning the rookie award.

"I've been sort of thinking about it the last few weeks," he said. "I had won the Sporting News award . . . I always knew, though, the competition would be great. I expected it to be close between a few other players and myself."

Though born and reared in Miami, Dawson finds Montreal a very satisfying place to live and play.

"I've never met any other people like those in Montreal," enthused Dawson. "They treat me so great. If I could play all my days in Montreal I wouldn't mind it."

HIS YOUNG, swift outfield mates, Warren Cromartie and Ellis Valentine, don't do anything to dampen his feelings.

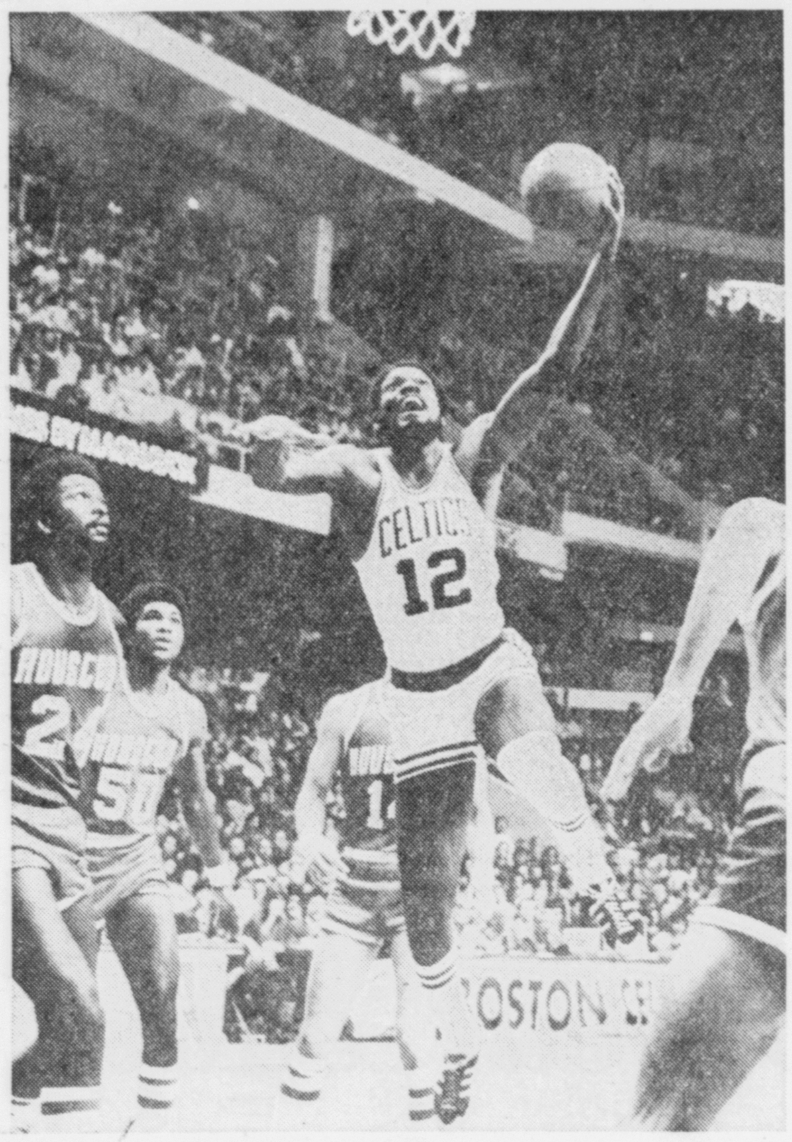
"We showed we could play in the major leagues," Dawson said. "I hope we can stay together for five or six years and perhaps blossom into one of the better outfields in the major leagues."

Henderson wasn't a regular until the end of June, yet in the 99 games in which he appeared, he batted .297, hit 12 homers, knocked in 65 runs and stole six bases.

Henderson is the second Met to loose the rookie award by one point. In 1968 Johnny Bench beat Jerry Koosman by one vote.

Padre speedster Richards hit .290 and stole 56 bases while hurler Bannister was 8-9 with the Astros.

MONTREAL EXPOS' center fielder Andre Dawson admires the trophies he has picked up in his brief baseball career. Dawson was named Wednesday the National League's Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers Assn. of America.



SIDNEY WICKS of the Boston Celtics (12) drives in for a layup, catching Houston's Moses Malone (24), Robert Reid (50) and Mike Newlin (behind) all flat-footed during NBA action Wednesday night. The Celtics won, 109-100.

Johnson boosts Bucks past Kings

NBA report

Rookie Marques Johnson scored 23 points and grabbed 17 rebounds Wednesday night, leading the Milwaukee Bucks to a 122-116 win over the Kansas City Kings.

Johnson scored 10 of his points in the third quarter when Milwaukee built a 15-point lead. Junior Bridgeman added 22 points for Milwaukee, hitting 16 in the second quarter.

Reserve forward Bill Robinzine led Kansas City with 20 points. Otis Birdsong added 19 and Lucius Allen 18.

With Robinzine scoring eight points, Kansas City rallied in the fourth quarter and took a 108-105 lead with 3:49 left, but Johnson hit two free throws, Brian Winters hit a layup and Quinn Buckner stole the ball and scored to put Milwaukee ahead for good, 111-108 with 2:28 to play.

TWO FREE THROWS by Steve Nix with one second left climaxed a last-minute comeback that enabled the Philadelphia 76ers to nip the Detroit Pistons, 106-105, for their sixth straight victory.

The Pistons, who lost their fifth in a row, appeared to have matters wrapped up with a 10-2 spurt, led by Bob Lanier's two baskets, that put them ahead 105-100 with one minute to go. But baskets by George McGinnis and Doug Collins sliced the Detroit advantage to 105-104 with eight seconds to go.

The Pistons then lost the ball on an offensive foul by Ralph Simpson, who also fouled Mix with one second to go to set up the winning points.

JOHN WILLIAMSON hit 13 of his career high 43 points in the last period and Ricky Sobers chipped in with 10 in the same period to lead the Indiana Pacers to a 126-116 victory over the Golden State Warriors.

George Gervin and Larry Kenon teamed up for 66 points to help San Antonio defeat the surprisingly tough New Jersey Nets 132-119.

Gervin hit 35 points, 13 of them in the last quarter, while Kenon scored 31 and dragged down 12 rebounds.

ROOKIE GUARD Charlie Criss scored 18 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter and Dan Issel's last-second shot stuck between the backboard and rim enabling the Atlanta Hawks to score a 105-104 victory over the Denver Nuggets.

Atlanta's win put the Hawks in a tie for first place with idle Cleveland in the NBA's Central Division. Both teams have 10-5 records. The defeat snapped Denver's seven-game win streak.

Dave Cowens scored 22 points and six other Boston players scored in double figures leading the Celtics to a 109-100 victory over the Houston Rockets.

Rookie Cedric Maxwell scored 10 first-quarter points, staking Boston to an eight-point lead, then Cowens took charge in the second period, beginning a domination of both backboards.

Cleveland tops Montreal 2-1; ends ice loss streak

Dennis Maruk scored one goal and assisted on another Wednesday night to lead the Cleveland Barons to a 2-1 National Hockey League win over the Montreal Canadiens, snapping a 17-game home-ice winless streak before a club record of 12,859 fans.

Dave Williams scored two goals, and Ron Ellis scored his fifth of the season to give the Toronto Maple Leafs a 3-2 win over the St. Louis Blues.

The NHL's top scoring line of Bryan Trottier, Mike Bossy and Clark Gillies added three more goals to its credit in powering the New York Islanders to a 9-2 shellacking of the Minnesota North Stars.

LED BY rookie Lucien DeBlois' two goals, the New York Rangers blitzed Colorado for five first-period goals en route to a 6-3 victory over the Rockies.

NHL report

The Rangers peppered goalkeeper Michel Plasse with 21 shots on goal in that first period.

Reed Larson, Greg Joly and Bill Locherd fired first period goals within a six-minute span to spark the Detroit Red Wings to a 4-1 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers.

FORMER WORLD Hockey Assn. goaltender Ron Grahame recorded the first NHL shutout of his career in leading the Boston Bruins to a 2-0 whitewash of the Buffalo Sabres.

Grahame, who played with the Houston Aeros last season, stopped 21 shots.

Ron Lalonde scored with 2:49 remaining in the game to earn the Washington Capitals a 2-2 tie with the Atlanta Flames.

The Herald's handicapper is way ahead of his field

Sam Sullivan, The Daily Herald's harness handicapper, is continuing his hot streak that started the opening night of the Arlington Park season.

Sullivan carded five winners and the Quinella in Friday's selections, responded with three more both Saturday and Monday and clicked for five more winners Tuesday to run his meet total to 120 winners — 20 ahead of his nearest competition in the Chicago metropolitan area.

As a bonus to his followers, Sam correctly tabbed the trifecta Saturday night when his top three choices — Kum On Chief ($12.80), Mighty Dream and Sharon Jet crossed the finish line in the exact order he predicted for a handsome $156.30 payoff.

ON FRIDAY, Sullivan's backers cashed on Valor Direct ($11), Miss Tarport ($13), Flamingo Byrd ($5.80), J's Best Bet ($5.80) and Robbie Dancer ($4.80).

Saturday's success included Taurus Bomber at $5.40, Unreachable Star at $5.40 and Kum On Chief while Monday's victories were Sudden Depression at $8.20, Bret's Blaze at $4.40 and Lem's Tar Mite at $4.

On Tuesday, Sullivan correctly selected winners Nancy Turbo for $6.40, Coal City for $4.40, Lee's Choice for $10.20, Sarette Hanover for $4.80 and Rick's Duke for $2.80. By wheeling his three top horses in the eighth race, Sam's followers would have cashed for the Trifecta payoff of $246.

Sullivan's selections and the complete 10-race results from Arlingtnn Park appear every morning in The Daily Herald.

Basketball squads feast on tournaments

Buffalo Grove's balance shows in impressive win

Defending Mid-Suburban League champion Buffalo Grove gave an indication that it plans to have a say in the North Division race again this season with an impressive 60-34 triumph over Loyola in the Niles West Holiday Tournament.

The Bison's M&M boys, Chris Molenaur and Mike Marshall, each drilled in 15 points to spearhead the Buffalo Grove attack that unraveled slowly but consistently built up intensity.

After trailing at the end of one quarter, 12-10, the Bison raced to a decisive 24-4 blitz in the second period and duplicated their remarkable defensive effort with a 12-4 spree in the third period to coast home to the victory.

BUFFALO GROVE elected to penetrate Loyola's defense with a patient attack, working the ball to the low post where Charlie Carkhuff (9 points), Marshall and Molenaur took charge.

Loyola, meanwhile, couldn't solve the Bison's intimidating 2-3 zone defense in the second and third periods. The Bison return to action Friday at 8:30 p.m.

BRONCOS HOLD ON

The Barrington Broncos built a 26-point lead midway through the second quarter, then held on for a tense 67-61 victory when Cary-Grove stormed back in the second half of the opening-round game in the Barrington Turkey Classic basketball tourney.

Barrington juniors John Tomlinson and Ike Person paced the scoring with 19 points apiece for coach Gary Cook's Broncos. Tomlinson had 14 of his points in the first half when the Broncos opened up their huge lead. But in the second half Tomlinson was neutralized and Person, in early foul trouble ended up fouling out with :57 left to play.

BUT IT WAS Person's clutch basket on a feed from reserve guard Brian Berry just three seconds earlier that seemed to stem the tide of Cary-Grove's comeback. The visiting Trojans had cut the deficit from 22 points at the start of the half down to four at 64-60 on an 18-footer by Dave Stoka with 1:10 left to play.

Barrington, in opening its first season in the Mid-Suburban League, fashioned its quick lead with a combination of tight pressure defense and strong offensive rebounding. Substitute guard Mark Meyer sparked a first-period surge with three straight baskets and finished with 12 points. Stoka led C-G with 20 points.

CARDS COAST, 65-56

The Cardinals of Arlington evened their season record at 1-1 with a 65-56 win over Willowbrook at the fifth annual York Turkey Classic.

Arlington junior Mark Schurak paced the Cards with a game-high 18 points. The 6-1 guard dropped in 14 first-half points as Arlington built a 45-27 halftime lead. Junior forward Tim Doresey chipped in with 12 points.

An intimidating full-court press and Schurak's 12-foot swish from the right side gave the Cards their biggest lead of the night, 45-24 with three minutes left in the half.

"OFFENSIVELY, we just shot the eyes out of the basket," Arlington coach George Zigman said. "But in the second half, we gave them too many uncontested shots. That team shouldn't have scored that many points on us."

Playing Arlington's second team throughout the fourth quarter, Willowbrook fought back to within 12 at 63-51 with 50 seconds left. Guard Dan Pelekoutas paced the Warriors with 13 points.

PIRATES FADE, 50-46

Carmel jumped out to a very quick 8-0 lead and went on to defeat Palatine, 50-46, despite a closing rush by the Pirates in the opening at Mundelein's tourney.

Palatine was paced in scoring by Rick Jessen and Chris Plazak, who each tallied 12 points. Plazak, however, fouled out late in the game when the Pirates closed the gap to two points. Earlier in the final quarter, Carmel had led by as many as eight.

The Pirates, now 1-1, recovered from the slow start to take a 20-17 advantage at the end of the first quaretr. But Carmel knotted the halftime score at 32-32, then outscored Palatine 18-14 in a defensive second half.

PROVISO E. WHIPS FREMD

Sophomore Glenn Rivers scored 24 points and senior Greg Duncan added 23 as Proviso East overwhelmed Fremd 98-54 at the Glenbard West Holiday Tournament.

The Pirates shot to an early 7-0 lead and were never threatened, even though Proviso coach Glenn Whittenberg substituted freely the entire second half. Twelve East players scored points in the opening round game.

Rivers, playing only his second varsity game, accented his impressive performance of 11-of-15 from the floor by dunking a second-quarter layup. The 6-foot-2 forward connected on his first nine field goals.

Center Duncan scored all but two of his points in the first half, many after pulling down offensive rebounds. He was 8-of-17 from the court.

Junior center Drew Mize led Fremd with 13 points, followed by senior guard Mike Gavigan with nine and senior forward Dave McKinney and junior guard Mark Hamill with six each.

Fremd played without the services of their only returning starter from last year's squad, Scott Rawlins, who was ineligible. Fremd is 0-1 and will play a loser's bracker contest at 7 p.m. Friday.

Crown tips St. Viator

St. Viator's Lions had four players in double figures but dropped a 75-72 decision to host team Crown in the opener of the Crown Thanksgiving tourney as Crown sank 11 of 14 free throws in the fourth quarters.

The Lions' record for the young season fell to 1-1 despite the balanced scoring of Paul Rogozinski (19 points), Paul Wiloff (15), Rick Sanders (14) and Matt Phillips (12). Wiloff, who is Viator's 6-7 pivotman, was in constant foul trouble and sat out nearly an entire period of play.

ST. VIATOR forged an early lead and took a narrow 38-34 edge to the halftime lockerroom, but Crown bounced back in the second half, taking advantage of its opportunities at the line.

WARRIORS LOSE BY 5

New Trier East fended off a late Maine West rally to beat the Warriors on their own court, 70-65, in the second half of round robin tournament action.

The Indians were ahead by as many as 18 points early in the fourth quarter on the strength of Brad Pierce's outside shooting and the inside handiwork of Tony Lehman.

But John Karabas sparked the late Warrior surge after returning to the lineup following an injury with 4:03 to go in the game.

New Trier led 66-52 at the time, but Krabas engineered a steal and layup and, after a bucket by teammate Tim Logisz, added six more points in succession on a 20-footer, two free throws and a rebound tip-in.

DUKES DECK ELGIN

A combination of bad passes, missed layups and traditional first game mistakes plagued Elgin in their 53-48 loss to York.

The Maroons had three players in double figures led by David Hersey's 14 points. Bruce Thompson and Jerry Hall chipped in with 13 and 10 points, respectively.

York jumped to a 10-0 lead in the first three minutes of play, then held a commanding 16-1 margin near the end of the quarter.

"WE HAD OUR running game there, but we never finished it up," Elgin coach Bill Chesbrough said.

LAKE PARK TRIUMPHS

In the nightcap of the Lake Park tournament, the host school trimmed Addison Trail, 54-50 behind Steve Bartsch's 12 points, 11 by Scott Carnell and 10 each by Frank Caver and Mike Watkins. Mike Krueger paced Addison with 27.

Elk Grove shades Hoffman, 46-43

If the premature meeting between Mid-Suburban League South Division representatives Elk Grove and Hoffman Estates is any indication of what the league race will hold, it should be torrid.

Tim Mimnaugh's clutch shooting gave the Elk Grove Grenadiers a 46-43, non-conference victory against the Hoffman Estates Hawks in the third game of the Lake Park Thanksgiving Holiday Basketball Tournament Wednesday night.

Mimnaugh's bank shot with 10 seconds remaining helped Elk Grove overcome Hoffman's 43-42 lead.

ELK GROVE then stole the ball as Mimnaugh was fouled with five seconds remaining. His two successful free throws deflated the Hawks' victory hopes.

The game was close all the way with Hoffman leading 16-11 after the first period, but Elk Grove came back to seize a 25-22 halftime advantage. The second period saw the Grenadiers limit the Hawks to six points.

Hoffman turned the tables on Elk Grove in the third period, allowing only one Elk Grove basket while scoring 11 points themselves for a 33-27 lead.

Mimnaugh's 13 points led all scorers. Dave Perry's 11 and Dave Strawn's 10 topped the Hoffman effort.

HOFFMAN OUTSHOT Elk Grove from the field (53-32 per cent) but the Grens were better from the free throw line (61-42 per cent).

The tournament resumes play Friday night. Hoffman plays Addison Trail at 6:30 and Elk Grove takes on Lake Park at eight o'clock.

HAWKS BLAST KNIGHTS

Prbspect may never know how good Maine South can shoot from the outside.

Wednesday, at least, the Hawks never had to stray far from the basket in dazing the Knights, 75-54, in opening round-robin action at Maine West.

Except for the baseline, which they drove at random, South did virtually all their damage inside while building a 20-9 first-quarter lead before coasting the rest of the way.

PROSPECT PULLED within eight points in the second quarter after four straight layups had propelled the Hawks into a 28-11 command.

Through halftime, South had picked up all of their field goals from inside the 10-foot range, and they were up 36-24.

They hit another spurt to open the third quarter and built a 46-28 gap. But two Dave LaCrosse free throws, a layup by Paul Lundstedt and John Saye's rebound trimmed the margin to 12 points, where it stayed until Maine pulled away near the end.

"I didn't think they (Hawks) were especially big, especially fast or especially accurate. We just played poorly tonight," said Knight coach Bill Slayton of his team's second straight loss.

Chris Theodore with 21 points and Jeff Baker with 20 paced the Hawks' scoring while Jim Apuzzo topped the Knights with 17.

CONANT HOLDS ON

Despite losing two nine-point leads, the Conant Cougars defeated the Glenbrook North Spartans, 73-67, in the Lake Forest Invitational.

The wild game saw Conant leading 19-16 after the first period and 33-24 by halftime.

Glenbrook North stormed back in the third period, outscoring Conant, 22-13, thus creating a 46-46 tie.

The Cougars led by nine with three minutes remaining but North caught up and tied the game again. Conant held on though for the victory.

Cougar John Severson led all scorers with 21 points. Teammates Rocky Pugliese and Roger Schweigert contributed 11 each.

"I thought at times we really looked good," said Conant coach Dick Redlinger.

The tourney continues Friday night with Conant playing Highland Park at 6:45.

SAXONS FALTER, 68-48

Tight defensive play by the De La Salle guards hurt the Schaumburg Saxons enough Wednesday night to give the Metors a 68-48 victory in the LaGrange Tournament.

The Saxons were forced to shoot from the outside and when the shots would not fall, they could only grab one offensive rebound during the entire first half.

AT THE SAME time, the Meteors were able to penetrate the Saxon defense with Aaron Harris leading the way (25 points). John Chmiel, the only Saxon to finish in double figures, was the game's leader with 26 points.

Even though Darryl Allen, De La Salle's big man, got into foul trouble early in the contest, the Meteors were able to compensate for the loss. Demetrius Brown chipped in with 20 points.

MUSTANGS ROMP

Rolling Meadows guard Kent Walker smashed the school scoring record for the second straight game with a 32-point performance as the Mustangs swamped Roosevelt, 89-69, in the lid-lifter of the Niles North tournament.

Walker, a 6-3 senior, had shattered the old record for most points in one game with 30 in a losing cause last Saturday against St. Viator. Against Roosevelt, Walker played just three quarters, as coach Bill Weinberg chose to rest his returning all-conference star in the fourth period.

The Mustangs broke open a close game in the second quarter, outscoring the opposition 25-13. Tom Hopkins supported Walker's effort with a 20-point performance of his own.

"We didn't play as well as we played in the loss to St. Viator," Weinberg said. "It was a sloppy game."

Pistons deal Barnes for Braves' Shumate

DETROIT — Talented but troublesome forward Marvin Barnes, along with two 1978 draft choices, was dealt by the Detroit Pistons to the Buffalo Braves Wednesday in exchange for forward John Shumate, a player to be named later and a first round draft choice in 1979 or 1980.

Detroit gave Buffalo one of the three second-round choices it had in next year's draft along with its fourth-round pick. The Braves gave the Pistons the first-round choice they obtained from Milwaukee in exchange for center John Gianelli last year — along with the option to exercise it in either 1979 or 1980.

Barns had been nothing but trouble to Detroit since it laid out $500,000 to pick up his seven-year contract in the ABA dispersal draft two seasons ago. The slender 6-foot-9 forward with the picture shot never lived up to his ABA form. He averaged 9.6 points in 53 games last season, when he was hampered by a bad foot until late in the season.

Barnes spent the summer in a Rhode Island jail for probation violation, getting out just in time to start the National Basketball Association season without practice.

Onofrio out of Missouri coach job

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Al Onofrio will not return as coach of the University of Missouri in 1978.

Onofrio met with Athletic Director Mel Sheehan and Missouri Chancellor Herbert Schooling for two hours in Schooling's office Tuesday night to determine the future of the football program.

"We can't delay the decision in fairness to the people involved and secondly for the program itself," Schooling said at the conclusion of the meeting. "Recruiting begins immediately and the longer the decision is delayed, the more problems a lack of decision creates."

Onofrio coached Missouri to a disappointing 4-7 record this season with upset victories over Arizona State in Tempe and Colorado in Boulder. But the Tigers were just 2-4 at home with losses to national powers Southern Cal, California, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Garcia back as California manager

ANAHEIM, Calif. — The California Angels, unable to pry Gene Mauch loose from Minnesota Twins' owner Calvin Griffith, announced Wednesday they will go with incumbent manager Dave Garcia next season.

Garcia, 57, became manager of the Angels last July 11 after Norm Sherry was fired. Angel owner Gene Autry and Mauch have talked this month about the possibility of Mauch managing the Angels in 1978, but Griffith refused to release Mauch from the final year of his contract as manager of the Twins. Mauch was miffed because Minnesota lost free agent outfielder Larry Hisle and Dyman Bostock.

Ironically, the Angels Monday signed Bostock, the No. 2 hitter in the American League last season, to a five-year contract estimated to be worth $3 million, making him baseball's highest paid player.

Hayes apologizes to TV cameraman

COLUMBUS — Ohio State University President Harold L. Enarson said OSU football coach Woody Hayes has apologized to the ABC television cameraman he punched during the OSU-Michigan game Saturday.

In a statement issued Wednesday night, Enarson said, "I was pleased to learn from Athletic Director Hugh Hindman that Coach Hayes has telephoned the ABC photographer, Mr. (Mike) Freedman, and apologized for the extremely unfortunate incident which took place in Ann Arbor, Mich., last Saturday.

"I consider this apology entirely appropriate and believe, as does Mr. Freedman, that this concludes the matter." Hayes struck Freedman after OSU lost a crucial fumble late in the game and the cameraman was trying to film Hayes' reaction to the play.

Irish place 3 on All-America team

DURHAM, N.C. — Notre Dame placed defensive end Ross Browner, tight end Ken MacAfee and defensive back Luther Bradley on this year's American Football Coaches Assn. All-America squad.

Others were Pittsburgh's Matt Cavanaugh as quarterback, Texas' Earl Campbell, Oklahoma State's Terrry Miller, LSU's Charles Alexander and John Jefferson of Arizona State. On the line were Mark Donahue of Michigan, Leotis Harris of Arkansas, Chris Ward of Ohio State, Dan Irons of Texas Tech, Walt Downing of Michigan and Ozzie Newsome of Alabama.

On defense are Ken Still of Kentucky, Brad Shearer of Texas, Randy Holloway of Pittsburgh, Aaron Brown of Ohio State, Jerry Robinson of UCLA, Gary Spani of Kansas State and Lucius Sanford of Georgia Tech.

Bowling

At Elk Grove Bowl

Only half a point separates the top four teams in the Wholly Bowlers Mixed League after Sunday night's action at Elk Grove Bowl. Dennis Roche led the men with a 496 series followed by Steve Kazmerczak with a 489. Sandy Wiatr and Arlene Roche led the ladies with a 430 and 425 respectively. High game honors in the men's competition also went to Dennis Roche with a 205, while Rich Hahn had runnerup honors with a 195. Sandy Wiatr also had high game honors for the girls with a nifty 194. Jan Becks rolled a 188 for the girls' second high game. Dennis Roche finished off his perfect evening by rolling 67 pins over his average — high for the night. Tom Savin raised his average by rolling 62 pins over his previous one. Jean Trotzier was the most improved of the girls after exceeding her average by 62 pins. Rich Hahn and Alice Kubick won house awards for converting splits.

Big Ten's sparkling future arrives early

Lou Henson

Fred Schaus

By the time the upcoming Big Ten basketball season gets into its final stages, people may wonder why this conference often has been called the league of the future.

In the months to come, it will appear that the Big Ten already has arrived as the premier college basketball conference in the country, from top to bottom.

Ever since Indiana beat Michigan for the national title two seasons ago in the all-Big Ten championship game, the job of recruitaing has become more of an inner competition between coaches in the league. They need no longer gauge their success against the top teams across the country. They must now use the rest of the conference as their unit of measure.

NORTHWESTERN coach Tex Winter did a little research on the recruiting job that was done by his fellow coaches last spring. His conclusion was that 26 of the top 50 high schoolers in the nation last year decided to go with the Big Ten.

Unfortunately for Winter, none of those 26 chose Northwestern.

Eldon Miller, the Ohio State coach, did such a good job that the Buckeye recruits were called the No. 1 catch in the country. The surprising thing about all that is Ohio State's cellar finish (4-14) in the conference last year.

Wisconsin's Bill Cofield did a comparable job by landing a pair of All-Americans in Larry Petty and Wesley Matthews. Illinois' Lou Henson despite failing in his quest for a big man, came up with four of the top five high school players in the state last year.

AT PURDUE, where they are predicting a conference title this season after three consecutive third-place finishes, coach Fred Schaus picked up some young all-staters to go with the experience of Eugene Parker and Walter Jordan.

The list of recruiting success goes on. If those freshmen display their talents this year instead of developing over a longer period of time, the future could be even better than the present. Eight of the teams will get their first test this weekend in nonconference action.

Michigan, the defending conference champions, have been hurt by the loss of center Phil Hubbard. The Olympian is out for the season with torn knee ligaments.

The following is a look at all the teams, presented in the order of their finish in the Big Ten last year.

Michigan (16-2, 26-4) — Coach Johnny Orr is not looking for any pity over the loss of Hubbard. He still thinks his Wolverines will have a good team, and few people will doubt that assessment. Key returner Dave Baxter will spark the speedy Michigan squad at one of the guard positions.

Minnesota (15-3, 24-3) — The Gophers will be anxiously awaiting the return of star center Mike Thompson, who has been ordered to sit out the first seven games for an NCAA rule violation. Minnesota had one of the top defenses last season, allowing only 40 per cent shooting from the floor.

Purdue (13-5, 19-9) — Just about everybody's preseason favorite to win the conference. Jordan, who led the Boilermakers last year with an 18.6 scoring average, joins Parker and Wayne Walls as four-year starters.

Iowa (10-8, 18-9) — Coach Lute Olson calls sophomore guard Ronnie Lester (Chicago Dunbar) the best in the country for what the Hawkeyes are trying to do. Lester will be the key to the fast-breaking Iowa attack.

Indiana (9-9, 14-13) — Sophomore forward Mike Woodson will be the Hoosier nucleus this season. He had an 18.5 scoring average last year, but coach Bobby Knight said his star player needs a lot of work on defense.

Michigan State (7-11, 10-17) — Coach Jud Heathcote came up with the recruiting prize of the year in Earvin Johnson, who many regard as the best in the land. He will join key returners Robert Chapman and Greg Kelser.

Illinois (6-12, 14-16) — Henson will start the same group that he used last year, with the exception of guard Steve Lanter. The playmaker has been hampered by knee problems. Audie Matthews, the other guard, returns with his team-leading 16.0 average of last year.

Wisconsin (5-13, 9-18) — The Badgers have been plagued by injuries, but they will be tough challengers when healthy. Key returners are Joe Chrnelich, Clyde Gaines and Stretch Gregory, who led the team with 15.9 scoring average last season.

Northwestern (5-13, 7-20) — Winter said he thinks his Wildcats are a much better team than most people believe, but they will have a tough time competing with the improved league play this year.

Ohio State (4-14, 9-18) — As soon as the fine crop of Buckeye freshmen come along, Ohio State will quickly climb up the conference ladder.

North Carolina, Kentucky named UPI favorites

NEW YORK (UPI) — Southern powers Kentucky and North Carolina were chosen as preseason co-favorites for the best college basketball team in the country, according to the United Press International Board of Coaches.

"We are better than last year," said Kentucky coach Joe Hall before the start of the season. "We deserve to be ranked high this year,"

"I do think we will have another good basketball team," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said.

The 42-member coaches board agreed with both men, giving Kentucky and North Carolina 351 points each. While the Wildcats were named first on 17 ballots to 16 No. 1 choices for the Tar Heels, the over-all point totals — based on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 ranking — were identical for the top spot for the first time ever in preseason.

TWO OF THE REASONS for the awesomeness of the Wildcats — the early choice to run away with the Southeastern Conference — are 6-foot-10 seniors Rick Robey and Mike Phillips. At 235 pounds-plus each, they will be hard to rush around and, when they're resting, freshmen Chuck Leskinas and Scott Courts are ready to step in — and they're 6-10, too.

Also back from the 26-4 club ranked fifth at the end of last season and which advanced to the eastern regional final before losing to North Carolina are senior forward Jack Givens and 6-5, 230-pound "supersub" James Lee.

North Carolina, after downing Kentucky 79-72, went on to the NCAA finals and a 28-5 record before losing to emotion-inspired Marquette in Al McGuire's last game as coach. Without McGuire around at Marquette, the selectors figure the Tar Heels — ranked third in the final ratings last season — have a good chance to get over that last hurdle.

LEADING THE WAY will be guard Phil Ford, a second-team All-America last season and a likely first-teamer this year. Ford injured his elbow in the eastern regional or else there might have been a different national champion. The senior backcourt star, who is the key to North Carolina's "four-corners" offense, averaged a team-leading 18.7 points, shooting 53.4 per cent from the field, and holds the school career assist record with a full year left to pad the mark.

North Carolina will be without starters Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and John Kuester but their depth should allow them to be able to overcome the loss with Tom Zaliagiris and Dave Colescott as well as last year's sensational freshman, Mike O'Koren, who made the All-Tournament team at the NCAA finals, and 6-9 center Rich Yonakor.

DEFENDING NCAA champion Marquette was chosen third, named on seven selectors' ballots in the top spot and earning 309 points over-all. This year the Warriors have a new coach, Hank Raymonds, so are not regarded any higher than last year. But last year, although ranked 14th in the last order and with a 25-7 record, they went on to present the volatile McGuire with the one thing he had never achieved — a national championship.

Completing the top 10 were Notre Dame (245), San Francisco (201), UCLA (154), Purdue (104), Cincinnati (99), Arkansas (89) and Louisville (87.) The Dons and the Razorbacks drew the other two No. 1 designations.

Riunding out the top 20 were Syracuse (62); Michigan (32); Maryland (28); Wake Forest and St. John's, tied for 14th (23); Indiana State and Utah, tied for 16th (22); Kansas State (16); Alabama (14) and Holy Cross (13).

TEAMS ON NCAA probation, and therefore ineligible to be ranked, are Centenary, Clemson, Hawaii, Minnesota, Nevada-Las Vegas and Western Carolina.

"There will be some pressure on me," Raymonds admitted. "But it will be my own. I'm different from Al, sure. But I'm not as quiet as a lot of people might think. And I know all the players respect me."

Although McGuire is gone, Butch Lee, the other second-team All-America guard, is back. The Olympian averaged 19.6 points and should average more than 20 this year.

BO ELLIS' graduation will hurt, though, if Bernard Toone — a player with great potential but little of it realized — cannot take his place effectively at forward. Ellis averaged 15.6 points and 8.3 rebounds last year.

"For us to be a national power, Toone will have to mature," said Raymonds. "I have no idea if he will. If he's the same as last year, he won't. His attentoon span has to be more than 10 seconds. I keep looking for him to be a great player but he's one step away from the cliff."

None of the top three schools was named on every ballot but all three were chosen on 41 of 42.

HIGHLIGHTS

No, Penn State and Pittsburgh aren't playing a double-header . . a week apart! Our apologies for creating the confusion. Penn State meets Pittsburgh THIS Saturday in Pittsburgh (they did NOT play last Saturday), and the Panthers are still seven-point favorites.

We've been writing recently about inter-sectional rivalries and conference championship games, but for a change, the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia could be a fairly interesting football game this year. The Navy has been blasting the Army for the past four years, winning by sizeable margins. This year might be different. Navy trails in the 77-year history of these meetings, but when they whipped Army 38-10 last year, they moved to within one game — 35 wins to 36 for the Cadets. Army has a fine passing quarterback in Leamon Hall who could make this game quite exciting. We'll go with Navy to win #36 by a scant four points, but an Army win would certainly be no surprise.

Oklahoma-Nebraska . . just the sound of the pairing has come to signify an outstanding college football game. The Sooners are in command in the Big Eight as they're the only undefeated team in conference competition. The Cornhuskers were upset by Iowa State about six weeks ago for their only loss in the league, so a Nebraska win over the Sooners would leave the two conference co-champions. The folks in Norman are the home team, and Oklahoma should be the eventual winner . . by five points.

It's finally time to settle the championship of the Pacific Eight and clarify the Rose Bowl picture. Washington is temporarily in the driver's seat with a 6-1 conference record after disposing of Washington State. However, the Huskies are waiting for the outcome of the U.C.L.A.-Southern California game Saturday to see who becomes host for the Roses. Since U.C.L.A. defeated Washington during the season, a Bruin win over Southern Cal would put U.C.L.A. in the Rose Bowl and also give them a share of the conference title. On the other hand, a victory by Southern Cal would give Washington both title and Roses, and we think the latter will happen . . the Trojans will win their finale by 3 points.

Texas will wrap up the Southwest Conference championship Saturday, and Alabama will merely solidify the Southeast Conference crown. The Longhorns will beat Texas A & M by twelve points, and the Crimson Tide is favored by 24 over Auburn.

Texas Tech QB aims for win over Arkansas

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Tech quarterback Rodney Allison plays his last game before his home fans today and his career is not ending up as he had hoped.

But a win for the Red Raiders over the favored Arkansas Razorbacks would help heal the hurt of a disappointing season.

The year began with Allison being mentioned in the same breath as the Heisman Trophy and his team being selected by many to win the Southwest Conference championship.

Less than three games deep in the season Allison limped to the sidelines with a broken bone in his left leg and though he returned to action earlier this month he has been nowhere near his previous self. And if that was not enough Allison broke his nose last Saturday in a disappointing 45-7 setback against Houston.

NOW, WITH A turkey-filled national television audience looking on, Allison will try to regain some of his earlier magic.

It won't be easy.

The sixth-ranked Razorbacks, trying for their 10th win of the season, will be hoping to keep their hopes for a Southwest Conference title alive and will be trying to keep their prestige at a high point before their Orange Bowl date Jan. 2.

"Arkansas may be as good as Texas," said Tech Coach Steve Sloan. "Their defense is like the old Arkansas defenses real quick. And Ben Cowins can hurt you every time he touches the ball."

COWINS HAS picked up, 1,127 yards this season and has scored 14 touchdowns — figures that rank only behind Texas fullback Earl Campbell in the Southwest conference.

And the Razorbacks defense has surrendered only 239 yards and one touchdown per game.

Despite Tech's slump against Houston last week the Raiders already have a Tangerine Bowl bid wrapped up. The trouble now is finding enough people to suit up for the bowl game, not to mention Thursday's contest against the Razorbacks.

"Our injury situation is much like it has been most of the season," said Sloan. "Except now it's compounded. We've got so many people hurt it's hard to set out a starting lineup. We don't know who might be able to play.

"ALMOST EVERYBODY in our offensive line is hurt. Our line concerns us most except for the possibility of free safety where we have two people down."

The Arkansas-Texas Tech clash, one of four games scheduled for today, is the only one involving a ranking club. But, there are several key games on tap for Friday and Saturday involving top ranked teams.

The three most important games are Nebraska at Oklahoma, UCLA at Southern California and Texas at Texas A&M.

THE WINNER OF the Nebraska-Oklahoma game Friday will go to the Orange Bowl to meet Arkansas. Oklahoma, ranked second, has beaten Nebraska five straight years and is favored again. The Sooners will be seeking their second Orange Bowl appearance in the last three years. The loser of the game will be playing North Carolina in the Liberty Bowl.

UCLA, which has lost to Southern California in four of the last five years, can clinch its second Rose Bowl appearance in the last three years with a victory Friday. If the 17th-ranked Bruins lose, however, they are out of the bowl picture completely and 16th-ranked Washington will represent the Pacific Eight conference in the Rose Bowl.

Southern California will have some bowl incentive of its own. The Trojans will play in the Bluebonnet Bowl if they beat UCLA but will be replaced by Washington in the Dec. 31 contest at Houston if they should lose to the Bruins.

THE WINNER OF the Texas-Texas A&M game will be representing the Southwest Conference in the Cotton Bowl while the loser will go to the Bluebonnet Bowl. A spot in the Fiesta Bowl also is up for grabs this weekend. Colorado State and Arizona State currently are tied for the conference lead but if Arizona State beats Arizona Saturday night then the Sun Devils will be the home team in the Fiesta Bowl.

Other key games on Saturday's schedule are Penn State at Pittsburgh, Army against Navy and Alabama at Auburn.

DePaul alumni sponsoring trip

The DePaul University Alumni Assn. is sponsoring a trip to Colorado in conjunction with DePaul's Feb. 22 basketball game against the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs.

The trip includes round-trip economy air fare, hotel accommodations, transportation to and from airports, reserved seat tickets for the basketball game, a tour of the Air Force Academy and dinner and cocktails at the Academy officers' club.

The tour will depart O'Hare Field Feb. 21. Tour members will stay at the Broadmoor Hotel.

Following the game and tour of the Academy, participants will have two options. They may choose to spend a day and a half in Denver, traveling by bus to the Mile High City and staying at the Denver Hilton Feb. 24, returning to Chicago Feb. 25.

TOUR MEMBERS may opt for three nights at Keystone Lodge in Keystone, Colo., returning to Chicago on Feb. 26. Keystone Lodge offers skiing, tennis, ice-skating and swimming.

More information on the tour is available from Pattie Wigand, associate director of alumni relations, DePaul University, 25 E. Jackson Blvd., Chicago 60604, 321-7645.

DePaul, with a very definite Daily Herald area look in its makeup, will open its season Saturday at home against Butler University. The Blue Demons will play their first four games at home before traveling to Wisconsin Dec. 14.

SELECTED GAMES will be televised on Channel 44 and broadcast on WGN radio with Red Rush and Bill Berg handling the commentary.

Dave Corzine from Hersey High School, a 6-foot-11 senior at DePaul, is the leading Blue Demon All-America candidate, and the Demons once again will be coached by Ray Meyer, an Arlington Heights resident with 544 career victories.

The DePaul ticket hotline is 321-8010.

Protecting computer secrets draws attention of U.S., world

NEW YORK (UPI) — Computer security has become a billion dollar issue in the United States alone and is growing on a global scale as increasingly sopisticated technology increases the potential for abuse.

Carl Hammer of Sprry Univac told the fourth annual computer security conference in New York this month that computer crime is rising so fast it is "becoming everybody's concern."

The conference was attended by computer professionals from industry, business, banking and other organizations. A number of manufacturers exhibited devices and systems to prevent tampering with legitimate computer functions.

Prof. Brandt R. Allen of the University of Virginia, a speaker at the conference, said disgruntled employes are often responsible for computer abuse or sabotage.

Allen said a number of companies are combatting employe espionage by using employe expertise to think up ways the computer can be sabotaged. The experts' suggestions then are used to design a security system.

THE GROWTH of tapping the computer for industrial espionage on an international scale was described by two writers earlier this year.

Stephen Barley, an Englishman whose first book on spying, "The Secret Business," was publised in the United States last winter is about to publish a second that focuses on the use of the computer for the spying.

Barley said satellite computer communications can be a goldmine to companies that want to use it for industrial spying. It is relatively easy for an electronics expert to break codes and tap satellite communications.

He said companies based in London have found it profitable to spy on satellite communications between large U.S. companies and their European offices. Unfortunately, Barley said, such spying is still not illegal in Britain.

Barley also said using gadgets or ordinary telephone lines to steal secrets stored in computers is much easier than one would imagine.

Howaver, the legal department of International Business Machines Corp., the world's biggest maker of computers, expressed some skepticism about this. The IBM lawyers said they had heard of no lawsuits or criminal prosecutions based on computer espionage.

Housing market surprise success

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — The great American home has been the great American success story of 1977. In a year when pessimists said no average family could afford the prices, the actual housing market has been one of the economy's strongest areas. Construction is running at twice the rate of the recent recession, well above the levels the gloom merchants said we could ever again achieve.

First, let's summarize why, according to some accounts, the market was supposed to have peaked out when housing starts rose from about 1 million a year in 1974 to about 1.5 million in 1976. The primary reason was price: as scarily headlined articles frequently remind us, the median price of a new American home is ascending at a truly dizzying velocity. The second main reason was ability to pay: individual earnings aren't going up as fast as house prices.

"HOW, THEN, DO you explain what's actually been happening in the housing market?

It's true, as anyone who has gone looking for a home recently can attest, that prices have increased rapidly since 1973 (roughly 10 per cent a year). It's also true that the costs of home ownership have increased even faster than consumer prices in general. But it's equally true that American families have nonetheless been buying homes at an unprecedented pace. And next year's rate, while slowing slightly, probably still will be well above that of 1976.

What's going on? Well, one thing the bad guessers missed totally is the difference between individual income and family income. Individual wage earners may not have kept up with new-house prices, but families have. Since 1965, median U.S. family income has increased 120 per cent; the prices of new homes 110 per cent. When you add in the earnings of that second (or third or fourth) family wage earner, who has become such an important part of the modern economic scene, you understand where the power to buy all these new homes has come from.

What's more, prospective buyers see the prices of existing homes increasing rapidly — looking, for many families, like the best available hedge against inflation — and they see the extra advantages, as family income rises, of the tax deductions generated by owning a home. So stretching a bit to buy a more costly house has more and more seemed like simple economic sense.

WHERE DO WE go from here? Most likely down a notch: single-family units have accounted for fully 73.3 per cent of this year's sizzling construction pace (compared with an average of 65.9 per cent in the previous five years) and their production can be expected to ebb as 1978 progresses. But much of the slack probably will be taken up by multifamily housing, which increasingly looks attractive on an economic basis — and where the government is providing some artificial stimulus.

Mortgages are likely to cost a fraction of a percentage point more, and mortgage money may be somewhat harder to come by if rising interest rates elsewhere drain deposits from the thrift institutions. But as Argus Research Corp. has astutely noted, "This problem is largely a result of government-imposed ceilings on the rates that can be paid on savings and time deposits."

So while the current upward momentum will not be unceasing, the housing market over-all has confounded the pessimists and helped thrust the economy into a reasonable orbit. In an era of unceasing inflation, it has become the great American hope.

Car sales down from one year ago

Domestic car sales by the "big four" automakers totaled 217,804 units during the second 10 days of November, down from 254,898 during the same period a year ago. The decline was explained, in part, by the fact there were nine selling days in the period a year ago and only eight this time. Ford Motor Co. was the only one of the firms to report increased sales. It has not recovered from a nationwide strike at this time last year.

General Motors, Chrysler Corp. and American Motors, whose sales a year ago were inflated by the strike's impact, all suffered losses during this year's Nov. 11-20 period. Ford reported a 25.9 per cent increase in its daily selling rate with over-all deliveries of 67,955, up from 60,709 a year ago. GM sales slipped to 117,021 from 153,843 last year. Chrysler's sales totaled 27,734 down from 33,068. American Motors sold 5,094, compared with 7,278 during the 1976 period.

Honda to increase car prices

American Honda Motor Co. announced Wednesday price increases ranging from $120 to $180 for all 1978 Honda Civics and Accords beginning Dec. 1. The price increases average 3.9 per cent compared with an average 5.8 per cent announced recently by domestic car firms. General Motors and Ford, however, reduced prices on their small economy cars to compete with imports. The Honda Civic 1200 sold in all states except California will have a base price of $2,969 for the two-door, four-speed sedan, an increase of $120, the company said. Civic CVCC models will cost $140 more with the sedan carrying a sticker price of $3,239. Accords will go up $180 with the five-speed model priced at $4,645 and the Hondamatic at $4,775. The luxury version of the Accord, the LX, will start out at $5,465 for the five-speed model and $5,595 for cars equipped with automatic transmission.

Foreign special steel use dips

Foreign producers of specialty steel now account for the lowest share of domestic consumption in three years, the Commerce Dept. reported Wednesday in the latest review of the quota program. President Carter ordered the review of impor penetration as part of his reconsideration of speciality steel import quotas imposed by the Ford administration in June 1976. Specialty steel consists of steel alloy products used in the production of cars, appliances, aircraft engines, tools and storage tanks. The specialty steel import quotas represented the first protective action taken by the United States for nonfarm products in more than a decade. The industry, which primarily is located in the north central states, employes about 60,000 workers.

Strike closes Port of Baltimore

The Port of Baltimore will remain closed until the shippers come to terms with 4,000 striking longshoremen, a union spokesman said Wednesday. The International Longshoremen's Assn., which struck containerized cargo at East and Gulf coast ports eight weeks ago, expanded its strike to include all shipping at the Port of Baltimore to pressure the Steamship Trade Assn. of Baltimore into accepting its terms. At issue is the guaranteed annual income. The ILA demands that senior workers, after refusing jobs eventually given to junior dockers, nonetheless qualify for the GAI if there are no other jobs available. As present, junior men are eligible if a more senior dockworkers accepts a job, thus preventing them from working.

Coffee stashed away in Colombia

Colombia has 3.6 million sacks of coffee stored in warehouses, the largest amount in years, but the huge stockpile is because of world market demand, coffee sources said Wednesday. "It's not that Colombia has been holding back; it's just that roasters have been only buying what they need at the moment. It's a very nervous market," according to a U.S. economist who keeps a close watch on the coffee situation. The 3.6 million-sack figure was as of Oct. 31, the last date for which the National Coffee Federation of Colombia had a total. The volume of Colombian coffee sales declined sharply in 1976-77, but the amount of money received jumped because of high prices.

Dollar hits low against Swiss franc

The U.S. dollar plunged below 2.19 Swiss francs for the first time in history in New York Wednesday and hovered near all-time lows against other currencies including the Japanese yen.

Gold rose sharply, closing $4 higher in Zurich at $159.625 an ounce and $2.50 higher in London at $159.375.

London bullion dealers said Tuesday's late buying interest continued as the dollar weakened. They said buyers apparently re-entered on market sentiment that the $156 an ounce reached Tuesday was a bottom.

Treasury asking nation to spend those $2 bills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury Dept. Wednesday renewed its effort to convince skeptical Americans the $2 bill is a practical currency and should have a prominent spot in their wallets.

The department said it had persuaded two major supermarket chains — Safeway and Grand Union — to circulate the $2 bill in a six-state area for a trial period of six months.

"The treasury is asking only that $2 notes be routinely used by the businesses in normal day-to-day transactions," said Bette Anderson, undersecretary of the treasury.

The government decided to reissue the $2 bill on April 13, 1976. That date coincided with the 233rd birthday of Thomas Jefferson, whose picture graces one side of the bill.

Treasury officials said widespread use of the $2 bill could save the government between $5 million and $6 million in printing costs. The idea was that they eventually would displace half of all the $1 bills.

Since them, officials acknowledge, the success of the deuce has been spotty, at best.

THE BUREAU of Engraving and Printing has issued 527 million $2 bills. About 220 million of them are in national circulation, although officials estimate about 25 per cent of these notes have been stashed away by speculators, presumably in the belief that if they hang on to them they eventually will become more valuable.

Almost all of the remaining $2 bills are gathering dust in federal reserve bank vaults around the country.

"I guess the $2 bill is sort of in limbo," a FED spokesman said. "Nobody will actually declare it a failure or a success. They may be desirable but they're not necessary — that's how many people feel. They're getting along without it."

Peter Daly, assistant to the director of the director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, said the public response has been "positive, but very, very slow."

To speed up the acceptance process, the Treasury Wednesday said all 165 Safeway stores in Northern Virginia, Washington, D. C., Maryland, Delaware and Southern Pennslyvania will begin handing out $2 bills as change to customers.

In the Glen Falls-Sarasota County area of New York, Grand Union's 24 stores will undertake a similar effort.

Mrs. Anderson said major retailers in Portland, Ore., tried the same approach, at the Treasury's urging, and received a positive response from customers.

The circulation rate of $2 bills in that area has increased by more than 2,000 per cent in two months and circulation of the $1 bill has declined 15 per cent, a department spokesman said.

Golfing, travel fill days

by JOHN N. FRANK

Retirement is often a difficult adjustment for executives used to the fast-paced world of big business. But William Krick, former Illinois Bell Telephone assistant vice president, is not having adjustment problems.

Celebrating his 80th birthday last week, Krick keeps to a schedule that makes him busier then men half his age and younger looking than many men of 60.

"Time took care of it, time makes the adjustment for you," says Krick, who left the phone company in 1962.

The Arlington Heights resident plays golf three or four times a week during the golfing season as well as traveling throughout the country.

"The first few years I'd say I missed the companionship," of working, Krick says.

HE HAD WORKED for Illinois Bell from the time he graduated high school in 1916 until 1962 working his way up from an installer of manual switchboards, to assistant vice president, enjoying all the stops along the way, he says.

"I think everything I accomplished down there came out the way I wanted it. I have no regrets on anything I've done," Krick says.

He saw switching equipment advance from manual switchboards, to an early form of automatic switching, to the equipment being used today.

He also saw unions, which were almost nonexistent in 1916, become a powerful force in the telephone business, raising the workers' pay to new levels, Krick says.

"They didn't have any unions when I started in 1916. You just got your pay then. It was set by the company and it was in line with the market. I started at $10 or $11 a week," Krick says.

"I think the unions are responsible for the inflation that we've got today. They took too big a step," Krick says.

HAVING RETIRED with a sizable holding of AT&T stock, Krick says he still keeps watch on how the phone company is doing financially and the roles unions are playing in that financial picture.

He also has watched with dismay recent federal approval for nonBell companies to sell telephones to the public that can be hooked up to the Bell system.

"When they've got to get them repaired there's going to be a problem," he says of phones not manufactured by Bell.

"WOULD HE LIKE to be back on the job dealing with the new problems of private phone ownership facing Illinois Bell? No way, says Krick.

"I wouldn't go back, I'm financially in good shape and enjoying good health," he says, and so he is content to live his new life of travel and leisure and leave Illinois Bell behind him except for a nostalgic look back.

"I remember the days when I was a central office installer and the guys went over to eat and got a free lunch with a nickel beer. And pay stations were a nickel a call; now it's 20 cents," he says.

RETIREMENT AGREES with William A. Krick, who turned 80 this week. The former Illinois Bell Telephone assistant vice president plays golf several times a week and travels throughout the country.

Lease-a-Lemon business a fast-growing fad?

by PAUL VAN SLAMBROUCK

After 18 years in academia, first as a professor and later as a college administrator, Jack Newell decided to try something "less constraining." In February of this year, he entered the lemon business. "Lemon" automobiles, that is.

Under the corporate monicker "Lease-A-Lemon," Newell combined his administrative experience with a friend's capital investment and together they entered the fledging but growing business of renting used cars. Lease-A-Lemon, founded in Raleigh, N.C., has since been sold as a franchise, and another company-owned rental business opened in Charlotte. A second franchise has been sold in Minneapolis.

Similar used car rental agencies are springing up all over the country, according to the International Entrepreneurs Assn., a nonprofit "investment opportunity" organization in Santa Monica, Calif. In a recent study of the business, the association called it a "burgeoning new field."

DESPITE THE name of the firm, Newell runs as president, he insists the company is after profits, not chuckles. "We're trying to offer the newest possible cars, but at the cheapest possible rates," he says.

In fact, Newell claims his vehicles are anything but "lemons." He says "the key to success (in used-car rentals) is selecting quality cars" when building a fleet. Newell notes that the average maintenance cost per car in his fleet of 55 in Charlotte is $200 a year. This is in addition to an average purchasing cost per car of $500 to $550.

The return can be sizable, as evidenced in the International Entrepreneurs Assn. study, which reported that among six firms studied — all but one less than a year old — the average gross income was $2,700 to $2,900 per vehicle, per year.

But the association also points out that because the used car rental business is relatively new, the costs of operation can vary widely. A big variable is insurance.

"LIABILITY insurance is an industry headache," says Newell. He claims that because insurance companies have had such limited experience with insuring fleets of used cars, they often charge the same rates they would for newer cars.

He says liability insurance costs between $300 and $500 per car per year.

To reduce rates, he is trying to get an insurer to underwrite policies for all Lease-A-Lemon franchises, whatever their location. It's "critical" to the company's expansion, he maintains.

All considered, Newell says that keen selection of mechanically "outstanding" cars and a good in-house mechanic allow him to rent automobiles well below the rates of the big national firms.

Lease-A-Lemon charges from $30 to $60 a week, depending on the age and model of the car selected. Most cars are of the early 1970s vintage and purchased at discounted rates from utility companies. Customers also are charged $1 a day for insurance. There is no charge for mileage, and patrons pay for their own gas.

HERTZ RENT A Car charges $154 a week for a mid-size car with unlimited mileage, and the customer pays for the gas.

The competition among used car rental agencies is growing, according to Newell. He says in North Carolina alone several used car rental operations have opened recently. Wheels and Deals in Charlotte and Hire-A-Heap near Raleigh are two examples.

But industry officials admit the mortality rate of used car rental businesses is very high.

The most successful used car rental business is Rent-A-Wreck in Los Angeles. The operation has received much publicity for its appeal to many Hollywood stars, who have found a certain attracting to renting old, unusual cars But Dave Schwartz, owner and founder of Rent-A-Wreck, says the firm's longevity — it's been in operation eight years — proves it has more than fad appeal.

"Originally we rented used cars to be more economical. But now the main thing is dependability." Schwartz claims that in his fleet of 600 "the only cars that break down are the new ones, which we bought as an experiment to see how they would compare. We'll never buy any more," he says.

Openings

The newest Ark Fashion Stores Ltd., opened this month on the third level of the Lee Street Mall in Des Plaines. The store features moderately priced fashions for professional men and women with a complete line of sport, casual, business and dress clothes and matching accessories.

Jeffrey Anderzhon, Elgin and Richard Diehl, Bartlett, have announced the formation of Anderzhon/Diehl and Associates, Inc., an architectural and land planning firm at 120 W. Golf Rd., Schaumburg. The firm has experience in all aspects of single and multifamily residential, commercial and industrial architecture, as well as land planning.

Brothers Arnold and Bob Briskman, attorneys who are partners in the Chicago law firm of Torme, Horwich and Briskman have opened a suburban affiliate of that office at 234 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

The Fred Kowalczyk Agency, a member of Farmers Insurance Group, has moved to new offices at 1802 W. Irving Park Rd., Hanover Park.

Kuffel, Eggert, Collimore and Co., an insurance firm, is relocating its offices to 1450 S. New Wilke Rd., Arlington Heights. The building was purchased for $255,000 from a trust at Mount Prospect State Bank.

Bonwit Teller Fur Salon will triple its space this fall, adding some 5,000 square feet to the main reception area, providing expanded fur storage vault space and the addition of a special "Fendi Suite" show area, featuring the largest collection of Fendi designer furs anywhere outside of Rome. The salon, under the direction of Carol and Irwin Ware, is located on the second floor of Bonwit Teller, in the John Hancock Center.

Dow Jones rallies again; trading heavy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blue chips rose for the fourth consecutive session in the stock market's broad advance Wednesday, with the aid of favorable Middle East peace and economic developments. Pre-Thanksgiving holiday trading was heavy.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off more than three points because of profit taking at one time, rallied to gain 0.78 point to 843.30. It climbed 6.41 points in Tuesday's rally.

American Telephone & Telegraph and DuPont stocks were trading minus their dividends, which put the closely watched blue-chip Dow average at a 2.16-point deficit from the outset. Profit taking was a factor in early weakness.

Big board volume totaled 29,150,000 shares, up from the 28,600,000 traded Tuesday. The NYSE high-speed transaction tape ran seven minutes late in the first half hour.

THE FEDERAL RESERVE Board sparked some buying by indicating it has relaxed its credit policies even though the dollar fell sharply on European exchanges. There was speculation the Fed's money supply figures to be released Friday will show only a small increase.

As a result, the New York Stock Exchange common stock index rose 0.25 to 53.19 and the average price of a share jumped 15 cents.

Advances routed declines, 1,002 to 468, among the 1,892 issues crossing the composite tape at 3 p.m. CST. The market will be closed Thursday for Thanksgiving.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 3 p.m. CST totaled 31,756,128 shares, compared with 30,095,488 Tuesday.

Prices were higher in active trading of American Stock Exchange and over-the-counter issues.

It's the Canon NP-50. For low-to-medium copying requirements. It's engineered with rugged solid state technology. It's compact, produces clear, legible copies in statement, letter and legal size, on plain paper that can be written on immediately. And copy onto transparencies, labeled stock and colored paper.

It will replace copiers like the Xerox 660 and old fashioned electrofax copiers that use coated paper to produce copies that are tough to write on and read.

The Canon NP-50 is so reliable it greatly reduces your operating costs. And our suggested retail price of $2975 includes a handsome rollaway stand. Another savings.

Business confidence problem 'baffles' Mondale

Hobart Rowen

WASHINGTON — Walter (Fritz) Mondale, the vice president accorded unprecendented power by Jimmy Carter, sat behind his desk in the west wing of the White House and puffed thoughtfully on a long cigar.

Does he agree with a Carter adviser who argues that whatever he does or doesn't do no Democratic president is likely to enjoy "business confidence?"

The Vice President, personally closer than ever to Carter since the departure of budget director Bert Lance, says he is "somewhat baffled" by the problem of gaining and holding the respect of the business community.

But then he thinks out loud for the benefit of his questioner, separating "legitimate concerns" from those to which the administration should not respond.

IN THE INITIAL group, he places the need for "predictability," so those making investment decisions can be sure of "stability" of the economy. He acknowledges that uncertainty over the outcome of energy, Social Security and tax legislation has created business-world anxieties.

But "business confidence" also is used as a cover for something else. "I think for some businessmen, 'business confidence' means that we (should) pursue policies of high unemployment and highly restrictive monetary policies, and an absence of initiatives in the field of social justice," Mondale said. "That involves paying a price for so-called 'confidence — and a price of that kind can't be paid."

Mondale thus correctly perceives that while some businessmen think Carter merely unpredictable, others think he's too radical. This assessment drives Carter's labor-liberal-black constituency up the wall, because Carter tries to compensate for it. Thus, in an overt bid for business support last spring, he listened to Bert Lance and dropped the $50 tax rebate.

Today, as the economy sags, his advisers wish he hadn't succumbed. And, in fact, a brand-new tax cut for 1978 is now in the making, and tax reform, including any change in capital gains taxes, is out the window until 1979.

THUS, BUSINESS LEADERS say they are never sure which way Carter will jump. In essence, they don't trust him. On a personal level, they find him cool and distant, and point out that unlike the opportunities they had with President Ford, there are virtually no personal contacts so they can unload their hopes, suggestions or fears.

No new conduit to the business world is being sought by Carter, but trade adviser Robert Strauss and, to a lesser degree, Sec. of State Cyrus Vance are trying to fill the void left by Lance.

Business is grateful that Carter has forsworn wage-price controls. But it knows, nonetheless, that inflation is adding to costs and cutting into profits, reducing the incentive to invest. As much as they don't like high interest rates, business managers believe, as one Wall Street adviser put it, that "Arthur Burns has the only anti-inflation game in town."

Mondale argues the point, ticking off a whole list of anit-inflation steps the administration has taken.

THE "ARTHUR BURNS problem," of course, adds to the tensions between Carter and business. Mondale expertly dances away from talking too much about Burns, pleading that Carter hasn't yet decided what to do about the highly regarded central bank chairman whose term expires early next year. But there is a genuine tone of deference. "We want to have good relations with Burns," he says, emphasizing that "this is not a standdown (fight) by any means."

It probably won't make much difference. Whether Burns stays or is followed by an almost equally conservative chairman, business is not likely to have a love affair with Jimmy Carter.

He's going to try a series of regular, formal meetings with businessmen, Mondale reveals. But Carter doesn't serve up the brand of corn pone that for a brief time made L. B. J. a favorite of impressionable businessmen. The Carter businessmen see is the Carter they'll get. And although he's "tight as a tick," as Jody Powell once said, he's still a Democrat.

Wood substitute to be used in furniture

A new substitute for expensive wood furniture construction could stimulate more interest in furniture design than any development in recent years, its developer says.

Masonite, developed by Chicago-based Masonite Corp., is made from an old product — fiberboard.

Its use up to now has been confined to wallboard, but the firm hopes the interest shown by furniture designers and manufacturers will reduce its dependency on the construction industry.

The Masonite process gives fiberboard a three-dimensional, wood grain appearance through a compressed molding process, which the firm is attempting to patent. The product not only looks and feels like wood, it can be stained or lacquered the same as wood.

LARY POE, Masonite vice president in charge of industrial and furniture components, said inquiries have been frtquent and from many different sources and may stimulate more interest in furniture design than any development in recent years.

"The product will give the designer a great deal more flexibility and the customer a wider selection," he said.

The process embosses the edges to make the product ideal as a replacement for plastic or expensive hardwood for use as table tops, cabinet drawers and drawer fronts.

"Another strong advantage in the process is that it will allow a manufacturer to mix surfaces for in-lays," Poe said. "A coffee table with a wooden frame can be designed with a top consisting of non-wood inlays — butcher block, cork, linen, slate, burlap or any combination — with the compressed fiberboard."

HE SAID THIS means furniture manufacturers can introduce many interesting, intricate and attractive patterns that are "prohibitively expensive to use in pure wood."

Poe said cost of making molds for the new process is about one-half of that for producing the parts in plastic.

Masonite expects the new product to be profitable from the start and to become a hefty contributor to the firm's over-all financial picture in three to five years.

Production is scheduled to begin in December, when Masonite opens a new 45,000-square-foot factory in Oxford, N.C. The firm plans to expand to 200 employes and 125,000 square feet.

"Two major furniture manufacturres would like to have exclusive rights," Poe said. "That won't happen because this product has wide enough appeal for the entire industry."

BUT THERE WILL be a built-in degree of exclusivity for Masonite customers because each will be required to submit a scale model of any piece they would like to order.

"We'd make the mold, which would be ours," Poe said. "We wouldn't use it for anyone but the customer who submitted the model and chances of two manufacturers submitting the identical design are virtually non-existent."

Each mold would allow Masonite to produce hundreds of thousands of parts for repeat orders, Poe said.

In addition to giving designers a great deal more flexibility, the process should bring prices for attractive furniture within reach of a lot more consumers, Poe said.

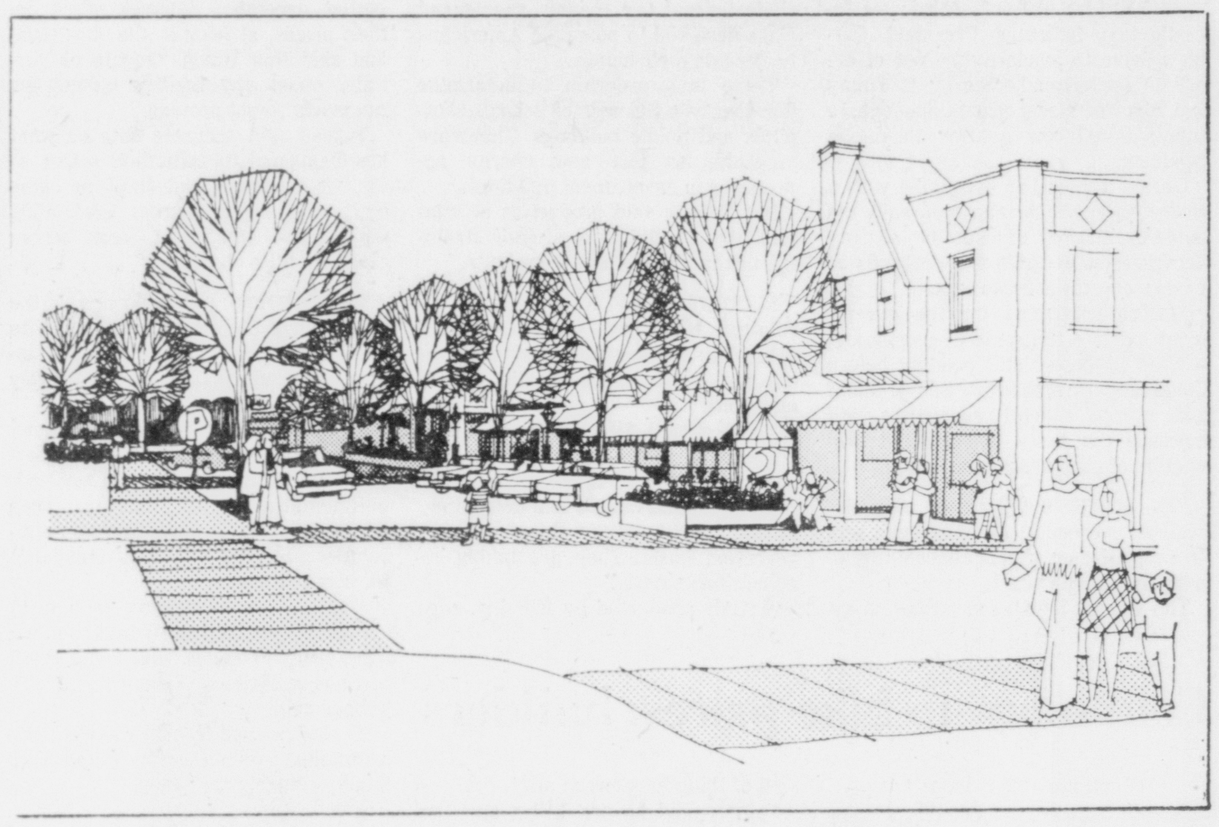
Downtown revivals challenge markets of shopping centers



A RENAISSANCE of downtown areas is at hand for communities with imagination and citizen involvement, participants were told at a seminar on Chicago-area business districts. Revival methods discussed included the wholesale redesign of entire downtown areas, such as that proposed for Mount Prospect (above) and under way in Oak Park, Aurora and Madison, Wis.

by DAVE IBATA

Expect revived suburban downtown and neighborhood business strips in Chicago to give competition in the future to the sprawling, regional shopping centers, participants were told at a recent seminar on business districts.

"I suggest some suburban shopping centers are going to suffer because people are getting disenchanted with the plastic and chrome and the similarity between one center and another," said Allan Saks, seminar speaker and president of Saxon Paint and Home Care Centers, Chicago.

SEMINAR SPEAKERS agreed local Saks, community leaders and businessmen in financing, franchising and urban development gave their views at a seminar, "The Future of Chicago Area Business Districts," sponsored by the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry.

government, civic leaders and businessmen must act together to turn around declining business areas in Chicago and its suburbs.

Means for reviving business areas proposed at the seminar ranged from rehabilitation of individual commercial properties to wholesale beautification projects for entire downtowns.

One such method for revival was the rehabilitation of the 120-year-old McHenry County Courthouse and Jail in Woodstock.

Clifford Ganschow, owner and developer of the Old Courthouse and Jail, restored the two buildings as an in-town shopping mall, and contributed to the rebirth of Woodstock's central business district.

Granschow said some of the lessons learned at the Old Courthouse could be applied to older, central sections in the Northwest suburbs.

"It's the one area of development that has the most potential for doing some exciting things," he said.

ADVANTAGES CITED by Ganschow that central suburban business districts have include:

- Location at the hub of a community's traffic flow.
- Cost availability of discarded buildings, that though dilapidated may be structurally sound.
- The inherent appeal of older buildings as local landmarks, with which residents of a community identify.

"It isn't very smart to throw things away without evaluating why you're throwing them away," Ganschow said.

The same principles also can be applied to the older, commercial centers of Chicago neighborhoods, Ganschow said.

MORE FRANCHISERS, comfortably established in the suburbs, are looking to Chicago as a future market, said James Herbst, national real estate manager for the Poppin' Fresh Pies Division of Pillsbury, Inc., and vice president of the Chicago chapter of the National Assn. of Corporate Real Estate Executives.

"Ten years ago, every chain had one criteria: they all wanted to be out in the suburbs," Herbst said.

During the 1960s, all the franchises sought out choice locations in the growing suburbs — with resultant congestion along commercial strips, incredible competition among the tightly packed chains and reduced profits, Herbst said.

One consequence of the strips were stricter zoning laws enacted in the suburbs, Herbst said.

By the 1970s, he said, the chains began realizing locations in Chicago and older, close-in suburbs were desirable because of higher population densities.

"We're finding more bodies and we're finding more opportunities we kind of passed," Herbst said.

"IN-CITY UNITS in central business districts start out high, and they stay high," he said. "But suburban ones will start high, then take a very big drop and a year later they're back up and in very good shape."

However, Herbst said, "Suburbs will always attract chains. I'm just saying there is vast opportunity throughout Chicago . . . I think a main thrust in both (city and suburban) areas is equally important."

"My six highest-volume stores are three in very wealthy suburbs in the north and south, and three in the city," he said. "They rank very high at the top, but the're all in older areas."

Robert Zaloudek, a real estate investment consultant, said newer retail markets are emerging in older communities.

"Many neighborhoods and close-in suburbs are benefiting from the 'back to the city' movement," he said.

HE SAID A recent nationwide study showed the greatest retail movement toward specialty shops in the cities and suburbs, offering such goods as stuffed animals, stained glass windows, ice cream creations and yogurt.

The future of Chicago retailing does not lie with the regional shopping centers, the seminar audience was told.

In fact, a suburban-style shopping center in Chicago could wreck havoc with the economic health of nearby neighborhood shopping strips, speakers said. One target of attack was The Brickyards, a shopping center under construction on Chicago's Northwest side.

Such centers will draw away business from neighborhood retailers, Saks said, "and as a retail area goes, the neighborhood will go, too."

And, Saks said, "if you lose the city, you'll have no suburbs."

High taxes, rent controls targets of Realtor attacks

Higher taxes, increased government regulation, rent controls and public financing of congressional elections are targets against which Realtors have set their sights.

The policy positions were passed at the 70th convention of the National Assn. of Realtors, which met recently in Miami Beach, Fla.

The 15,000 Realtors and Realtor-Associates, representing the 554,000-member N.A.R., also voted the support fair housing and assistance for low-income families and urban rehabilitation.

THE REALTORS also elected executive officers and 196 persons for the organization's board of directors, including three men from the Northwest suburbs.

Ralph Martin, of William L. Kunkel & Co., Des Plaines; and Jack V. Keller, of F-B-K Realtors, and M. Edward Smith, of Smith-Pipenhagen Inc. Realtors of Arlington Heights, will be three of the seven persons representing the 27,000-member Illinois Assn. of Realtors.

Smith and Martin also are former presidents of the Illinois Assn. of Realtors, and Keller, a former president of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

Martin echoed the sentiments expressed in the Realtors' statement of policy, saying a recent Stanford University survey showed 20 per cent of housing costs are due to government red tape.

ADDITIONALLY, while in past years a developer obtained approval for a proposed subdivision in 60 to 90 days, today the waiting period extends up to 18 months, Martin said.

"These are the kinds of things we're dealing with at all levels of government, and people wonder why homes cost 10 per cent more each year," he said.

Jack V. Keller

Ralph Martin

M. Edward Smith

During the convention, Raymond J. Howar, vice chairman of the Realtors' Ad Hoc Committee on Rent Control, warned participants that rent controls result in deterioration, condominium conversions, shortages in the supply of rental units, declining property values and difficulties in obtaining financing.

By putting a ceiling on rents, local governments make management of rental properties economically impractical, Howar said.

"RENT CONTROLS do not eliminate shortages," he said. "They tend to aggravate them by restricitng supply. Return on investment falls off, and risk becomes too great to compensate builders, lenders and owners."

The N.A.R., which maintains a political action committee fund to support selected candidates for U.S. House and Senate seats, also voted to oppose public financing of congressional elections.

The policy statement said, "Public financing, in whole or in part, inevitably leads to the elimination of private contributions . . ."

The organization voted to support fair housing, "regardless of race, color, religion, national origin or sex," and to support government-subsidized programs that guarantee decent housing for low-income families.

Officers elected to head the N.A.R. included Tom Grant Jr., of Tulsa, Okla., president; Donald I. Hovde, of Madison, Wis., first vice president; and Alvin Wolff, of Spokane, Wash., treasurer.

Condo law to hike prices: builders

by MARCIA STEPANEK

CHICAGO (UPI) — A new set of laws to give legal relief to consumers plagued by shoddy condominium construction and shady sales deals could mean increased housing costs for the consumer, one of the state's leading condominium developers says.

"There's no such thing as a free lunch — with any kind of so-called consumer legislation," said Harold Miller, a developer with the First Condominium Development Co. of Chicago.

"Although these new laws will fortunately benefit the consumer, they will cause some problems for the developer which very likely will be passed on to the consumer in the form of higher prices," he added. "It's no different than anything else."

THE 19-BILL package, signed into law last week by Gov. James R. Thompson, revamps the state's 15-year-old Condominium Property Act in an effort to provide legal protection to owners of some 50,000 condominium units now being built or converted in the Chicago area. Thompson aides have estimated there are 25,000 such units elsewhere in the state, including many in Rockford, Peoria and Springfield.

Miller, a member of the Chicago Bar Association's condominium subcommittee, said one measure in the package — requiring that tenants be given 120 days' notice before their apartments are converted into condominiums — will slow condominium sales and shrink the dollars immediately available to developers.

Home insulation plan in trouble

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Investigation indicates President Carter's drive to insulate nine out of every 10 American homes by 1985 may run afoul of rising prices, inadequate supplies and low quality insulation products.

Gerald Tebeau, an economist with a House energy subcommittee, says the home insulation market is already hardpressed to meet the demands of energy-conscious homeowners.

Studies conducted for the government indicate the spate of energy legislation proposals still pending before Congress will aggravate this problem and, without careful preparation, will increase the hasty, unregulated production of poor quality insulation.

"IN SOME WAYS, they (the insulation proposals) could become sort of a pipe dream if not properly implemented," Tebeau said.

The energy legislation proposals include federal tax credits, grants and loans designed to persuade Americans to insulate their homes.

There is a program to determine the energy efficiency of schools, hospitals and public buildings. There are programs to test new energy approaches in government buildings.

But Tebeau said production of mineral fiber insulation is already straining the capacity of existing plants.

SUPPLIERS OF NEW types of insulation, with new ways to install them, are rushing into business at a clip that raises serious quality-control questions.

The National Assn. of Home Builders also called insulation shortages "a national problem" in a recent report saying, "As far as we can determine, all manufacturers are shipping on an allocation basis. They are taking on no new customers."

A study conducted by ICF Inc. suggested excessive demand might inflate prices, at least in the short run, and said that would "negate or partially offset any positive effects the tax credit might provide."

Tebeau said accurate data on what has happened to insulation prices so far "is confused and hard to come by," with some sources contending they have multiplied and others claiming little change.

MORE IMPORTANT, he said, is the need to pay more attention to quality and safety standards in home insulation products, an aspect largely neglected so far.

He cites "horror stories" about untrained installers working with potentially harmful chemicals; about experimentation with turning such things as ordinary newspaaper into insulation; about the lack of standards for some products.

"The only way we may be able to get people to insulate, something we want them to do, is with some standards or guideliees to ensure quality," Tebeau said.

He said several federal agencies are examining possibiities for establishing quality-control regulations.

and Springfield-area developers said the result of this measure alone could hike the price of a condominium an average 2 per cent statewide, or by $1,200 on a $60,000 unit.

"It's like a grocery store," Miller said. "If you are one day told not to sell your goods as fast as you like, you simply won't make as much money as you did before.

"PEOPLE WILL LINE up at the counter and get angry, and so will you because your cash on hand will be cut and not your expenses," he said.

Rep. Arthur Telscer, R-Chicago, and Sen. John Merlo, D-Chicago, sponsors of the package, generally disagree.

"Sure, there's going to be a developer here and there who feels he doesn't want any legislation to interfere with his business and will pass some of the cost on to the customer," Telscer said. "But I really don't think prices will be hiked that much if this kind of thing happens at all."

Telscer said he and Merlo saw the need for such legislation during a rapid increase in condominium conversions along Chicago's lakefront "Gold Coast" several years ago.

"THE CONSUMER desperately needs these laws lest he be displaced or pay extraordinary assessments because of poor construction," Merlo said.

Also included in the package, effective Jan. 1, are measures to:

- Give condominium owner groups the right to seek redress against the developer on behalf of an individual owner.
- Prevent developers from charging the original tenants a higher purchase price than new tenants on buildings slated for conversion.
- Require the deposit of a potential buyer to be held in escrow until the building is completed in order to prevent developers from scrapping the conversion project and pocketing the deposit.

Some tips on constructing a wall

Herman Baum

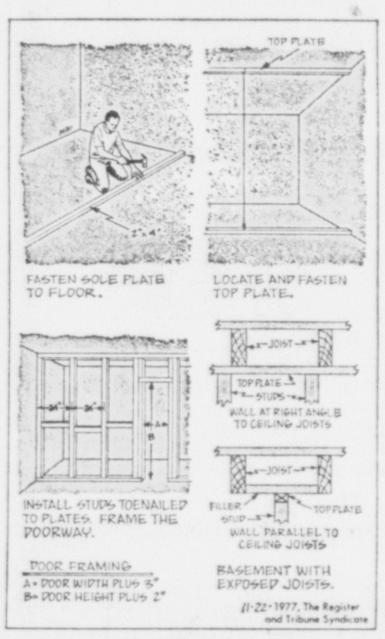
The house doctor

I want to erect a wall across my basement to isolate the area containing the furnace and the laundry tubs. At some later date, I want to finish off the remainder as a play area. I may need additional help from you later, but, for the present, please give me some pointers on the construction of this wall. — R. W. L.

I cannot give you all the information you probably want because there isn't enough space in a newspaper column. Since the erection of the wood framing for this wall is the most difficult part of the job, I will explain this. However, I must omit the installation of the wall covering. This construction is not confined to basements, but may be used in garages, attics or any area in your home where a dividing wall is required.

The entire wall framing is built of 2-by-4-inch lumber. Long pieces will be needed for the top and sole plates, but short pieces, usually 8-footers, are used for the studs. If you place a door in the wall, two studs will be needed on each side of the opening.

The first part of the job is to secure the sole plate to the floor. Special hardened concrete nails will accomplish this over a concerte floor. With the sole plate in position, a plumb line is ued to determine the top plate location. Where ceiling joists are exposed and the top plate is to run at right angles to the joists, the plate is nailed directly to the joists. Filler pieces between the joists must be used where the plate is parallel to the joists. On a plastered ceiling, the top plate is secured in place with toggle bolts.



The first stud is placed in contact with one wall and nailed to the plates. The center of the second stud is placed 24 inches from the wall. Remaining studs are located 24 inches apart center-to-center.

When a doorway is to be placed in the wall, the distance from the last stud to the door framing may be 24 inches or less. Note that the sole plate is removed from the door opening. The horizontal pieces shown midway between the studs may be omitted except where plywood is to be used as a wall surface.

W. W. — Stucco will not bond to the type of concrete block walls used on your home. The walls must first be covered with a special wire mesh and the stucco is applied over this.

Mrs. J. M. R. — Single-lever faucets cannot be permanently guaranteed against leaking, but they do not contain washers and valve seats in the same sense as do the faucets you now have and will give far better service than the faucets where washers must be changed frequently.

H. C. — Concrete hardeners are available at building supply stores. These can be painted over your garage floor to eliminate the dusting problem.

We recently bought a new home and found the pine siding is so badly cracked we can see the insulation in the walls. What can we do to protect the insulation? — Mrs. S. G.

If you are the first occupants of this house, you need to use drastic persuasion and perhaps threats of legal action unless the builder replaces the damaged siding. In any other case, you can have the siding replaced, or fill the cracks with caulking and paint over this. Expect to repeat this second option every few years, however.

What is the easiest and most effective way to remove old wallpaper? — L. B. G.

The easiest way is to use one of the wallpaper steamers you can rent from some stores that sell wallpaper. The salesperson should be able to instruct you in its operation. The only other method is to wet the wallpaper with a garden sprayer, a sponge, or any other method that you choose. Sufficient water must be applied to soak through the paper and soften the paste. The process is slow.

You suggested the use of toilet bowl cleaner to remove rust stains from concrete. I tried this. Not only did the rust stains remain, but I have a blue stain around them. — Mrs. H. F. R.

Some time ago, I suggested a complicated formula for the removal of rust stains, using chemicals not readily available. Several readers responded by telling me about the use of toilet bowl cleaner, which was news to me. I tried it on a rust stain on my driveway. It completely removed the stain but left a large white area. This, however, darkened to match the surrounding concrete in a week or two. I have no explanation for your problem.

In the past, I found that paint will not hide a water stain on my plastered ceiling. The stain always shows through. What is the answer? — Mrs. M. B.

A water stain must be first painted with shellac which acts as a sealer. Paint over this and the stain will not bleed through.

Our playroom has a concrete floor in contact with the earth. The concrete was covered with a vinyl tile and then with carpet installed over a foam pad. The carpet buckled so badly that one may actually trip over it. If I put down new carpet, can anything be done so this will not happen again? — B. R.

A concrete floor should always be placed over a complete vapor barrier. Either this was omitted or it was poorly done and is ineffective. Moisture is penetrating the concrete to cause this trouble. Correcting this condition will be a very expensive job. I suggest you omit the carpet or settle for a few small throw rugs.

Here's a guide to rent and your take-home pay

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

What works for one person is a total failure for another. And nowhere is this more apparent than in money management.

What is that old rule of thumb regarding monthly rent and weekly salary? And is that net or gross? We can never make ends meet, so we're trying to re-budget rent, food and so forth. We are both working and have one child. — Mrs. E. M.

How much house do you feel you can afford? Well, scrap that figure — it's probably way out of line.

The rule of thumb I assume you refer to is the one about not paying out more than one week's salary (gross) per month for rent. How applicable it is today, though, is a horse of another color. If major utilities are included, the figure probably still holds; if they aren't you would be on much safer ground figuring that you should pay no more than one-fourth your monthly take-home pay in rent.

Another commonly held rule (normally used in computing how much house you can afford to buy — but still applicable here) is "The Rule of 60." This maintains that your total monthly expenses — in this case your rent, plus any utilities not picked up by the landlord and the insurance on your household belongings — should not exceed your annual gross income divided by 60.

Thus, if your annual gross income is $12,000, you shouldn't be paying more than $200 a month for rent and the other expenses mentioned above.

I read about vacation home swapping sometime a few weeks ago, either in your column or some magazine. How does this thing work? — — Mr. S. A. U.

I did a piece on it about two years ago. And unfortunately, I can't dredge up a word of it now.

And yet, I can almost recite it all — a New York-based company that arranges "swaps" between vacationing families in different parts of the country (and world).

Let's hope that our mutual bafflement flushes out someone who can give us an address (I'll save your letter pending the day). In the meantime, pick the part of the country where you would like to arrange a swap of vacation housing, find out the name of the local newspaper and run a "standing" classified advertisement.

How binding is an agreement with a real estate salesman? We put up our house for sale a month or so ago (with no results and with precious little advertising by the broker). Since then, a man transferred here by my company has become interested in our home. We had him and his wife out for dinner a few nights ago, and they now want to buy it. With the help of a lawyer-friend we could wind the whole deal up in a couple of days, so we don't need the broker. How do we get out of this gracefully? — Mr. L. T.

Over someone's dead body, I'm afraid. Unless your agreement with the real estate broker has run out, he is still your appointed representative in any sale of the home. Even if he happens to be out of state when it's consummated, he's still entitled to his commission. You might as well turn the deal over to your broker.

Can I sell a small home I own to my son and daughter-in-law for "$1 and other considerations"?

Sure, but it doesn't get you off the hook with the Internal Revenue Service, which is inclined to look on it as a gift to the son and may also "impute" an interest on the "sale" to you whether you actually receive it or not.

Kemmerly offers real estate class

The Kemmerly Real Estate Academy will conduct a course in real estate transactions Tuesday and Thursday nights beginning Dec. 6 in Roselle.

The class will run eight weeks at the Kemmerly office, 1435 Roselle Rd., Roselle. Persons completing the course will receive 30 credit hours applicable to the requirements for taking the Illinois real estate salesman's or broker's licensing exams.

Tuition is $70, and covers tuition and materials costs.

For more information, call the academy's assistant director, Frank Caffrey, 358-5560, or Rolf Petersen, 893-5990.

Good realty year reported by 2 firms

Koenig & Strey Inc. and Quinlan and Tyson realty offices have reported healthy sales.

Koenig & Strey Realtors reported it set a sales volume record during October. Thomas W. Strey, co-principal, attributed most of the activity to residential sales in the North and Northwest suburbs.

Strey said his firm's commercial-industrial division also did more than $7 million in sales in October.

Quinlan and Tyson Realtors reported that at the end of its third quarter in 1977 it was 39 per cent ahead of the same period in 1976, with a gross dollar volume of $205 million in its residential sales division.

WHAT A LOVELY BEGINNING!

On the move

Tom Sroka

Kemmerly Real Estate announced the appointment of Tom Sroka as manager of Kemmerly's Schaumburg/Hoffman office.

Sroka, a 1976 million dollar seller in Kemmerly's Hanover Park office, is rapidly approaching the million dollar mark in 1977. He obtained his broker's license in June of this year. He was formerly associated with the Hoffman Rosner Corp. Sroka resides in Hanover Park with his wife Donna.

Maria Novak

Maria Novak joined T. A. Bolger Realtors as a sales associate in the Schaumburg office. She has successfully completed the 300-your training course.

Prior to joining Bolger Realtors, Mrs. Novak was a supervisor for G.T.E. Automatic Electric in Northlake. She and her husband have lived in the Northwest suburbs for four years and reside in Streamwood.

Don Scott joined the sales staff of ERA Behrens & Zaun, Realtors in Palatine.

He formerly was an international marketing executive based in Hong Kong and Singapore. His 15-year career included assignments throughout Europe and Latin America. A University of Illinois graduate, Scott will counsel overseas transferees on moves to and from the United States as part of his ERA Behrens & Zaun responsibilities.

Scott, his wife Karen and their two children reside in Palatine, where he is vice president-elect of the Lake Park Estates Homeowners Assn.

In the news

Great American Homes, Elk Grove Village, announced today that it has purchased the Fortune Companies' "Professional Real Estate Technique in Action," a video sales training program in use throughout the United States and Canada.

Robert M. Hall, training director, of Great American Homes, said that this new service "will benefit our clients by helping us provide an even greater degree of professionalism and knowledge while assisting the public in buying and selling property. We want to give the people of the Northwest area the best real estate service possible, and by acquiring this exciting new program, we are joining a family of over 300 outstanding real estate companies."

Steve Brown, one of North America's professional sales trainers and management consultants, is featured in the program acquired by Great American Homes. Brown also conducts intensive management training sessions for professional real estate people. Robert Hall and Frank Ramljak of Great American attended the session in Chicago.

Harold Blitenthal, broker associate in the Elk Grove Village office of Gladstone Realtors, has been named sales associate for the month of October.

Blitenthal, a graduate of Roosevelt High School, has completed courses in Leadership Techniques and Gladstone's Salesmanship Workshop. He is a resident of Mount Prospect.

"Salesperson of the Month" awards for October have been presented to nine sales associates at ERA Behrens & Zaun, Realtors.

Awarded for selling the most real estate in respective offices during the month were:

Ruth Sawyer, Palatine, Rosanne Willman, Arlington Heights; Ruth Walker, Mt. Prospect; Vivian Mattix, Schaumburg; Gloria Moore, Buffalo Grove and Rosemary Concotelli, Streamwood.

The job of municipal plan boards

Though most people are aware of the fact that cities have plan commissions, many are a little (or more) "fuzzy" about their functions.

We had a little party at our house last night and a couple of the men were rehashing a story that had appeared in our local newspaper a few days ago about some machinations going on within the city planning commission. I was too embarrassed to admit that, though I always knew we had such a body, I never really was aware of what they actually do.

I know you were chairman of the city plan commission not too long ago, so I think you'd be the perfect person to explain it to me. — Not too bright.

You're absolutely right. Many people have very little idea of the complexity of duties of a city plan commission. It requires preparation and adoption of a master plan that is subject to final approval by municipal authorities.

Many plans put into effect in the past are now obsolete. Present needs, purposes and desires have changed. City planning concerns itself mainly with remaking present metropolitan areas because, for one reason or another, they may no longer conform with the ideas of a desirable city pattern.

City planning is affected by the degree of public interest shown, cooperation of property owners, and the degree to which the interest and cooperation can be put in to a program that meets with the approval of the legislative and administrative bodies of a city and its courts.

Among the many, many tasks of a plan commission are the formulation of zoning regulations, the preparation of an official city map, preparation of platting regulations, study of water and sewage requirements, transit and transportation problems, public utilities and their expansion, public building expansion, recreation facilities and many more.

I hope you're a little less "fuzzy" about the functions of a city plan commission than you were, even though this has, of necessity, been just a meager explanation.

My brother and I are both real estate brokers. We've always gotten along well and we decided to pool our resources and open our office together. Naturally, we have retained the services of a lawyer, even though we trust each other. Besides, there are things that need doing for which we are not equipped.

I am wondering, and I don't want to ask this to our lawyer in my brother's presence (because he'll think I don't trust him), in what ways an agency can be terminated.

Can you tell me? — Just want to know.

An agency can be terminated several ways. First, by agreement of the parties. It can be terminated by death or incapacity of either party. Also, by the terms of the contract, insolvency or bankruptcy, operation of law or renunciation of either party.

My brother-in-law and I invested in three brownstones that have six apartments each. We renovated, put in new kitchens and are getting good rentals.

Naturally, we took out insurance from our broker. He is trying to talk us also into taking what he calls "business interruption insurance." My brother-in-law and I never heard of such a thing. We're wondering if he's trying to "take" us.

Bernard Meltzer

On real estate

Have you ever heard of it, and if so, it is necessary? —Maybe overly cautious.

Yes, I have heard of it. It covers indirect losses to real property. Most people are obviously aware of the need for insurance against direct loss, but do not understand the seriousness of indirect losses.

These losses are those which occur from interruption of business due to damage to the property, loss of income from rents or rental value, contingent losses from business interruption, added expense incurred in order to conduct business or maintain a home, or loss of leasehold or excess rental value because of cancellation of a lease after destruction of the leased property.

Policies written to cover these are not merely business interruption insurance, but each provides coverage against every risk. Therefore, they are usually entitled contingent business interruption insurance, rents and rental value insurance, leasehold interest insurance, extra expense insurance, as well as business interruption insurance.

We've been in our house for only 13 months. I just noticed that there are cracks developing between the bricks on the outside of the house. It's only seven years old, and I'm wondering what's causing it and what can be done about it. — Did I get a lemon?

This problem must have started before you noticed it recently. During the heating season building materials tend to dry and shrink. Then, in the summer, when it's hot and humid, building materials absorb and swell.

As you know, houses also settle, which puts a strain on walls, foundations and ceilings. Therefore, cracks develop. But this can be overcome by filling those cracks with what is known as caulking. Caulking is a soft material with the consistency of putty. Properly applied, a good caulking material will remain elastic for an indefinite period. It will keep out heat, cold, moisture, dirt and dust.

Our heater needs a new thermostat, so my next door neighbor says. He was helping me get everything in the basement straightened out for the winter onslaught. We've never replaced one before, and we have been living in this house for 17 years.

Must I call in a repairman, or is it a job you think I can do? I'm not the handiest guy in the world, but neither am I all thumbs. —Want to save money.

Since thermostats are precision instruments, they usually give years of trouble-free service. Replacing an existing thermostat is not a difficult job. I'm sure you can do it. Installation instructions will be included when you purchase the new thermostat.

4 leases signed at Plaza Del Prado

Four new lease agreements have been signed at the Plaza del Prado Shopping Center under construction in Glenview.

The 32-store facility, at Pfingsten and Willow roads, will be anchored by a 60,000-square-foot Jewel-Osco store.

Latest leases include those for a McDonald's Restaurant, the Meryle's Hallmark Card Place, The Bagel Nosh Deli and the Chicken Coop food carryout.

Leases are expected to be signed with an ice cream parlor, a gift shop, a women's apparel store, a junior women's apparel shop, a women's shoe store, a sporting goods store, a children's clothing store and a dry cleaner.

Plaza del Prado is scheduled to open next spring. Ken Tucker & Associates, Skokie, is handling the development, leasing and management of the shopping center.

Offices going up on Algonquin Road

Construction is under way on the first phase of the Salt Creek Office Center, a development of one-story office buildings in Schaumburg.

Four buildings are being built at Ill. Rte. 53 and Algonquin Road, and will total 47,000 square feet. Office units ranging in size from 600 to 13,000 square feet will be available.

The entire complex will total 125,000 square feet.

Leasing agents are Cornes & Nielsen Inc., Park Ridge. Architect and general contractor is P. Donald Johnson, also of Park Ridge. Financing was by New England Mutual Life Insurance Co.

YEAR OLD CEDAR RANCH, beautifully landscaped on 1 acre, minimum maintenance, quality construction describes this 3 bdrm., 2½ bath, lg. family room w/fireplace and glass sliders with a view of Tower Lake. Basement finished except for carpeting.

Capital's slums staging comeback —but at a price

by GREGORY GORDON
Second of two parts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jack Sharkey says he once was "the poorest one on the block" in a rundown northeast section of the nation's capital, holed up in a decaying building for seven months with a sleeping bag and a shotgun.

Now he may be the richest, selling for big profits the homes he bought and rebuilt near the scene of some of the country's worst rioting of 1968.

Sharkey doesn't call himself a speculator. He refers to himself as a "renovator" or a "developer."

WHATEVER THE term, he is marketing property he bought for $3,000 to $5,000 in 1974 as $65,000 to $80,000 townhouses, land records show. Sharkey's contracting company has been involved in the remodeling of nearly 20 of the 44 houses on one block of Linden Place NE about a mile and a half from the U.S. Capitol.

He is among a horde of private investors and real estate figures who are capitalizing on an astonishing renaissance in the nation's capital, the first big city to turn predominantly black in the 1950s and 1960s.

Now the inner city poor in the District of Columbia are witnessing a major influx of young, middle-income families to neighborhoods once avoided as hotbeds of crime.

"Nobody dared go over to Linden Place," Sharkey recalled. "This little corner over here was one of the top three crime points in the police districts in the entire city. I took up residence with a sleeping bag and a shotgun.

"THERE WERE always two to three dozen of the hardest characters in the city milling around the compound. We ran people out of here at gunpoint several times. The decent people appreciated it . . . Very frankly, I saw this as an opportunity to do something relevant."

Up to the early 1970s, only a few men had the financial foresight to buy the row houses near the Capitol or Embassy Row in the near northwest. Suddenly, buying and renovating the "shell" of a Victorian or Georgian home became a madness. Prices skyrocketed.

An aide to a cabinet member bought and renovated two shells side-by-side, and put a swimming pool in the back yard; Sen. S. I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., paid $183,000 for a finished home within walking distance of the Capitol; scores of House and Senate aides paid $30,000 for homes that soon were worth twice that or more once rehabilitated; a State Dept. employe put up $57,000 for a house in Sharkey's block.

Georgetown, a once all-black area that went through the renovation phenomenon during the New Deal, now is neighborhood for the chic and the wealthy. Prices there still are rising.

"WE'VE HAD MORE house sales in the first six months of this year over $300,000 in Georgetown that we had over the last four years," said Don Beach, a District assessment official.

The comeback of slum neighborhoods is a bright spot for a troubled city, but it carries a price. Real estate speculators and developers fighting for property have displaced thousands of low income renters, leaving them homeless.

Sharkey says the buildings he bought on Linden Place were abandoned andhe bumped no one out of the homes he renovated. His neighbors are not so sure. And certainly there are others who deal in real estate who cannot make that claim.

Rosa Carter, a 67-year-old widow, was pushed out of the $82.50-a-month apartment where she lived for 22 years. When she told the new owner all she had was Social Security and senior citizens benefits and could not afford to move, she said he offered her $250 "to get out."

"MOST EVERY DAY or every other day they called wanting to know

Capital's slums staging comeback

when I was going to get out," she said. "Then they started to put up iron bars across most of the houses. They looked like they were trying to lock us in."

What she saw were iron security grates over doors and windows on some of the 26 houses an ambitious speculator bought in one block of Seton Street NW — for prices averaging $15,000. The houses later were priced at $57,000 and up.

As the low-income renters were evicted, a community group inquired if they had been offered first chance to buy the homes as is required under a District law. Few had. The Adams-Morgan Organization took the battle to court, and nine families were able to buy back houses from the speculator for about $17,000 each.

Mrs. Carter was not among them. She now pays 50 per cent more rent each month in a still unrenovated nearby area.

MARY LONG, a welfare mother, had a crueler exit.

She recalls the fright of her three children while rats crawled up and down the walls of their old apartment.

"All of us had to sleep in one bed because after the rats came the kids would not sleep in a bed by themselves," she said. "The rats chewed up all the walls. I was frightened myself."

Mrs. Long said the rest of the building was falling apart, too, when her landlords sold it. And the new owner wanted her out so he could rehabilitate.

"THE SINK fell down and I didn't have anything but the tub to use," she said. "He just wouldn't fix it up. He wouldn't do nothing . . . I had no choice but to move."

Her rent soared from $89.50 a month to $200 a month, leaving her almost no money for other necessities.

"The poor go grudingly, indeed. They would not leave at all if they could avoid it," says Carl Holman, president of the National Urban Coalition, which supports the back-to-the-city movement but sees displacement as an increasing problem.

Holman believes city officials should bear some of the blame for the displacement problem, charging they may be in "collusion" with some real estate operators.

IN SOME CASES where speculators are trying to convince low-income families to sell their houses, he says "there is a sudden rash of inspections and pressure on code violations."

"And where the city is not in absolute collusion, there is a very interesting hands-off approach that allows the speculators to freely do what they want to do. They let people buy these houses from these low-income people for too little."

With a small sale price, he said, "How can an elderly person go out and buy similar housing anywhere?"

District officials have begun to recognize that displacement could have a massive impact.

BEN GILBERT, director of the District's Municipal Planning Office, acknowledges that "there are signs of a back-to-the-city movement."

"I don't think it has reached a size that you could say it's something that's going to overwhelm. But it is occurring."

He cites a slowdown in the rate of population decline. Although the total population of the District has dropped from 750,000 to 710,000 since 1970, Gilbert predicts that by 1985 it will be back up to 750,000 in spite of a housing market so tight only 2 per cent of the units are vacant.

The limited market makes it all the more difficult for displaced families to find a home.

"WE'RE NOT unaware of the problem," Gilbert says. "We're quite sensitive and trying to be responsive."

He says Mayor Walter Washington has recommended that the city set aside $1 million to finance purchases of homes by low-income persons, and the city council has approved two "circuit breakers" mechanisms to give property tax breaks to the elderly and poverty line homeowners faced with sudden assessment rises because of neighborhood rehabilitation.

Beach says rehabilitation work also gives long-time residents a chance to profit by selling out, but other officials argue that unless the poor are allowed to keep the homes they've got, they will not be able to meet payments on a new house.

The Urban Coalition urges that the federal government encoucage low-interest mortgage loans to help low-income families buy or rehabilitate the homes they are in.

ABANDONED houses should be bought by HUD and sold to needy families, the Coalition says, and special counseling programs should be set up in the affected neighborhoods.

A few real estate agents are concerned about displacement too.

One, Mary Haber, says she has spent "weeks and weeks" helping families she displaced find a new place to live, loaning some families as much as $800 to $1,000 of her own money to pay moving expenses or down payments.

"They didn't trust me at first," she says. "You can walk down the block and feel the resentment."

But John Jones, executive director of the Adams-Morgan Organization, says the problem should be met by stopping evictions instead of trying to find new homes for displaced residents.

Concludes Holman: "We're back to the old game of creating new minighettos. And either all the real estate people and the speculators and the banks and savings and loans are going to have to be more 'born again to Jimmy' or else we're going to have to say, 'Whoa. The government has got to step in."

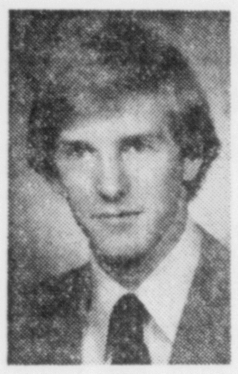
Million dollar club

Lillian Kurz



Glenn Keller

Century 21 Arlington Realty announced the names of four more sales associates who have reached the $1 million mark in residential sales for 1977.

They are Helen Lambdin of the Palatine office, and Esther Voise, Glenn Keller and Lillian Kurz, all with the firm's North Arlington Heights office.

This represents the fifth time Mrs. Kurz has participated in sales exceeding $1 million and the third consecutive year, making her eligible for the Lifetime Million Dollar Club with the Illinois Assn. of Realtors as well as MAP Multiple Listing Service. She is a graduate of the Realtors Institute (G.R.I.) and has been with Century 21 Arlington Realty since 1965 with career sales in excess of $12 million.

For Mrs. Voise it is the second year in a row she has participated in sales of more than $1 million. She has completed two-thirds of her G.R.I. requirements and is an Arlington Heights resident.

Keller reached the million dollar mark his first full year in real estate. He lives in Hoffman Estates and attended the University of Illinois. He is a graduate of the Century 21 Sales Academy.

Mrs. Lambdin joined the firm in 1975 and has been a resident of the area for the past 30 years. She is a retired school teacher in the Arlington Heights system.

Solar energy seminar in capital

"How to Get Into the Solar Business . . . Successfully," will be the topic of three days of seminars Monday through Wednesday in Washington, D.C.

The event will be sponsored by Solar Outlook, a newsletter of the solar industry. Seventeen representatives of the industry will speak at the conference.

Registrants also will have the opportunity to speak individually with solar suppliers. Appointments for one-on-one discussions must be scheduled in advance.

Topics of seminars will include business outlooks, fundamentals, sunrights, marketing, advertising, solar uses in new and existing construction and solar legislation.

Fee for the three days is $225, and includes participation in all group sessions, personal conferences with exhibitors, breakfasts and luncheons, cocktail reception and materials.

Lodging has been reserved at the hotel in which the event is scheduled, the Sheraton Park Hotel.

To register contact Solar Outlook, 1054 31st St., N.W., Washington, D.C., 20007.

Income tax changes rapped by S&L exec

Income tax changes apparently under consideration by the Carter administration, which would require financial institutions to withhold tax payments from the savings account interest earned by savers, were labeled as "old and discredited" ideas by the newly elected president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations.

Stuart Davis last week, also warned that proposals that would limit the amount of mortgage interest payments homeowners could deduct on their income tax forms would set a "terrible precedent."

The league is the largest trade organization serving the $446 billion savings and loan business.

DAVIS, WHO WILL serve as the savings and loan business' chief national spokesman during his one-year term as league president, also is chairman and chief executive officer of both Great Western Savings and Loan Assn. of Beverly Hills, Calif., and its Great Western Financial Corp. parent.

Davis acknowledged that "we do not know just what the Carter administration tax program finally will be like." But he said that reports indicated that the savings and loan business and its customers will face at least three important issues.

In addition to proposals relating to income tax withholding and a cap on the amount of mortgage interest homeowners can deduct, Davis said that plans to increase the savings and loan business' tax burden was the third issue.

Davis noted that "we view each of the ideas with concern, and we will have a considerable amount to say about them if they materialize in the months ahead."

IN PARTICULAR, Davis voiced the hope that plans to require all financial institutions to withhold tax money from interest payments to savers would be dropped by the administration.

"The withholding plan is an old and discredited idea" that Congress originally discarded in 1962, following "a huge number of protests," Davis said.

Davis labeled as "nonesnse" reports indicating that Treasury officials have proposed the withholding to capture tax money the federal government does not now get from tax-paying savers.

The IRS "already has begun a computer program intended to match federal tax returns with the 1099 forms financial institutions file" on all savings account interest payments of $10 or more, Davis said.

"Withholding should not be considered until this expanded program is tried," he said.

"ALL THIS proposal would do," Davis said, "is penalize millions of small, honest savers who already report their interest income."

Withholding savings account interest runs counter to Carter's stated hope of simplifying matters, Davis said. The proposal "would add greatly to confusion at tax time, particularly for millions of small, unsophisticated savers with modest balances who do not have — and cannot afford — professional tax counsel."

The savings and loan business, Davis said, is just as concerned about proposals which would limit the amount of mortgage interest payments homeowners could deduct on their income tax forms.

The deductibility of mortgage interest costs "is one of the things that has helped make the United States a nation of homeowners," Davis said.

"The encouragement of the private ownership of real estate has been a national policy for nearly 200 years. We see no benefit to changing any long-time national policy that has meant so much to so many families," he said.

DAVIS ALSO warned that plans to increase the savings and loan business' income tax burden by reducing its bad-debt deduction "will inhibit our ability to grow and support housing."

Davis said that the savings and loan business will pay almost $1 billion in federal income taxes in 1977, a "substantial growth-induced increase from the $775 million we paid last year and virtually double the income taxes we paid in 1975."

Davis said that an additional tax burden would "inhibit our ability to grow and support housing."

Home for handicapped under way in Roselle

Construction has started at a solar-heated, state-financed residential facility for the orthopedically handicapped in Roselle.

Sunrise Courts, developed and operated by the Ray Graham Assn., Addison, with a $755,000 mortgage loan from the Illinois Housing Development Authority, will be subsidized by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development under its Section 8 program.

Sunrise Courts will consist of seven one-story structures, joined by a common area and utilizing solar heat for part of its hot water and space heating needs.

IT WILL BE A transitional residence for 20 handicapped adults. Residents either will be independently employed or participate in training programs offered elsewhere by the Graham Assn.

Architect is Weese, Seegers, Hickey, Weese, of Chicago.

Installation of the solar heating system will be made possible by a grant of $108,652 issued under HUD's Solar Demonstration Program.

Section 8 subsidies will be allocated for lower-income persons, who will pay one-fourth of their income for rent, while the federal government makes up the balance.

Sunrise Courts is being built on a one-acre site in a residential neighborhood on Lawrence Avenue near Irving Park Road.

Versaille Builders is general contractor, Creative Systems Inc. is the engineering firm and Great Lakes Solar Engineering, the solar energy installer.

Arlington Office Park

Office complex for Meadows

Construction has started at the $3 million Arlington Office Park in Rolling Meadows.

The office complex, located on five acres on the northwest corner of Euclid Avenue and Rohlwing Road, will consist of five one-story buildings with 56,009 square feet of space.

Three buildings will contain 12,456 square feet, and two, 9,320 square feet. Three-quarters of the land at the project will contain parking for 235 vehicles and landscaping.

Coldwell Banker handled acquisition and mortgage financing and will be the exclusive leasing agent for the project, which is expected to be completed next spring.

The contractor is Power Contracting and Engineering Corp., Elmhurst, and the developer is Arlington Office Park Associates.

Million dollar club

THERESE SCHOEN, who was cited last year as achieving the highest cash earnings among all Baird & Warner suburban sales associates, has exceeded $2 million in sales volume for 1977.

Mrs. Schoen, who joined the company in 1975, has been a consistent million-dollar-a-year producer during the several years she has been active in residential sales. Last year she reached the $3 million mark.

She attended Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., and DePaul University in Chicago. She will complete her GRI requirements this December. Mrs. Schoen is a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, the Mt. Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club and Our Lady of the Wayside Church in Arlington Heights, where she, her husband, Donald, and their family reside.

Dear Friends,

I would like to take this opportunity to inform you that I am now on the sales staff at Woodfield Ford.

It has been a pleasure serving you over these past twenty-two years, and I have always appreciated the confidence that you have placed in me.

Your satisfaction with your car and with the Dealership is my first concern.

If I can be of any future assistance for any of your motoring needs, be it new, used or trucks, I would welcome the opportunity to serve you.

I would like to add that Woodfield Ford has a reputation for Honesty and Integrity towards all of their customers, and the Service department has won the Distinguished Service Citation every year that Woodfield Ford has been in business.

Again, Thanks and Pleasant Motoring,

Dick Halabrin

Sandwich delights– a tradition for centuries

The concept of the quick meal reaches back to the 18th century with the Earl of Sandwich. Rather than leave during a gambling session, the earl ordered his food brought to him between slices of bread. No one knows the results of the games but the wager this nobleman took with his dinner became a popular combination throughout the world.

In the United States, over 300 million sandwiches are served daily. Made with a variety of breads, the sandwich comes to life with the addition of meats, cheeses or fillings to suit even the simplest of tastes. These recipes are perfect choices for a hot meal since the sandwiches are baked or grilled.

Although the sandwiches call for salami or ham, you can substitute other meats, such as turkey or chicken, to use up those holiday leftovers. Include a cup of soup or crispy salad for a meal to win the flavor test at your house.

HERO SANDWICHES

Lettuce Slaw:

- 2 tablespoons plain yogurt
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- ½ teaspoon celery seed
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups shredded iceberg lettuce

Sandwich:

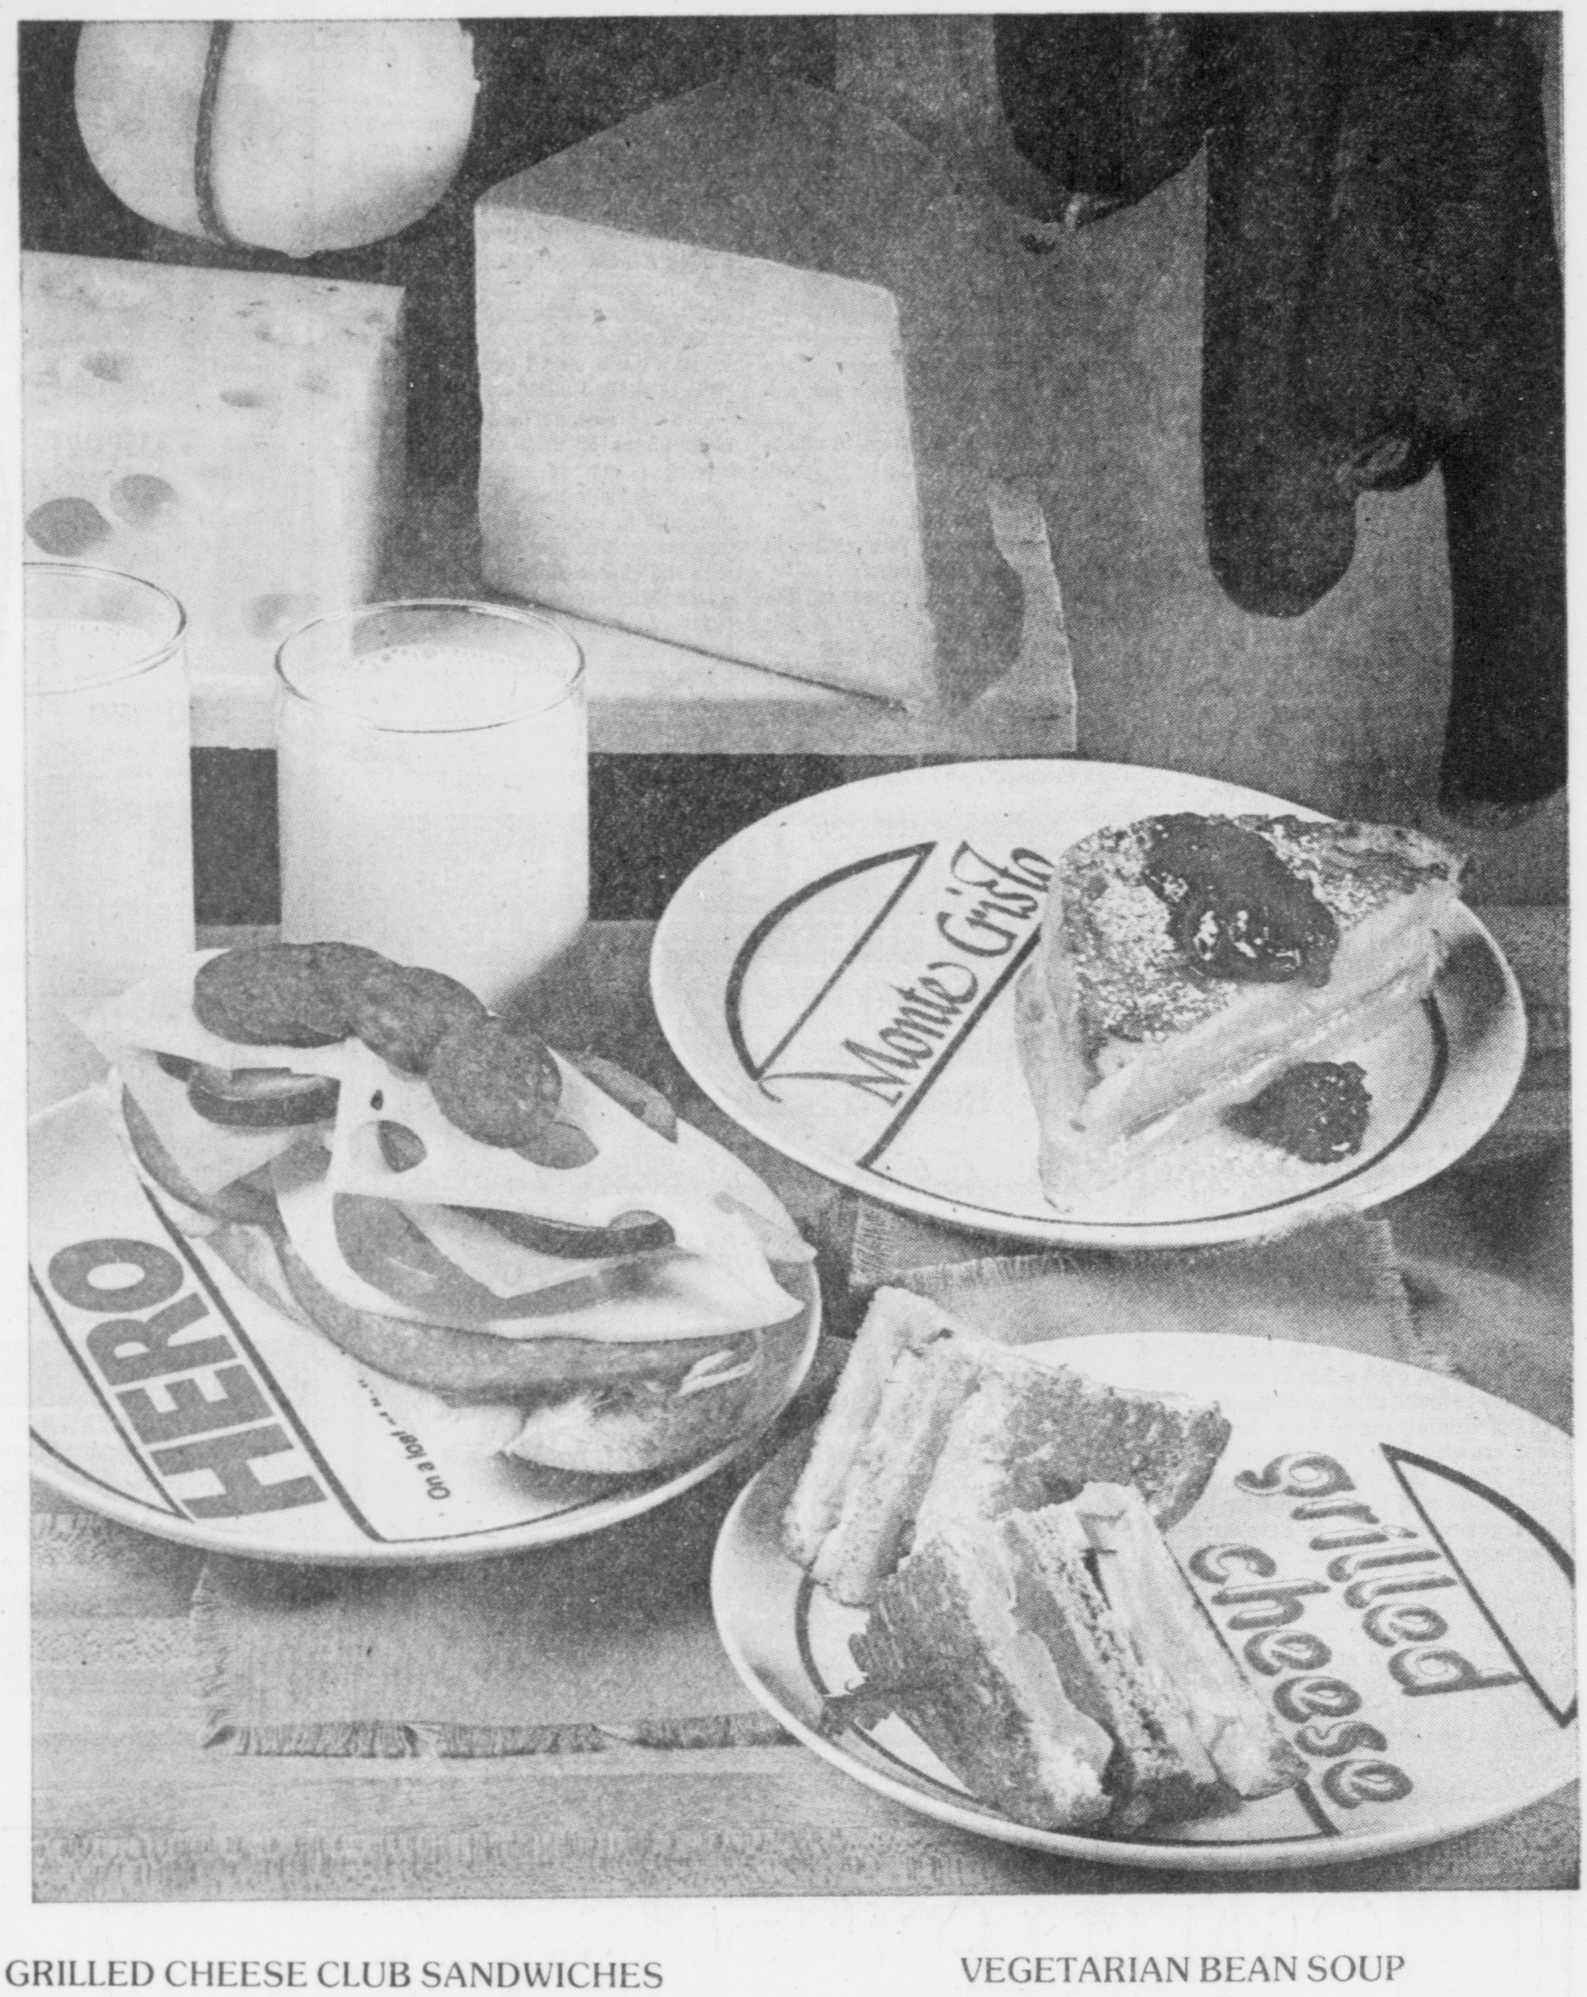
- 4 French bread sections (7 inches each)
- Butter, softened
- 4 slices salami, cut in half
- 4 slices Provolone cheese, cut in half
- 8 slices tomato
- 4 slices (1 ounce each) Cheddar cheese, cut in half
- 2 small green peppers, cut in rings
- 4 slices (1 ounce each) Swiss cheese, cut in half
- ½ pound pepperoni, sliced

For slaw, combine all ingredients. For each sandwich, slice 1 French bread section in half lengthwise. Butter bottom half of bread and cover with slaw. Top with 1 slice of salami, 1 slice of Provolone cheese, 2 slices of tomato, 1 slice of Cheddar cheese, 3 pepper rings, 1 slice of Swiss cheese and 3 slices of pepperoni. Butter top half of bread and close sandwich. Serve cold or wrap in foil and bake in preheated 350 degree oven 8 to 10 minutes or until cheese begins to melt. Serves 4.

MONTE CRISTO SANDWICHES

- 3 eggs, beaten
- ⅓ cup milk
- ½ cup butter, softened
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 12 slices white bread
- 6 slices (2 ounces each) Swiss cheese, cut in half
- 6 slices (1 ounce each) smoked cooked ham
- Confectioners' sugar
- Cherry preserves

Beat together eggs and milk; set aside. Beat together butter and mustard until well blended; spread on 1 side of each slice of bread. For each sandwich, top 1 slice of bread with 1 slice of cheese, 1 slice of ham, a second slice of cheese and a second slice of bread, butter side down. Dip each sandwich in egg mixture; brown on both sides on a lightly buttered griddle. Place on a cookie sheet and bake in a preheated 425 degree oven 8 to 10 minutes. To serve, slice each sandwich in half diagonally, sprinkle with sugar and top with a spoonful of preserves. Serves 6.



GRILLED CHEESE CLUB SANDWICHES

- 8 slices sandwich bread
- Butter, softened
- 4 slices whole wheat bread, toasted
- 8 slices process American cheese
- 1 large red onion, cut in rings
- 1 small cucumber, thinly sliced
- 1 large tomato, sliced
- 1 large green pepper, cut in rings

Butter 1 side of each slice of bread. Butter both sides of toast. For each sandwich, top 1 slice of bread with 1 slice of cheese, 4 onion rings, 4 cucumber slices, 1 slice of toast, 1 slice tomato, 2 green pepper rings, a second slice of cheese and a second slice of bread, butter side down. Butter outside of each sandwich. Brown on both sides on a lightly buttered skillet. Cover and cook just until cheese begins to melt. Serves 4.

VEGETARIAN BEAN SOUP

- 1 pound dry red kidney beans
- Water
- 2½ cups reserved bean liquid
- 2½ cups chopped onions
- 1 bay leaf
- 6 sprigs fresh parsley
- 2 whole cloves
- 1 teaspoon thyme
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 can (16 ounces) whole tomatoes
- 1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
- 2 cups pared cubed potatoes (¼ inch cubes)
- 2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

Rinse beans. Cover beans with water in 3-quart saucepan, cover, bring to a boil. Boil 2 minutes. Remove from heat; cover, cool. Refrigerate overnight. Drain, reserving liquid. Place beans in 3 quart slow-cooker. Add reserved bean liquid, onions, bay leaf, parsley, cloves, thyme, salt, pepper, tomatoes with liquid, tomato paste and cubed potatoes. Cook on setting recommended by manufacturer: medium to high for 6 hours. Stir in 1½ cups cheese just before serving. Garnish with remaining ½ cup cheese. Makes 2½ quarts.

CHEESE PUMPKIN SOUP

- 2 tablespoons butter
- ½ cup chopped green onions with tops
- 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- 2½ cups milk
- 1 cup canned condensed chicken broth, undiluted
- 1 can (16 ounces) pumpkin (2 cups)
- 1½ cups shredded Muenster cheese
- Sliced tomatoes
- Shredded Muenster cheese
- Chopped green onion

Melt butter in heavy saucepan; add onion and saute. Stir in flour, salt, nutmeg and cinnamon. Cook until smooth, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Gradually stir in milk and chicken broth. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Add pumpkin, blending thoroughly. Simmer 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Add cheese, stirring until melted. Bring to serving temperature over low heat. (Do not boil.) Garnish each serving with a tomato slice topped with shredded cheese and sprinkled with green onion. Makes 6 cups.

Macaroni, cheese offers inexpensive, quick meal

Eileen Kelly

Let's learn to micro-cook

Looking for a good substitute for meat? Try macaroni and cheese. The cheese is a good source of protein and also provides many nutrients found in meats — without the high price of meat.

Several cookbooks recommend cooking the noodles and the cheese sauce in the same dish at the same time. I have found this can result in a gooey product because of the starch given off by the noodles during the cooking. That's why I think it's best to cook the macaroni first.

It's up to you whether you do them in the microwave oven or on your regular burner. Give the microwave way a try. Many microwave cookbooks tell you that you'll probably do rice and noodles the conventional way. But I do them all in the microwave oven and you won't know where to stand on this all-important cooking question until you experiment!!!

To cook macaroni in the microwave oven: Use a 3-quart covered glass or non-metal casserole. Put 3 cups of water, 1 tablespoon cooking oil and 1 teaspoon salt in the casserole. Cover and microwave on high for eight minutes or till the water boils. Add 2 cups of elbow macaroni. Cover the casserole with the lid or plastic wrap. Microwave on "defrost" for about 10 minutes. Taste for tenderness; drain and rinse the macaroni with hot water.

There are about four steps to macaroni and cheese:

- Cook the noodles;
- Make the white sauce;
- Add the cheese of your choice to the sauce and stir till melted;
- Add the cheese sauce to the macaroni and heat.

MACARONI AND CHEESE

1 cup cooked macaroni
1 cup sauce
1 cup cheddar cheese, mild or sharp

Cook the noodles as suggested in the microwave oven or conventionally. While the noodles are draining, make the white sauce in the 3-quart casserole.

THE SAUCE

Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in casserole (about 1 minute on high). Blend in 2 tablespoon flour and dash of pepper and ½ teaspoon salt to make a paste. Add 1 cup of milk; mix well. Cook for 1 minute on high, stir.

Continue cooking on high for up to 2½ minutes or until sauce thickens. Stir in 1 cup of cubed or grated cheese and stir until it melts. If you like, add ¼ cup of chopped onions at this point. Mix the cooked macaroni with the cheese sauce. Cover the casserole. Microwave 4 minutes on high. Let stand 2 to 3 minutes covered before serving.

You needn't confine this dish to the cheese and pasta. Add pieces of hot dogs, bologna, ham or cooked sausage. Garnish with parsley-seasoned croutons or sliced tomatoes.

Holiday hints

Enriched white bread stars during the holidays as the basis for most stuffings or dressings. It blends well with any seasoning, acting as a "flavor grabber" to absorb the essences of the other ingredients.

To make the bread cubes you need, stack three or four slices of enriched bread. Cut the strips to desired width using a sawing action, with a serated knife. Then cut once again in opposite direction to make cubes of even size.

If the stuffing recipe calls for soft bread crumbs, tear slices of enriched white bread into small pieces with your fingers or a fork. Or quarter the slices and whirl them in an electric blender for a few seconds.

If you prefer to cook your turkey without stuffing, bake the dressing in a covered casserole at 325 to 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes. For a crunchy topping, remove the cover during the last 10 minutes.

The girl with the golden fingers,
The girl with the platinum nose,
The girl with the long blond hair,
That grows and grows and grows.

She's the girl who works in our deli,
She's the one who everyone knows,
The one who makes our caviar salad,
The kind that will curl your toes.

She makes our six-foot sandwich,
That's utterly divine,
A six-foot party sandwich,
The really high-class kind.

She barbecues your chicken,
She hot-bakes all the pies,
She never turns on the oven,
She does it with her eyes.

There's a lot more we could tell you,
But we won't talk behind her back,
It's time for you to come meet her,
And keep on coming back.

IT DOESN'T matter how much a turkey weighs, if you're on a shopping spree. Mrs. Jan Hasz of Mount Prospect won a $100 gift certificate from the Jewel Food Store at the Northpoint Shopping Center in Arlington Heights during the center's ninth anniversary celebration. In two minutes, she gathered $129 worth of food, all meat items except for a $2.98 package of nuts. Mrs. Hasz paid the $29 difference and is ready for her holiday feast.

Parish celebrates 75th year with recipe book

The women of St. James Parish, Arlington Heights, are celebrating the 75th anniversary of the parish with a cookbook of parish recipe favorites. The 600 recipes in the book were contributed by parishioners, says Dorothy Behls, co-chairwoman of the 12-member cookbook committee. Not only does the book offer a variety of recipes but also menu selections, which contributors also devised.

Members of the cookbook committee named the cookbook, the St. James Parish 75th Anniversary Cookbook, in honor of the anniversary, which was celebrated this month. Anyone wishing to order a cookbook may call Dorothy Behls at 392-5935 or Diane Moser at 259-9722.

Here's a winter meal duo perfect for the cold weather on the way.

Menu Selection: Winter-Day Supper of Split Pea Soup and Sweet Dark Rye Bread

SPLIT PEA SOUP WITH HAM

- 3 quarts water
- 2 cups split peas
- 3 stalks celery, chopped
- 2 medium potatoes, diced
- 1 tablespoon parsley
- 3 carrots, diced
- 1 to 2 cups ham, diced
- ham bone
- 1½ tablespoons salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper

Soak peas overnight according to package directions. Drain; put all ingredients in water and bring to boil. Cover and simmer for three to four hours. Stir occasionally. Cool slightly and put in a blender a few cups at a time. (Recipe from Jim Kadow)

SWEET-DARK RYE BREAD

- 3 cups All-purpose flour
- 2 packages dry yeast
- 1/8 to ¼ cup cocoa powder
- 1 tablespoon caraway seeds
- 2 cups water
- 1/3 cup molasses
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 3 to 3½ cups rye flour

In large bowl, stir all-purpose flour, yeast, cocoa powder and caraway seeds. Heat water, molasses, butter, sugar and salt, just until warm. Add to flour mixture. Beat at low speed for ½ minute then 3 minutes at high speed of mixer. By hand, stir in enough rye flour to make a soft dough. Turn onto floured surface and knead for five minutes. Cover; let rest 20 minutes. Punch down dough, Divide in half. Shape each half into an oblong loaf, place on greased cookie sheet. Brush loaves with oil. Slash tops of loaves with sharp knife. Let rise until double, about 45 to 60 minutes. Bake in a 400 degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Remove and cool on racks. (Recipe from Sue Koleczek.)

'Hot' punch for a cool day

Enjoy a delicious wine punch this holiday.

PUNCH AU VIN CHAUP

- 1 bottle (4/5 quart) French dry white wine
- ¼ cup sugar (or more to taste)
- 6 cinnamon sticks
- 8 whole cloves
- Peel of 1 orange
- Peel of 1 lemon

Combine all ingredients and simmer for 5 minutes. Strain mixture into heat-proof mugs. Serve hot with cinnamon sticks and strips of orange and lemon peel. (Optional: To flame drink, heat ½ cup armagnac or cognac to lukewarm in a large ladle. Set aflame and pour a little of the flaming brandy into each glass.)

Mastering deep fat frying easy with right equipment, technique

by JOYCE LOFSTROM
Food editor

Anyone who has deep-fat fried anything will probably admit to standing in a smoke-filled kitchen with visions of escaping to the nearest fast-food franchise where bags of golden fries await.

Don't let those rows of shoestring lovelies fool you. They look even more lovlies fool you. They look even more dazzling beneath the lights. Yet even the fast-food fryers begin with the basics and any cook can master the technique of deep-fat frying with practice and the right equipment.

Most cookbooks devote a page or section to this skill so check an all-purpose cookbook before beginning on any deep-fat frying adventure. It's better to take the extra time studying the method before frying instead of after, while redoing a bath of burnt doughnuts or potatoes.

THERE'S NO reason to avoid deep-fat frying if you don't have an electric fryer. Simply use a deep kettle, saucepan or skillet. No matter which piece of equipment you chose, invest in a wire basket. The basket allows more control because you can lower the food slowly into the fat, fry several small pieces and remove the food quickly in case the fat begins to splatter. When working with individual batter pieces, such as doughnuts or fritters, the slotted spoon works like a mini-basket on a handle allowing the fat to drip through as you remove each one.

The success of deep-fat frying depends in large part upon the temperature, a factor best judged by a frying thermometer. Available in hardware stores, the frying thermometer reaches higher temperatures than a meat thermometer and can be attached to the side of the pan. Although an electric fryer has the advantage of a built-in thermostat, it's best to check the temperature occasionally to insure proper frying and browning.

A temperature of 365 degrees is recommended for the best fried foods. If you don't have a frying thermometer, drop a one-inch square bread cube into the hot fat. The fat is at 365 degrees if the cube browns in 60 seconds.

Most oils have higher smoking points than shortenings but either can be used for deep-fat frying, says Kay Martin, assistant director of consumer affairs for Swift and Co. "It's a matter of what you are accustomed to doing."

A BOTTLE of vegetable oil will cost more than an equal amount of vegetable shortening, but the oil can be reused for frying more often than solid fat, says Ms. Martin. Overheating of either type of fat will shorten the frying life.

Fat breaks down when heated and should be refrigerated to insure freshness, says Ms. Martin. Any brown particles, which are pieces of burned food, should be removed during the cooking process. In addition, clarifying the fat will also increase the life and remove any unwanted food flavors. To clarify, heat the fat slowly and strain the fat while warm.

Shortening may be reused several times if it is strained and refrigerated. When reusing shortening, a small amount of fresh fat should be added.

Some oil, butter and margarine are not suitable for deep-fat frying because of their low smoking points. Corn oil, which has the highest smoking point of all vegetable oils, safflower and cottonseed oils are acceptable for deep-fat frying. Although high in polyunsaturated fats, soybean oil will foam when used for deep-fat cooking.

FOODS TO be fried should be at room temperature and blotted dry with a paper towel. Not all foods require coating, but moist vegetables, such as eggplant, onion and mushrooms and meats will. If the coating is not specified in the recipe, you can dip the food in water, milk or beaten egg and roll in cracker crumbs, flour or cereal flakes. For a nutty flavor, blend about ¼ to ½ cup of toasted wheat germ with the cereal.

Enough fat should be added to the container so the food will float. Fill any frying container no more than half full of shortening or about three pounds. If you are using oil, fill the kettle or pan so the oil stands 2 to 3 inches deep.

Just as spacing of cookies on a baking sheet allows for uniform browness, similar placement of fried foods in the wire basket means thorough cooking. "Fry a little at a time so you won't lower the temperature," says Ms. Martin. A lower temperature will result in a fat-soaked and greasy-tasting product. Thus, it's preferable to do several small batches for quality flavor.

With any type of frying, it's important to keep layers of paper towels nearby for immediate draining. Don't worry if your homemade fries are done before dinner. Line a pie or cake pan with paper towels and place in a warm oven or cover with an inverted aluminum pan.

SO, COVER-UP with an apron in case of splattering fat, and get the potato peeler or paring knife ready.

Although modern appliances have added a touch of convenience, deep-fat fried foods were popular during colonial days.

"Treasured Recipes From Early New England Kitchens," by Marjorie Page Blanchard, includes this fried apple pie, a specialty from Vermont.

FRIED APPLE PIES

2 cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter
½ to ¾ cup light cream thick applesauce or apple butter
powdered sugar

In large bowl, put flour, salt and butter. Cut butter into flour until well mixed. Add cream gradually until a soft dough is formed. Dough should not be sticky.

Roll out on floured board about ⅛-inch thick. Cut into circles, using a saucer as a guide. Spread each circle with 1 to 2 tablespoons applesauce or apple butter. Fold circles over to make half-moons and pinch together on edges with fork.

Heat deep fat to 370 degrees. Fry pies one at a time until golden and crispy. Sprinkle with sugar while warm. Makes 6 to 8 pies.

Cooking hint: Butter and cream were used regularly by our forefathers. But don't forget, routine exercise was part of their daily routine and livelihood. As a result, they burned up those extra calories.

To modernize this recipe and cut fat and calories, use a corn oil margarine instead of butter and skim or low-fat milk instead of cream. Butter and margarine have the same amount of calories, 100 for each tablespoon, but a corn oil margarine will be higher in poly-unsaturated fats. When you are ready to fry these New England favorites, select an oil instead of shortening.

Pear may be the apple of your pie this winter

Apples may be the top favorite fall and winter pie fruit, but pear pie has a special delicacy of flavor well worth discovering. The best and easiest way to thicken the juices of these and other fruit pies is to toss the fruit with a mixture of sugar, corn starch and spice before piling it into the pastry.

PEAR PIE

1 recipe double crust pastry
½ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
3 tablespoons corn starch
½ teaspoon ginger
1/8 teaspoon salt
4½ cups thinly sliced, pared, cored pears
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon margarine

Line 9-inch pie plate with one half pastry allowing 1-inch overhang. Mix together sugar, corn starch, ginger and salt. Toss with pears and lemon juice. Turn into pastry lined pie plate. Dot with margarine. Roll remaining pastry into 12-inch circle; make slits. Cover pie with pastry; seal and flute edge. Bake in 425 degree oven 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 40 minutes longer. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie.

Readers' recipes add new life to leftover turkey

Those extra slices of turkey are the logical choice for Friday's lunch, but what happens when dinner time arrives? If you can't face another sandwich even with rye bread, try these recipes from readers of Sugar 'n' Spice.

"I'm surprised that with all of the recipes for using leftover turkey, no one has suggested making turkey croquettes," writes Mrs. Elinor Rigenstrup of Arlington Heights. She sends a vegetable and turkey combination which you also can make with lamb or chicken. Since the dough must be refrigerated before frying, save time and make it in advance.

TURKEY AND VEGETABLE CROQUETTES

- ½ cup melted butter or margarine
- ½ cup all-purpose flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup cooked turkey, chopped
- 2 tablespoons onion, finely chopped
- 1 cup mixed vegetables, drained
- ¼ cup parsley, chopped
- 1½ teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 2 tablespoons water
- fine dry bread crumbs

In a medium-sized pan, blend butter or margarine and flour. Stir constantly and slowly add milk. Cook until mixture is thick and begins to boil. Reduce heat and cook for 1 minutes.

Stir in turkey, onion, vegetables, parsley and seasonings. Turn mixture into flat pan; chill several hours until firm. Between palms of hands, shape into eight croquettes. Roll in bread crumbs. Blend together eggs and water. Dip croquettes into mixture and roll again in bread crumbs.

In deep frying pan, heat shortening or oil so it will stand 1½ inches deep. Temperature should be 365 to 370 degrees. Fry croquettes, 4 at a time, 2 to 3 minutes or until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Makes 8 croquettes

Curry powder's distinct flavor actually comes from a mixture of at least 10 spices. Tumeric, cardamom, coriander, mustard, saffron and allspice are blended together with other spices in this ingredient which originated in India.

The curry flavor is most often associated with Indian cookery. But turkey leftovers take on a new flair in this recipe from Emilie Kurr, Schaumburg.

HURRY CURRY TURKEY

- 1/3 cup onion, chopped
- ½ cup green pepper,
- 1 chopped clove garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 cup sour cream or sour half and half
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- ¼ teaspoon satl
- Dash of pepper
- 2 cups turkey, cubed

Saute onions, pepper and minced garlic in butter until tender. Stir in sour cream (or sour half and half), curry, salt and pepper; add turkey. Heat slowly, stirring often. Serve over rice or toast. Serves 4.

From India to the Orient, turkey leftovers take on international flavors.

JIFFY TURKEY SKILLET

- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 can cream of mushroom soup
- ½ cup milk
- 1 can (8½ ounces) peas
- 2 cups turkey, cubed
- 1 cup fresh mushrooms sliced
- Salt and pepper to taste

Saute onions and mushrooms in butter or margarine. Add soup, milk and peas; cover and heat just to boiling. Stir occasionally. Add turkey, salt and pepper. Heat through, but do not boil. Serve over crisp, oven-warmed chow-mein noodles or rice. Serves 4.

Anise cookie recipe requested

Vee Skobel of Mount Prospect is looking for an anise cookie recipe. A treat with hidden icing, the cookies sit on a baking sheet overnight and are baked the next morning. The egg whites in the dough then come to the top for a frosting-like appearance.

While searching for cookie recipes, send any you find containing cranberries for Emilie Kurr of Schaumburg.

Send your recipes and requests to The Recipe Box, The Daily Herald, 217 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Please include specific amounts and directions with each recipe. If you can be reached during the day for questions about the recipe, include a phone number with your letter. Oriental stir-fry dinner a colorful family treat

Joyce Lofstrom
Food editor

Stir-fry an Oriental dinner tonight and treat your family to brightly colored and crisp vegetables combined with thin slices of pork in a light sauce. If you don't have a wok, use a large skillet and serve the main dish with frozen egg rolls or won ton soup.

Once the oil is hot, add the ingredients in the order listed in the recipe. Since the pork needs a longer cooking time, it is added first. The vegetables and pineapple follow, but cook only for one or two minutes to keep their crunchy texture.

STIR-FRIED PORK AND PINEAPPLE

- ¾ pound lean pork
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1½ teaspoons sugar
- 3 tablespoons water
- 3 tablespoons cooking oil
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 green pepper, seeded and cut in squares
- ½ cup water chestnuts, drained and sliced
- ¼ cup sweet pickles, sliced
- ¾ cup pineapple chunks, drained
- ½ cup chicken broth

Slice pork very thin against grain. Blend together cornstarch, soy sauce, sugar and cold water. Place wok on large skillet over medium high heat; add oil. Add salt. Add pork and cook, stirring, until pork begins to brown, about 3 minutes. Add green pepper and cook and stir 2 minutes more. Add water chestnuts, sweet pickles and pineapple to pan; cook, stirring, for 1 minute. Stir in chicken broth and heat. Add cornstarch mixture, stirring well, and continue to cook and stir until sauce thickens. Serve immediately. Serves 4.

Best buys

Coffee is in the news again and area stores are offering a two-pound can for $5.69 to $5.99. Food advertisements at this time last year show consumers could purchase the same amount for about $3.49. But from year to year the two-pound can still yields 120 cups of coffee when using one rounded tablespoon per cup.

Specials on meat and poultry this week include: whole fryers from 37 to 41 cents a pound, blade cut chuck roast from 45 to 49 cents a pound, baby beef liver from 48 to 53 cents a pound and center cut pork chops at $1.09 a pound.

A three-pound bag of medium-sized Jonathon, Delicious or McIntosh apples are from 69 to 88 cents. Large Delicious or Rome Beauty apples are 49 cents a pound.

Other advertised specials this week include large eggs at 59 cents a dozen, margarine, soft drinks, wieners and milk.

Mexican meal is a favorite entry in delicious diary

Lois Seiler

Cook of the week

Karen Bosch's recipe collection could be equated to a cook's diary; it is dotted with recipes she has acquired from all over the country.

Karen, her husband, Stan, and their children, Brian, 8, and Brandon, 4, have lived in many places across the United States, from Washington to New York and points in betweeen. Unmindful of the moves, Karen enjoyed meeting new people and collecting recipes, but is happy now to be settled in Bartlett where the children can have some permanency during their school years.

A home economics graduate from Montana State University, Karen majored in clothing and textiles and now chuckles about the fact that during her college days cooking held little appeal. Now it is among her more pleasurable activities, along with sewing and other crafts. She took a course in Chinese cookery when the family lived in Washington, started a gourmet club in the Bartlett area and is organizing a Christmas smorgasbord at The Church of the Living Christ.

MEXICAN FOOD ranks foremost among favorite meals in the Bosch household, along with Chinese and gourmet cuisine. Some of the Mexican recipes she likes best are from friends in California and Washington. She even makes her own corn and flour tortillas for burritos and enchiladas, and refried beans. Prepared from scratch they are a staple in the family's diet.

For a company meal, Karen starts by serving both guacamole and refried beans as a dip for corn chips with cocktails, which may either be margaritas or sangria. The guacamole is a tasty mixture of mashed avocados and sour cream seasoned with chili powder, onion and lemon juice. Finely chopped tomato adds color.

One of her main dish specialties is Chili Rellenos, which Karen prefers to make with fresh California chili peppers. She purchases them from a Mexican grocery store ,but if there is no such store nearby, the canned variety may be substituted.

AFTER THE fresh peppers are roasted and peeled, they are stuffed with cheese, coated with a fluffy egg mixture and deep fat fried. The Chili Rellenos have a fluffy coating somewhat similar to a fritter, and are medium to medium hot in flavor, depending on the chili peppers. They are served with an onion and garlic-flavored fresh tomato sauce.

Refried beans complement the Chili Rellenos because they are mild in flavor. These are made with dried pinto beans which are boiled, mashed and fried in oil along with lots of Monterey Jack cheese. "Their flavor is so superior to the canned variety that there is no comparison," Karen exclaimed. Because they are nutritional as well as tasty, she serves the beans on a regular basis to her family.

TO COMPLETE the meal she suggests rice, either plain or with onion and tomatoes mixed in, warmed flour tortillas with butter and a tomato and lettuce salad with a few slices of avocado on top, drizzled with a vinegar and oil dressing. For dessert, her choice would be flan, or something light and chocolate-flavored or fresh fruit.

In addition to her culinary and sewing interests, Karen is active in Beta Sigma Phi sorority, serving last year as chapter president and this year as vice-president of the Northwest Suburban Area Council. She also is a volunteer for FISH and works part time as a secretary for an insurance agency.

GUACAMOLE DIP

2 ripe avocados
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons chili powder
½ to 1 cup sour cream
1 finely chopped tomato

Mash avocados until smooth. Add onion, salt, lemon juice and chili powder. Fold in sour cream and tomato. Store in covered container and refrigerate until served. Serve with corn chips.

CHILI RELLENOS

6 fresh California chili peppers or whole canned chili peppers
½ pound Monterey Jack cheese, shredded
4 eggs, separated
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups vegetable oil
Flour

Broil fresh chili peppers until skins have dark brown spots. Place in paper bag and close for 10 minutes. Peppers can now be peeled easily. (If canned peppers are used, omit roasting and start recipe here.)

Make an incision lengthwise and remove seeds from each pepper. Stuff with cheese. Close opening with a toothpick.

Separate eggs. Beat whites until thick and fluffy. Add yolks, ½ teaspoon salt and dash of flour. Blend just until mixture is yellow.

Heat oil in heavy skillet. Roll chili peppers in flour and then dip in egg mixture. (Prepare just one at a time.) Fry peppers until brown. Turn and fry other side. (They all may be fried at the same time.) Drain on paper towels.

Prepare the following sauce:

3 fresh tomatoes
¼ medium onion, cut up
1 small clove garlic, minced or pressed
1 teaspoon salt

Boil tomatoes until skin starts to peel. Peel tomatoes and place in blender with remaining ingredients. Blend until smooth. Fry tomato blend in ½ tablespoon vegetable oil just to heat through. Serve in a separate bowl and let guests help themselves. Spoon as much as desired on Chili Rellenos. Serves 4.

REFRIED BEANS

1 cup dry pinto beans
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup vegetable oil
1 tablespoon flour
¼ pound Monterey Jack cheese, shredded

Rinse beans in colander and put into a large pot with 3 quarts water. Boi, uncovered, for 2 hours, adding more water as needed. Add salt and continue boiling for a half hour more. Beans are done when they can be mashed easily with a fork.

Heat oil in large cast iron skillet. Sprinkle flour into oil and mix. Scoop beans from pot with slotted spoon or strainer and fry in oil, mashing with potato masher. Add some bean broth to thin mixture slightly. Add cheese and blend well.

Serve immediately or transfer mixture to a casserole with a tight-fitting lid and keep warm in oven, if desired. Serves 4 to 6 with dinner, or it may be served as a dip for corn chips as an appetizer.

NO CANNED BEANS for chili rellenos made by Karen Bosch of Bartlett. A mixture of kidney beans and cheese, the Mexican dish is a favorite of the Bartlett family.

Serve traditional potato pancakes for Hanukkah

Potato pancakes are one of the traditional foods served during Hanukkah. Fry this mixture for the crisp pancake or bake in a loaf pan if you prefer a potato pudding or kugel. Beverly Goldberg, a member of The Daily Herald's classified department, sends her recipe for readers of Sugar 'n' Spice to enjoy.

POTATO PANCAKES OR POTATO LATKES

5 medium potatoes, peeled
1 medium onion, grated
1 egg
½ cup flour or
½ cup matzo or cracker meal
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon pepper
Cooking oil

Grate potatoes into large bowl; drain liquid. Add unbeaten egg, onion, seasonings, flour or meal to thicken. Mix together.

Drop by tablespoonfuls into hot oil in large fry pan. Fry until crisp and brown. Serve with sour cream or applesauce.

Variation: To make potato kugel, pour batter into loaf pan and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Island dish inspires chicken casserole

The Polynesians might not have had frozen potatoes to help them in their cooking but a fruited chicken potato casserole was inspired by an island dish.

The chicken, paprika-coated, is baked until partially brown and tender and then spiced with aromatic cinnamon and mace and moistened with broth. Pineapple slices are added and topped with the potatoes, raisins and almonds for final baking. This is an attractive and tasty dish for family and friends and to take to a pitch-in or to serve as your special dish for a round-robin party.

FRUITED CHICKEN POTATO CASSEROLE

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
4 large pieces frying chicken
1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed chicken broth
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1/8 teaspoon mace
1 package (16 ounces) frozen bite-size potato nuggets
1 can (8 ounces) pineapple slices, drained
2 tablespoons raisins
1 tablespoon almond slivers

Melt butter in 9x13x2-inch baking pan while heating oven to 400 degrees. Mix salt, pepper and paprika and rub over chicken pieces. Place chicken, skin side down, in butter and bake 15 minutes. Combine broth with cornstarch and spices. Turn chicken pieces and pour broth mixture over. Bake 15 minutes longer. Add frozen potatoes, drained pineapple, raisins and almonds to the pan and bake 15 minutes, or until chicken is tender. Serve at once. Serves 4.

Try parsnips for different treat

The sweet, nutty flavor of parsnips is unfamiliar to many North Americans. Yet, this member of the carrot family had an exotic history in Europe before it was brought to this country by the early colonists.

As the story goes, the Roman Emperor Tiberius was addicted to parsnips and had them imported from Germany. Sages said he was nibbling parsnips when not throwing slaves off the cliffs of Capri.

Like so many vegetables, parsnips also were considered to have medicinal value. Whatever, parsnips are good accompaniments to such holiday basics as roast turkey or roast goose.

To prepare parsnips, pare or scrape them and slice crosswise or lengthwise and cook covered in a small amount of boiling water for 15 to 20 minutes or test with fork for doneness. Purists, however, believe parsnips should be steamed and not boiled.

For a different vegetable treat try fresh parsnip patties, an English parsnip pie or fried rosemary parsnips.

FRESH PARSNIP PATTIES

- 2 cups mashed cooked parsnips
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
- 1 egg
- ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
- Flour

Combine mashed parsnips, salt, pepper, sugar, paprika, lemon juice, egg and bread crumbs. Mix well. Shape into 2 and one-half-inch patties, one-half inch thick. Dip in flour. Cook in butter or bacon drippings in skillet, turning to brown both sides. Serve hot with beef, ham, pork or lamb.

Serves 4 to 5.

ENGLISH PARSNIP PIE

- 1 9-inch unbaked pastry shell
- 2 pounds fresh parsnips (2 cups chopped cooked parsnips)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons honey
- Pinch ginger
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 tablespoon fresh orange juice
- 2 teaspoons grated fresh orange rind
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten

Prick pastry shell, line with waxed paper and fill with uncooked rice or dried beans. Bake in 425-degree oven for 10 minutes. remove waxed paper and rice and bake 5 minutes longer. Remove from oven and reduce oven temperature to 375 degrees.

To prepare parsnips, place parsnips in large saucepan with water to cover. Bring to a boil, cover and simmer 30 minutes or until tender. Drain and cool slightly. Peel and chop finely. combine in bowl with salt, honey, ginger, cinnamon, orange juice, orange rind and eggs. Mix well. Turn into prebaked pastry shell and bake in 375-degree oven for 30 minutes. Serve with meat or poultry.

FRIED ROSEMARY PARSNIPS

- 1 pound parsnips (4 to 6)
- 1½ teaspoons salt, divided
- 2 large eggs, beaten
- 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
- 1 teaspoon dried leaf rosemary
- ¼ cup butter or margarine

Mash, pare, and cut parsnips into one-eight inch lengthwise sliceses. Place parsnips in a medium saucepan with one-half inch boiling water and 1 teaspoon salt. Cover and cook for 12 minutes or until tender. Drain parsnips well and dip into beaten eggs and then into a mixture of bread crumbs, rosemary and salt. Brown on both sides in butter in a large skillet. Serves 6.

Hamburger popular meat

When it comes to tradition, hamburger runs a close second to mom's apple pie. In fact, 40 per cent of all beef consumed is hamburger.

Not only is hamburger popular, but it's versatile. In a bun packed with relishes, in a tortilla with cheese and lettuce or in a seasoned loaf, hamburger can be used in a variety of fashions to suit a multitude of tastes.

But even the simplest of burgers requires some thought when it comes to storage and preparation. Keep ground beef at 40 degrees or lower; temperatures between 45 to 115 degrees promote bacterial growth. A kitchen counter makes an ideal playground for bacteria so thaw meat in the refrigerator.

Dieting? Look for ground round or sirloin ground meats with fewer calories and less fat. Those few extra pennies you spend on the meat will mean savings on the waistline.

Thanksgiving bird first seen south of the border

The Thanksgiving turkey, considered by most persons to be as American as apple pie, is really as Mexican as a shot of tequila.

Returning ships took turkeys back to Spain. By 1541 they were found in England.

EARLY BRITISH emigrants then returned the Mexican turkey to the new world, where it found its greatest fame at the Thanksgiving table. That domesticated, or common turkey, now is found all the way from Canada to Mexico.

Although Mexicans have been eating turkey longer than anyone else, they don't save it for special occasions, as do Americans and Canadians. It's a staple food in the interior part of the country. Birds in that area are scavengers and cost little to raise.

British colonists aiso found wild turkeys when they arrived in the new world. They did not domesticate the birds, but hunters and encroaching civilization soon decimated their abundant numbers.

Another type of wild turkey, called ocellated, is found today in Mexico and parts of Central America. It is smaller than the common turkey and has tail feathers with coppery margins and eyelike, greenish-blue spots.

Even in residential sections of Mexico City, it's not uncommon to see four or five turkeys running about a household.

Prices rise to about a dollar a pound at Christmas time, or double that of the rest of the year, because of increased demand.

Strangely enough, when Americans sit down to their Thanksgiving turkey dinners this year, some Mexicans will follow suit. They have become such fans of American football that they even eat turkey while watching the live holiday telecasts of U.S games.

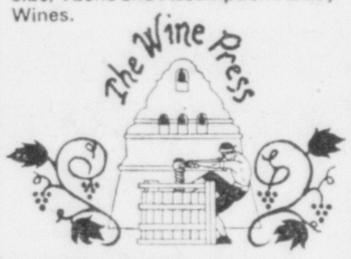
Taste before you buy — just like at the Winery. We invite you to visit our wine tasting room and experience the wonderful world of Brookside, Vache and Assumption Abbey Wines.



WINE SERVING TEMPERATURES

Just as most of us like our soup fairly hot and our beer ice cold, we enjoy some wines best unchilled and others chilled. Tradition says to serve red wines at "room temperature," but this rule must have originated in European chateaus, because in a modern, heated home, that would make your Burgundy lukewarm. If you experiment a little, you may find that most red wines are preferred slightly cool, and the light, sweet red wines right out of the refrigerator.

However, with a bottle of very old red wine, the tradition is almost right. The wine should be allowed to breathe, and the warmer temperature allows the wine to develop a full bouquet.

White wines and roses taste cleaner and crisper when they are chilled, and champagnes have less of a yeasty taste.

Most people prefer sherries and dessert wines chilled or on the rocks, but preferences do vary.

There is no right or wrong temperature for serving wine, but here are some recommendations to use as a guideline: Champagnes and sweet white wines — 38-42°; roses and whites — 42-50°; young red wines — 54-58°; old red wines — 58-62°.

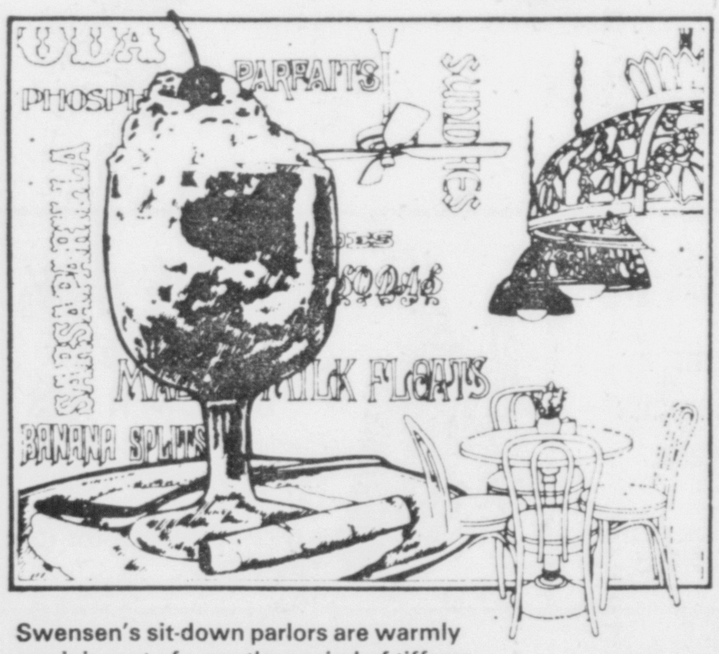
KICK OFF CHRISTMAS AT Plaza De Las Flores

It's The Best There is.



Swensen's sit-down parlors are warmly reminiscent of a gentler period of tiffany and oak. Lazy-day fans and marble-topped tables. Phosphates over ice and tingling sarsaparilla and memorable ice cream desserts built for two.

SWENSEN'S ICE CREAM FACTORY

Plaza del las Flores
Schaumburg 397-9100

Proprietors: The Nuzzo Family: Vic, John and Pat

Start the holiday season right this year with a visit to Plaza de las Flores.

All the merchants have joined together to make the plaza a one-stop shopping experience.

We're located on Algonquin Road just east of Meacham in Schaumburg.

BUDDY CHANNELL sits in his creation, which he calls the "Volkswagen Trike." Buddy invested $1,000 and spent two weeks constructing and fusing together a front end of a Triumph motorcycle with a good working back section of a Volkswagen. It rides three comfortably, but does not take it out in the rain as there is no protection against the elements.

'Farmers born to reap career from the land'

by CAROLYN A. LESH

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Sociolgists say he most often is in his early 50s, a little wary of outsiders and desperate to hold on to what generally is a low-paying job with long hours.

His profession was determined at birth. He is part businessman, part financier, part gambler. But he is best known by the title farmer.

"The farmer doesn't separate work and leisure as much as people in town," said William Heffernan, a rural sociologist at the University of Missouri-Columbia. "He may spend an entire Sunday afternoon working on a show cow. Now someone else may think that's work. But that farmer may not want to be doing anything else in the world. He's the kind of person who really loves his work."

HEFFERNAN, WHO operates a 40-acre farm in addition to his teaching job, called farming a contagious profession with an extremely low job turnover.

"Farmers like being their own boss, being close to nature and carrying out a family tradition," the professor said. "There has to be other reasons than money, especially when you consider the amount of capital they invest and what they get back."

U.S. Dept. of Agriculture figures for last year show the realized net income per farm was $7,835 with the average acreage at 393 acres. Dr. Norman V. Whitehair, director of the Extension Division at Kansas State University in Manhattan, estimates a typical farmer works 2,500 hundred hours a year — 500 hours longer than someone who puts in 40 hours a week for 50 weeks a year.

Agriculture officials estimate it would cost anywhere between $500,000 and $1 million to set up an average-size farm today — making the business almost prohibitive for anyone not born into a farm family.

"The high cost is keeping out a lot of young men who want to go into farming," said Dr. Jan Flora, a rural sociologist at Kansas State. "What's going to happen, I think, is that there's going to be a method devised where farmers don't really own their land."

FLORA SAID ONE possibility would be the government owning the land and then leasing it to farmers.

"We're beginning to see the demise of the family farm in the sense of the farm being wholly owned by the family who works it."

Both Flora and Heffernan said farmers hold close ties to their churches and tend to think big labor and government have too much power. The two professors also believe farmers generally are closer to their families and neighbors than urbanites.

WILLIAM HEFFERNAN, a rural sociologist at the University of Missouri — Columbia, operates a 40 acre farm 20 miles from Columbia. In addition to his teaching job, Heffernan, shown with daughter, Lisa, 7, says "the farmer doesn't separate work and leisure as much as people in town."

"I think it has a lot to do simply with the fact that there's less geographic movement," Flora said. "The people who live in rural areas have lived there for a long time."

But the closeness among family and friends apparently makes it harder for farmers to accept people with different lifestyles or backgrounds.

"I've been looking at some national surveys and I don't exactly understand why it's true, but rural people in general seem to be less accepting of people who are different from them — in terms of such things as interracial marriages or whether they would vote for a black or a Jew for president," Flora said. "I suppose that comes back to the issue of tight-knit communities."

FLORA AND Heffernan disagreed on the basic nature of farmers.

"They're optimistic," Heffernan said. "They're always thinking 'things will always get better.' They'll be out there year after year planting a crop and hoping for better prices and weather."

"They're pessimistic about everything in general," Flora said. "I don't claim this is a scientific finding, but I think being so affected by the weather makes them that way."

But most farm experts agree that the image of the farmer wearing bib overalls and a straw hat and saying aw-shucks is a myth today.

"Farmers today are businessmen who have to have a vast knowledge in things such as herbicides, pesticides, marketing and high finance," said John Junior Armstrong, head of the Kansas Farm Bureau. "He's just like his city cousin now. If you put them together, you wouldn't be able to tell them apart."

Rural communities, however, still lack some advantages of metropolitan areas.

"One of the biggest problems is the shortage of doctors in rural areas," Flora said.

But there is cleaner air, more open space and less crime. And there are still people who do not lock their doors at night.

"I remember when a retired attorney from Washington bought a farm out here," Heffernan said. "The first night in the house he went to lock the doors and found out there were no locks. That kind of shook up someone coming from Washington, D.C."

CONYERS, Ga. (UPI) — To 80-year-old Ed Holmes, the prettiest word in the English language is "loblolly."

That is the name of a pine tree variety that flourishes in the red soil of the South. Holmes has planted thousands of them in East Georgia and played a big role in reforesting millions of acres of idle land across the nation.

He is known as "the tree man," a top conservationist and the leading force behind this country's biggest tree-planting effort.

Ed Holmes

IN THE TWILIGHT of his active life, Holmes still runs his seed and fertilizer business from a rambling 100-year-old weather-beaten building in Conyers.

He apparently has not given much thought to retiring. He has had a lifelong interest in dairying and right now is working on a new mechanical device to improve the technique of milking cows employed by large dairies.

Twenty-three years ago, in 1954, the efficiency of the American farmer resulted in huge agricultural surpluses of cotton, corn, wheat and other crops. Congress passed laws taking more land out of production to combat the surplus.

To Holmes, a graduate of the University of Georgia School of Agriculture, the millions of acres of nonproducing land were a waste.

"I was riding down the road one day," Holmes said, "passing all those empty fields.

"It won't look good to non-farmers, to see fields growing up in weeds," he recalled.

HOLMES DECIDED on the spot to contact then Georgia Gov. Herman Talmadge and Agriculture Sec. Ezra Benson about a plan to plant pine seedlings on the idle land.

"I figured the nation needed lumber and that trees were one thing that wouldn't add to the surpluses."

Sometime later, Holmes got a letter from Benson saying that his pine seedling program would be presented to Congress for legislation. He also got letters from Talmadge thanking him for his plan.

Under the legislation as adopted, farmers were paid $10 per acre per year for a maximum of 10 years to put their idle land in pine trees. They were given three years to get the trees planted.

"It was a voluntary program," said Holmes. "Farmers got their seedlings from state forestry commissions. They didn't cost much, about $3 per thousand. It doesn't take but a year to grow them."

Trees on the unused land guaranteed that it could not again be row-cropped for a long period of time; the trees gave the farmer an income, and the land would be used but still allowed to rest and recover from over-planting.

"Trees build the soil," said Holmes. "Pine needles form a blanket all over the soil. They sort of intertwine with one another."

Standing in a grove of 20-year-old pine trees while talking, Holmes reached down and scooped up a handful of black loam, soil that had built up under a bed of pine needles.

Before the program ended, 30 million acres of idle land were planted in pine trees in the various states. The project cost $300 million per year but Holmes estimates it produced about $3 for every $1 of cost through timber sales.

Wild horses driven East getting adopted homes

GRAFTON, Mass. (UPI) — The 33 wild horses staggered from the trailer into the daylight, stiff-kneed and hungry after a cross country journey from the western ranges to their new adoptive homes in Massachusetts.

"We've been waiting a long time," said Jan DeSantis as she watched eagerly near the family's corral with about 20 friends and neighbors. They cheered when one horse rose to its feet after stumbling and falling twice on the wood ramp.

Many of the bystanders were there to select for their own one of the wild horses captured by the Bureau of Land Management on federal range in Nevada and shipped by truck to this central Massachusetts town.

"The object is to remove the excess of wild horses from the western rangelands because they are multiplying too fast," said Judy Lent, a bureau spokeswoman in Silver Spring, Md. "We're pushing the adoption thing for all its worth."

BLM WAS ENTRUSTED with the care of wild horses and burros under the 1971 Wild Free-Roaming Horse and Burro Act. The law was passed because some people were slaughtering the animals for dog food, glue or other uses.

Under the department's adopt-a-horse program, the new owners pay only the cost of transportation and for a medical certificate. They can't use them for any commercial purpose and the federal government retains actual ownership of all the animals.

Louis DeSantis and his friends decided about three months ago to have the horses trucked together from Nevada to reduce expenses. He estimated the cost at $100 to $120 for each horse.

"THE TYPE OF people that adopt these horses have to be horse people" said DeSantis, who owns a stable in Northboro. "It's really only going to draw people who want a challenge."

Norma Bean of Shrewsbury said she was born and raised around horses in Montana and is eager to "break one the way I want to."

"I'm gong to do it the old Indian way. I'll gentle him," she said. "First I'll just feed him and maybe pat him, just to let him know I won't hurt him."

"It's a challenge. These horses have never been touched by human hands."

Bureau representative Tom DeRocco, on hand to oversee the delivery, said the department is keeping track of the animals through state or local authorities to make sure they are not being mistreated.

'Doctor' fights epidemic of nation's highway deaths

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William Haddon Jr. calls himself an epidemiologist who is combating (with some success) an epidemic that has killed two million Americans — the old familiar, everyday siege of highway slaughter.

But Haddon fights differently than most "safety experts." He refuses to preach to drivers.

He thinks it would be easier to change "the flimsy packages" people ride in or the dangerous roads they ride on, lined mile after mile with solid poles, than to change human nature.

SO HE FIGHTS for devices like airbags, head restraints, padded dashboards, stronger bumpers, doors and fuel tanks and breakaway poles along highways.

By and large, he says, people do a good job of driving.

"But if a mother turns to look at her baby and she goes off the road and hits a pole that shouldn't have been there, that turns a mishap into a fatal event," he says. "I think that's too high a penalty for being human."

"We've all been miseducated that the way to solve this problem is to have more squads of police chasing Americans so they wouldn't drive 120 miles an hour rather than arranging cars so they can't go that fast."

HADDON'S METHODS have made him influential in Washington, but controversial in Detroit. (The Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Assn. declined to give its assessment of his work for this article.)

Haddon is a quieter Ralph Nader, backed up by a staff of 55 and a budget of $4 million. The money comes from the insurance industry. It supports the Insurance Institute of Highway Safety, which Haddon heads.

WILLIAM HADDON

The industry's incentive is simply the profit motive — it wants to curb automobile accidents to reduce accident claims.

FOR YEARS, the institute ruined dozens of new cars every fall by running them at five miles per hour into barriers and filming the results. The purpose was to persuade Congress to enact tougher bumper standards.

There has been more success than people might guess. Travel in motor vehicles is considerably less risky than it used to be.

In 1972, 54,589 persons died in U.S. highway crashes. Last year, the number was 45,525.

In 1966, a law imposed federal safety standards on carmakers. Haddon served as the first administrator of the act. A year earlier Nader published the book that inspired the law — "Unsafe at Any Speed."

From 1961 to 1966, the highway death rate rose regularly — 5.2 deaths per 100 million miles of driving in 1961, 5.4 in 1963, 5.7 in 1966.

From 1966 on, it declined: 5.5 in 1967, 4.6 in 1971, 3.5 in 1975, 3.3 last year.

HADDON SAYS without the turnaround, crashes would be killing 75,000 persons a year by 1980.

A government study of all crashes in North Carolina and New York state says 28,000 lives were saved between 1966 and 1974 by federal safety regulations.

"If that had happened in the cancer field it would have been headlines," Haddon says.

The institute, studying crash records in Maryland, found that in cars built before 1964 there were 44 deaths per 100,000 cars; in cars built after 1967 there were 27 deaths per 100,000 cars.

Haddon, 51, is tall and lean like Nader. His trademark is a bow tie. He started wearing them as an intern to keep his ties from flopping into patients' faces.

Accidents add about 2,500 quadriplegics and paraplegics to the population a year. "That's why you're seeing more and more people in wheelchairs."

Haddon says the automobile has killed two million Americans since it came into use.

That's an epidemic, he says.

Win at bridge

A call for troublemakers

Today's hand is taken from an article by Bob Ewen in Popular Bridge. The bidding might go several ways including the complicated one shown in the box, but once North jumps to three diamonds the diamond slam is easy to bid.

Probably the best line of play is for South to win the club, cash one high trump and then play ace and one heart. This would make it possible to ruff two hearts in his hand if that became necessary. Anyway the slam makes easily.

Bob's article did not really concern the North and South hands.

He was writing about the use of a preemptive bid to make things hard for your opponents. He suggests that East should have opened with a preemptive three spades.

Maybe North and South would work their way to a diamond slam after that monkey wrench was thrown into their bidding machinery.

He suggests that South just might try three notrump and play it there. That if South did double North might try four hearts and play that contract with disastrous results.

All in all, Bob suggests that while a three-spade opening with those West cards might lead to trouble for East and West it was far more likely to cause trouble for North and South.

Ask Andy

Plenty of space for scientists and satellites

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to David Causey, 12, of New Market, Ala., for his question:

PLEASE EXPLAIN COMMUNICATION SATELLITES.

First person to suggest using satellites for communication was an English writer by the name of Arthur Clarke. He suggested in 1945 that satellites with astronauts be located in synchronous orbits above the earth. In 1955, an American scientist named John Robinson Pierce suggested using passive and active satellites without astronauts. The system was working in 1958.

Radio, telephone, television and other electronic communications to any part of the world now can be accomplished because of the communications satellites that are traveling in space.

Launched into orbits around the earth by rockets, the satellites receive signals transmitted from stations on the ground and then by means of special antennas they send the signals back to earth.

Communication by satellite is more reliable than shortwave radio and it also has better quality. The signals can be picked up by stations that may be as far as a third of the way around the world.

Passive communications satellites simply reflect signals as a mirror would reflect light. America's first passive communications satellite was called Echo. The 100-foot plastic balloon was launched in 1960. Echo II was launched in 1964.

Active communications satellites carry radio receivers and transmitters. They pick up signals from earth and then strengthen them by amplification and transmit them back to earth. Most active satellites are less than 10 feet high and receive their power from the sun by using solar batteries.

Television shows and telephone messages are relayed regularly from North America to Europe and back. Satellites include the Telstar, Relay and Syncom, all launched during the 1960s.

The first commercial communications satellite, launched by a company called COMSAT, was the Early Bird or INTELSAT I, an active satellite launched in 1965. It has 240 telephone channels as well as television broadcasting abilities. INTELSAT II, III and IV were launched later and now both the Atlantic and Pacific are covered. Viewers in North America can watch live television from Europe, Hawaii, Japan, the Philippines or Thailand.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Darci Nash, 7, of Eugene, Ore., for her question:

HOW DOES A MAGNIFYING GLASS WORK?

A magnifying glass is a lens that makes tiny objects appear larger. It is just the tool you will need if you are looking at a long list of names printed in agate type.

Both sides of a magnifying glass' lens usually are curved to form a double convex lens. Held close to the page in a book, the image formed is called a virtual image. The light rays that produce this image spread out as they pass through the lens and appear to originate on the same side of the lens as the page. The virtual image appears uptight and larger than the object.

A real image is formed when light rays from an object pass through the lens and are focused on the other side. The image appears inverted, and its size depends on the distance of the object from the lens.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Illinois 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Wishbone offense

Before you belly up to Thanksgiving dinner, be warned: Turkeys are ready to organize

by SCOTT FOSDICK

"You want to know a turkey who really disgusts me, it's Tom — or Uncle Tom, as we Militant Wild Turkeys call him. Look at him, preening his spurs and shaking his wattle! He really burns my snood."

Bourbon Red, MWT spokesturkey, strides back and forth, pecking now and again at the gray Minnesota dirt in a remote corner of a vast, desolate yard, a yard rimmed by miles and miles of barbed wire.

A meleagrididae by any other name would gobble as sweetly. It also would BE gobbled with as much relish, and would be much easier to pronounce. There are more kinds of turkey in the world than you could shake a drumstick at: White Holland, Beltsville Small White, Bronze, Black, Slate, Bourbon Red, Narragansett . . . All these and more come under the family name "meleagrididae." Though they originally had the run of the New World, today most turkeys are raised on large farms. Last month a Daily Herald reporter infiltrated the Butterbreast Farm in upstate Minnesota, the heart of the turkey belt. This is his report on how turkeys feel about Thanksgiving, and about their particular role in the celebration.

"It's a Thanksgiving Concentration Camp, is what it is," Red says. "A bleeding monument to man's inhumanity to his fellow beasts.

"It's an outrage. But what does Mister Tom Turkey do? He just struts about, quieting everybody down. 'They won't do it again,' he says. 'This year they're all going vegetarian.'

"Shiver my giblets! Who does this overgrown pheasant think he's fooling? Every day the annual slaughter gets closer, and he's running around trying to save his own neck by spreading the butcher's propaganda.

"GOOD OL' TOM never gets the ax: the farmer keeps him on as a 'calming influence.' What we got to do is ORGANIZE."

Red isn't the only turkey at the Butterbreast Farm who is upset. The prospect of becoming the main attraction of somebody's Thanksgiving Day dinner is enough to send a chill down the tailfeathers of every tom, hen and poult.

"Time was when we just ran wild, from Guatemala to Nova Scotia," says Narra Gansett, a sturdy but ancient-looking hen with frosted feathers. Her knack for escaping the butcher's knife year after year has made her the farm's premier historian.

"In those days the white savages wore long hair and weird black hats. They crept around and pointed muskets at us, and at the red men who preceded them. 'Pilgrims,' they called themselves.

"My great-grandmother told a story about when the first white man, Columbus, got off the boat and thought he was in India. He was a real joker. He started calling the red men 'Indians,' and he thought my ancestors were Indian Peacocks!"

The cackle suddenly leaves Narra's voice, and, though it's hard to read a turkey's wrinkles, she looks strangely sad.

"WE USED TO RUN from the red man. But when the white man came, the red man ran with us.

"The history of the white man's slaughter of the red man closely parallels the white man's slaughter of our kind," Narra says in a throaty, almost inaudible whisper.

"He called the red man a 'noble savage,' and he almost made us his 'national bird.' The eagle won that dubious honor, and you know what happened to him.

"The white man chased turkeys and 'Indians' all over this continent, alternately worshipping and slaughtering us. He eventually tired of the race, however, and stuck us both on reservations.

"Unfortunately, he hasn't forgotten us completely. Each year, on a day set aside to thank his god for giving him such a wonderful land, he kills thousands of our brethren. And while the grown-ups roast the carcasses, their children put feathers on their heads and play Indian.

"But mark my words, these reservations will be their undoing," Narra says, with a glimmer returning to her eye.

"NOW WE'RE GETTING organized. We turkeys have become unified by our common plight. No longer are we just a bunch of separate flocks, each squawking our own meleagrididae heritage.

"I have a dream that one day all turkeys — Bronze, Black, Slate and White Holland — will rise up against our carniverous oppressors and be free."

That day will be a long time in coming. Turkeys at Butterbreast may be united in their contempt for their oppressor, but they are hopelessly divided on the question of how to strike back. There are almost as many strategies for deliverance as there are turkeys.

Each year the Nonviolent Turkeys urge a general hunger strike, to keep the oppressor from enjoying the fruit of the slaughter.

A few years back the NVT was able to convince great numbers of turkeys to forego their feed. The butchers did a lot of complaining that year, but the slaughter continued. Of late, Bourbon Red's Militant Wilds have become more powerful, with their fiery insistence on immediate, violent action.

IT'S BEEN A LONG time since the MWTs have held a midnight feather blitz on the farmhouse, however, and their popularity also is beginning to wane.

The vanguard of turkey lib is currently dominated by Beltsville Small and his kamikaze turkeys.

Through an underground connection with a group of militant cattle, Beltsville has managed to stockpile a large amount of DDT. He and his fellow kamikazes plan to eat large amounts of the lethal insecticide just before the day of the slaughter.

When the grim reaper comes around, these well-fed turkeys will be standing right out front, just begging to get the ax. Their poison-filled flesh, they hope, will wipe out hundreds of Thanksgiving Day gluttons.

Belltsville is counting on a fear effect: when people discover many turkeys are mysteriously laden with DDT, they may decide to feast on other things next year.

Beltsville's scheme flies in the face of religious tradition, however, and while it is the talk of the farm, there are few volunteers.

Great importance is attached to the annual celebration of the turkey New Year. To a turkey, New Year's Day is the holiest event of the year.

A day of great mourning and of great celebration, it falls on the day after the white man's Thanksgiving.

It's a day when Mr. Tom Turkey reigns supreme:

"Holy wishbone," he squawks with a great puffing of his feathers. "I wouldn't miss it for the world!"

Willow pottery pattern a dinnerware standard

Some patterns of dinnerware have been made continuously or on again-off again for up to 200 years. In the case of the Meissen Onion pattern, a perennial favorite, the genuine thing has been made by a single company. The pattern may be different at one time or another or the markings on the bottom may vary, so it is important to study the history and mergers, dissolutions, and the various markings that accompanied them.

The Willow pattern is one everyone recognizes, and it has been made in nearly every pottery that has ever produced dinnerware. It looks Oriental, but it originated in England, in the pottery of T. Turner in 1780. He was influenced by the Oriental blue and white wares that were being imported. The colors may vary from a deep "flow blue," such as in the chamberpot pictured, to a pale, washed-out blue, and the pattern has even been made in many other colors. Although the blues vary a great deal, the pattern hasn't changed very much in 200 years. It still is being made by firms in Staffordshire, England, in America and in Japan.

The very traditional pattern shows a pagoda-like building and a bridge with a body of water and islands, several figures and two doves surmounting the scene. Exotic looking foliage and designs (sometimes called diapers) surround the whole. The pattern is said to tell a sad story of a princess and her commoner lover drowning while fleeing an irate father. The two doves represent their souls. Another version has the gods turning the lovers into birds so they can escape. A more political explanation involves a group that was intent on overthrowing the government and circulated the dishes as a sort of underground message to remind the people of their cause. The figures supposedly represent three Buddhas: past, present and future. The doves were souls of those slain in battle and the pagoda a symbol of haven for escaping monks.

WILLOW WAS made in porcelain and in earthenware, and the older wares generally are more valuable. You can look up the marks in a good encyclopedia of china markings such as Godden's. This will cover the British marks. Other mark books and clues will tell you the country of origin and approximate age of non-British pieces.

In Willow, some was good; some was very crude. The Buffalo Pottery Co., established 1901 in Buffalo, N.Y., originally supplied Willow pottery for the Larkin Soap Co. to be used as premiums. Most Buffalo pottery is so marked.

The serious collector of Willow restricts the collection to one maker, such as Allerton, Spode, even Wedgwood. In each case, the patterns are slightly different. The rarest of the Wedgwood Willows are the black on white, tinted with a gilt.

John Davenport, Staffordshire potter, turned out Willow literally by the ton. Each maker varied the pattern, especially in the number of so-called "apples" on the trees. Now even I know that apples don't grow on willow trees, so the round objects probably are leaves. Some collectors says they can tell the age of the piece by the number of apples, but others say no. Supposedly, you can tell the maker in some instances.

YOU CAN FIND Willow in plentiful supply at shops and shows, in flea markets and at ye old garage sales. One friend collects "restaurant Willow," which is heavy ironstone with divided section plates, ovenproof, great for kitchen use. Hers was mostly American-made.

The pre-plumbing potty shown below is an English version, marked "Doulton, Burslem, England" with the word "Willow" beneath. It is very smudgy dark blue and was purchased in Scotland about five years ago at the reasonable price of about $6. If you have a yen for blue and white, Willow is an easy thing to find, to identify, and usually, to pay for.

Houston IWY conference a study in contrasts

National Women's Conference

Report by Laura Schmalbach

When history's first National Women's Conference opened in Houston last weekend, the parley had all the trappings of an armed camp.

Conference organizers were predicting a mass walkout by radical right-wing delegates opposed to conference goals, and many opponents feared radical lesbians would attack the "pro-family," anti-feminist women. Television crews were poised at the start of the opening session, and across the street from the Houston Coliseum, men with bullhorns and huge "Women's Lip" banners urged the delegates to "go home and dust your furniture."

But with the exception of heated emotion during debate on such controversial issues as abortion, gay rights and the Equal Rights Amendment, the mood of the four-day conference was more subdued than expected.

TWENTY-FIVE of the 26 proposals in the National Plan of Action passed, with several new amendments ranging from inclusion of women's history courses in state-supported schools to federal investigation of Louisiana sugar plantations to check out possible discrimination against minorities.

Despite a few isolated scuffles, open hostilities were nil. Women wearing "STOP ERA" buttons walked peacefully into the Coliseum alongside those sporting "Uppity Women Unite" T-shirts. Delegates from New York gleefully waved apples during Chairwoman Bella Abzug's address, while across the hall, the conservative Mississippi delegation sat quietly.

Even outside the Coliseum, confrontations were minimal. The anti-feminists' answer to the conference, a "pro-family rally" that attracted 15,000 supporters, was held nearly 10 miles across town. And the men with the bullhorns were greeted with just as many smiles as answering shouts.

The entire conference was a study in contrasts.

Extremists from both the left and the right of the political spectrum passed out leaflets and hawked buttons, but the diversity was greater than that represented by the National Organization for Women and the Ku Klux Klan.

A YOUNG WOMAN from Minneapolis who called herself a "Feminist for Life" protested quietly outside the Coliseum, claiming that she was excluded from both the pro-IWY faction and the pro-family people because she supported the conference goals but found abortion "an untenable position."

Special exhibits in Houston's convention center featured booths from the Better Business Bureau, Lesbians in Favor of Wages for Housework, and the Girl Scouts of America. In one of the exhibits, a public health nurse from American Samoa demonstrated native arts and crafts to a 16-year-old high school delegate from California.

Even foreign women had their say at this conference. Shohreh Amin, an Iranian citizen who has lived in New York since 1971, was busy passing out leaflets detailing the atrocities committed by the Iranian government on its more than 15,000 helpless political prisoners.

The sheer volume of buttons (everything from "Abort Libbers, Not Babies" to "I Own My Body But I Share''), pamphlets and persons didn't obscure the basic rifts that were present before the conference started. For example hundreds of lesbian observers flooded the Coliseum just before the issue of sexual preference came to a vote, and if there was any meaningful exchange of opinion, it was lost in the release of "We Are Everywhere" balloons and the wild cheers of the lesbians celebrating their victory.

BEFORE THE FINAL rap of suffragette Susan B. Anthony's gavel at the close of the conference, the ever cheerful Abzug predicted that the outcome would signal "a new beginning" for women's rights in this country. Afterward, Indiana State Sen. Joan Gubbins told a press conference, "If this has been democracy in action, our country is in trouble."

Perhaps it was neither. Observers on both sides muttered that the jubilant passage of the gay rights resolution would irretrievably link the feminist movement with homosexual rights, and the impact of the "pro-family rally" could not be dismissed as a "small group of right-wing extremists."

Women from both the anti-IWY slate in Montana and the feminist Wisconsin delegation agreed that the conference was, if nothing else, a learning experience. For many, that was enough.

The doctor says

Scalp may need doctor's care

I am 33 years old and have been having a noticeable scalp problem for the last three years. My scalp gets very greasy, little sores like pimples appear at different parts and sometimes my hair is very sore at the roots.

My hair is coming out. I have used such medications as Denorex, Tegrin, Selsun Blue — all to no avail. I also have washed my hair every night, but the very next day, the oiliness returns. Can you help? What is sebum?

I would strongly recommend that you see a dermatologist. Home treatments for oily scalp often do work and are helpful, but there is always the exception when other measures are required.

I suspect from your description and question that you have very active sebaceous glands. These are the oily glands that form a natural skin oil. They are common over the face and scalp. The oily secretion they produce is called sebum.

In some people, the oily secretions cause acne, and in others, irritation of the skin (dermatitis) called seborrheic dermatitis. This can spread somewhat like an eczema to other parts of the body. The skin irritation, if not controlled, can damage the hair and cause hair loss.

Can you suffer a heart attack without it showing on an electrocardiogram? Could it happen more than once?

The term heart attack can be used for several disorders of the heart, including attacks of rapid heart rate, transitory heart pains and for serious damage to the heart muscle (myocardial infarction). Today, it seems to be used mostly for the last condition.

If you mean myocardial infarction, the answer to both of your questions is yes. People do have the severe chest pain of a heart attack and may not have electrocardiographic changes for several days, and sometimes not at all. In other cases, the changes do not last, and the electrocardiogram may return to normal — even though we know the disease in the arteries that caused the problem is still there. Finally, we have people who have a heart attack and never know it. The changes are first noted on the electrocardiogram, and that is the first anyone knows that the person had a heart attack. About one-third of all myocardial infarctions are silent, or cause so few symptoms that they go unnoticed.

And you can have several attacks of chest pain from heart disease without severe muscle damage. The shortest ones of these we call angina pectoris. These heart pains may not always produce electrocardiographic changes and may occur several times.

Boil-over gadget crosses Atlantic

For a long time the French have used a small metal disc at the bottom of pans to stop the contents from boiling over. But my friends and associates look at me without comprehension when I ask if they use one of these marvelous gadgets. In France this item is known as a "milk saver." "Pot boilers," as they're called here are new in the United States. At least one major American manufacturer is distributing to kitchen shops a glass version of the little wonder. Whether glass, stainless steel or tin, they're all simple circles with a slightly raised center and at least one hole or gap. And if you put one at the bottom of a pan with liquid to be boiled, you'll not have soup, water for pasta or milk wasted from going overboard. I don't have the foggiest notion why it works, but I promise it does. Maybe a reader can tell us the scientific principle that accounts for its effectiveness.

Dear Roberta: My friends must have felt they would hurt my feelings if they told me my choice of a dark tint for a do-it-yourself hair coloring was wrong for me. A very dark hue is too severe and doesn't allow for the natural contrasts present in most people's hair. My hairdresser suggested I switch to a color one shade lighter than my natural hair. The new coloring doesn't just cover gray; it has made highlights of what used to be gray. Now that I'm aware of what good advice I had, I see a lot of other women who could use it, too. — Jesse Link

Mid-life can be way to better things: expert

by ELEANOR RIVES

Change is valuable when we use it to become who we truly are, and mid-life is an appropriate time to do it, according to Earl J. Kruse, PhD, psychologist and therapist, who addressed about 200 persons at St. Edna's Parish Hall, Arlington Heights Tuesday.

Kruse's lecture, "Challenge of Mid-Life," was the last of the current Theology West series on "Becoming a Whole Person." Kruse, a training consultant for churches, hospitals and religious orders, is developing ways for mid-life adults to help each other through crisis periods rather than resorting to professional help.

Mid-life is the "in" topic today, said Kruse, who reminded his listeners he would be referring to wholeness, not perfection. "The two have entirely different approaches," he said.

AN ADHERENT OF Carl Jung psychology, Kruse said mid-life is the time to look inward, to examine oneself. "We become who we truly are from within, and each of us uniquely," he said.

Jung directed persons to listen to that still, small inner voice — "that something beyond the ego that we might call God," Kruse said. Jung is the only expert who dealt specifically with mid-life problems, Kruse said.

"If we can get in touch with the natural religious function in our psyche, we're on the way toward wholeness," he said.

Kruse defined mid-life as that critical period in the psychological growth of a person, when, just as in puberty, crucial structural and dynamic changes are taking place. At the same time, physiological changes are occurring with the psychological changes and the two are interrelated.

KRUSE'S CONCERN is with psychological changes. To help understand them, Kruse drew a tall triangle, in the manner of Jung, representing the psyche. A small triangle at the top is the consciousness. Below the consciousness to about halfway down the tall triangle is the personal unconscious, elements easily brought to the surface. And below that, occupying the entire lower half of the tall triangle, is the collective unconscious. In its center lies the self.

"Freud described our unconscious as a cesspool," Kruse said. "I disagree. There's a lot of good down there, things that must be brought up and looked at."

Kruse said our journey is to keep things in balance. The conscious and the unconscious must be in constant relationship with each other, and we must participate in that process. When we get too one-sided, when we deny the unconscious within us, that's when the mid-life crisis occurs.

KRUSE DESCRIBED the two attitudes and four functions that influence all choices in life, all decisions. The introvert attitude is characterized by psychological energy going inward before it goes out. The extrovert attitude is the reverse.

The four functions, keys to what is happening within, are thinking, feeling, intuition and sensation. "We're a combination of all four, but one dominates," Kruse said. "Recognize the dominant one, use it, balance it with the others.

"Do you realize in marriage how often one tends to choose the opposite type person?" he said laughing.

And what happens if our parents make such decisions for us as telling us what we must be? "We get off balance," Kruse said. "But at mid-life, we go back and balance ourselves again.'

HE SAID BY THE time the young adult has reached the beginning of mid-life, say 35 to 40, he or she has completed the growth and adaptive tasks of youth, adjusting to the environment and functioning within society.

Now it is time for the mid-life growth task, the process of individuation in which the psyche unfolds naturally toward wholeness, the personality broadens and the individual looks in to know himself or herself for what he or she is.

"Mid-life presents new vistas of perspective and understanding," Kruse said. "There is a challenge to change the environment, improve society, change the order of importance of the four functions. Greater trust and openness to other people is possible. One may develop the courage to question one's own values. The relationship to the environment may be greatly advanced."

AS A WAY OF accomplishing these things, Kruse suggests persons examine themselves, keep a psychological journal of what's happening to themselves: their words, gestures, fascinations, repulsions, voice, styles, their slips of the tongue.

And their dreams. "Get in touch with your dreams," Kruse said. "Compare them with the dreams of others. You must begin by trying to reach out to others or you won't succeed. Form a group of six to eight people — you don't always need a professional around. There are not enough therapists to go around on a one-to-one basis for everyone."

He said that because changes take time and because the church is always going to be there, it is a good place to start forming such groups.

"We grow by reaching out and helping others, especially those who can't help themselves. And you can't do that in a therapist's office," he said.

Tips on fireplaces from USDA

Save money and heat your home with a fireplace? Not so, if that's your primary heating source, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture says. Although a fireplace adds extra warmth to a home, it's about one-third as efficient as a good stove. But a bit of added heat in sub zero temperatures never hurts. So if you've decided this is the year to warm up the sound of a crackling fire, "Fireplaces and Chimneys," published by USDA, will explain the basics of construction.

Before building, however, contact the local building inspector for the building specifications in the area. There are general guidelines, however, that apply to the construction of the unit in any area.

For example, a chimney should extend at least 3 feet above a flat roof and at least 2 feet above a roof ridge or raised part of a roof near the chimney, the department says. Flue linings must be fireproof and able to withstand rapid temperature changes. In addition, the linings must be made of vitrified fire clay and at least five-eighths-inch thick.

Other details for the building of your own fireplace and chimney appear in "Fireplaces and Chimneys." To receive a copy, send 40 cents to Consumer Information center, Pueblo, Colo, 81009.

Water saving hints

Save energy — eliminate the drying cycles on your dishwasher, says Irene Cumming Kleeberg, in "The Home Energy Saver." Trapped heat from washing usually will dry the dishes, she says. Need a new hot water heater? Instead of heating unnecessary gallons of water, you can figure the amount of water used and buy a unit to fit your needs.

Chart for Figuring Size Water Tank Needed
Consumption in One Hour

Use	Amount of Water Used
Bath	15 gallons
Shower, short	10 gallons
Shower, long	20 gallons
Washing machine	20 gallons
Dishwasher	15 gallons
Hand washing of dishes	5 gallons
Washing hands and face	2 gallons

Sugar consumption up

The American public has taken the advertisement jingles to heart. From 1960 to 1975, the American consumption of soft drinks doubled, says the U.S. Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs. Americans now consume 27.6 gallons of the sweetened liquids each year; in 1960 the figure was 13.6 gallons.

In that same time period, Americans decided to replace their glass of milk with a soft drink and the sweetened drink became the second most highly consumed beverage. Only coffee consumption was and continues to be slightly higher.

Such an increase in the soft drink's popularity can be pinpointed to many factors including accessibility in restaurants and vending machines, convenience and of course, advertising, the group says.

In fact, the Coca Cola Co. spends more than $50 million each year on advertising says Therman E. Evans, Ph.D. and president of the District of Columbia Board of Education. Close behind are other manufacturers, such as Pepsico Inc., which in 1974 spent a third of its $60 million in advertising to promote just their cola beverage, Pepsi Cola, says Evans in "Nutrition Today." In that same year, General Foods spent $7.6 million convincing consumers that kids and Kool-Aid belong together.

Not even the Senate committee is suggesting elimination of sugar from the diet, but the committee does say to curtail the consumption of soft drinks. The committee's report said total sugar intake should account for only 15 per cent of the daily energy intake, a reduction of about 40 per cent from the current intake of most Americans.

The 12-ounce cola soft drink contains nine teaspoons of sugar and 40 to 60 milligrams of caffeine or about a third the amount found in an average cup of coffee. And cola beverages, says the committee, account for 65 per cent of the total U.S. consumption of soft drinks.

Excessive intake of cola beverages may result in complaints of insomnia or rapid heart beats in healthy children. But studies have shown, elimination of the cola soft drinks can remedy either problem.

Coffee, rather than colas, is probably the major source of caffeine for most adults. But a cup of coffee and one cola soft drink, which contain about 200 milligrams of caffeine combined, can produce headache, nervousness and irritability. Interestingly enough, these same symptoms sometimes appear in persons deprived of the regular dose of coffee.

As a result, the committee believes the reduction of soft drink consumption would lessen sugar and caffeine intake as well as consumption of other non nutritive additives found in soft drinks. They recommend use of more home-baked products and fresh foods as additional ways to reduce sugar in the American diet.

Longer life, more savings seen

New diet goals suggested for all

by PATRICIA MC CORMACK

The shortest route to longevity: Pay better attention to what passes between your lips as food and drink.

Monitoring the makeup of fuel for your body with an eye to what's best for your innards also will do other magical things. To wit:

- Cut health care costs by one-third.
- Reduce the family's food bill.

These pronouncements may sound like pie-in-the-sky promises from a food quack at a circus sideshow. But they're not.

RATHER, they come from a government document titled "Dietary Goals for the United States."

The goals calling for big shifts in dietary habits are based on testimony from experts appearing before the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs.

Switches in dietary lifestyles will make persons less prone to such things as stroke, heart disease and other big killers — thereby lengthening life and keeping thousands out of hospitals and off medicine, (reducing the health care bill), and deflate the food bill.

How's that about the food bill? Listen to the report:

"Savings can be achieved through home preparation and through reduction of and substitution for fats, sugar and expensive, fatty protein sources."

A TABLE IN the report shows that every legume listed and every grain product except one provides the daily protein allowance for less than one dollar. "Whereas the majority of meat protein sources cost over one dollar a day."

More on how food costs will be cut by the recommended shift in eating habits:

"The most dramatic savings made by a reduction in sugar consumption result from cutting back on or eliminating purchases of candy, sweet baked goods, and soft drinks."

"Costs also are cut when the consumer chooses the unsweetened as opposed to the presweetened version of a particular food item: the prime example is breakfast cereals."

The report from the United States Senate Committee headed by Sen. George McGovern, D-S-D., probably would go no further than the Capitol attic or basement, if it were to follow the fate of similar pontifications.

But in this instance, authorities from private and public sectors of the health community are urging President Carter to make the dietary goals national policy.

You'll be hearing a lot about this report, as a result.

MANY OBSERVERS say such a step would affect all government activities in nutrition, such as: food programs; the 25 million meals the federal government serves each day; livestock raising; physician and patient relationships; financing of research programs of the government, American Heart Assn., American Cancer Society and dental research programs.

Americans today are eating less fruit, vegetables and grain products — once the mainstay of the diet.

And they are eating more sugar and fat — enough to account for 60 per cent of total calories, up from 50 per cent from these sources at the turn of the century.

DOCTORS AND nutritionists consulted by the Senate Select Committee said these and other dietary changes have produced a wave of malnutrition — of both over-and-under-consumption — "that may be as profoundly damaging to the naion's health as the widespread contagious diseases of the early part of the century."

"The overconsumption of fat, generally, and saturated fat in particular, as well as cholesterol, sugar, salt and alcohol have been related to six of the 10 leading causes of death; heart disease, cancer, cerebrovascular disease, diabetes, arteriosclerosis, and cirrhosis of the liver," the report noted.

The report recommends the following changes in food selection and preparation — eventually affecting every pantry, plate and palate in America:

- Increase consumption of fruits and vegetables and whole grains.
- Decrease consumption of meat and increase consumption of poultry and fish.
- Decrease consumption of foods high in fat and partially substitute polyunsaturated fat for saturated fat.
- Substitute nonfat milk for whole milk.
- Decrease consumption of butterfat, eggs and other high cholesterol sources.
- Decrease consumption of sugar and foods high in sugar content.

DR. JOAN GUSSOW, chairperson of the program in nutrition at Teacher's College, Columbia University, told the Senate committee the National Nutritional policy should include public service advertising of fruits and vegetables on television anl radio.

"These announcements should also sell people on . . . beans, rice and grains and other forms of protein foods that don't get sold (on the air) because they do not have a high enough mark-up."

The committee recommended that Congress provide money for a public education program in nutrition based on the goals. The initial minimum period for the promotion should be five years.

THE CAMPAIGN would involve health and nutrition education in the nation's schools, for school food service workers, for participants in all federally-financed food assistance programs.

Congress also would be asked to require all food labeling to tell the per cent and type of fats, per cent of sugar, milligrams of cholesterol, milligrams of salt, caloric content, listing of food additives.

Also recommended: that the Dept. of Agriculture and the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare form a joint committee to periodically consider implications of nutritional health concern on agricultural policy.

For a copy of the report, send 95 cents to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402.

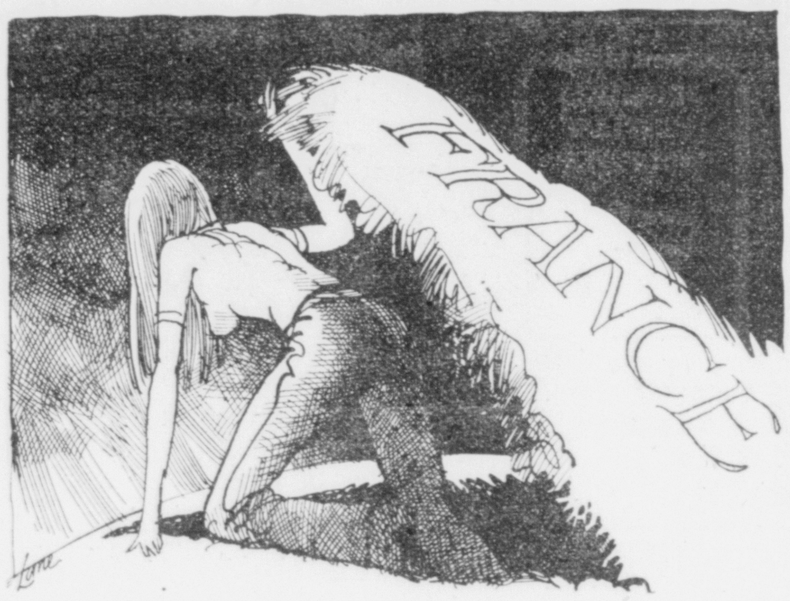
Women's Year impetus for change in France

by ROSETTE HARGROVE



PARIS — Skeptics may question the lasting impact of "Women's Year," observed worldwide in 1976 and then rapidly forgotten in so many countries, but it does appear to have added some momentum to the improvement of the condition of the French woman.

The more important measures adopted recently by the government concern single and formerly married women whose rights, Minister of Health Simone Weil declares, "must be expanded."

There are in France 3,800,000 women living alone. A half million of them are responsible for the care and upbringing of children. They need further help. With the liberalization of divorce and abortion laws the payment of alimony is now not only obligatory, but court judgments have considerably raised the ante. For the average Frenchman, his obligation regarding alimony was somewhat illusory as well as inadequate, even in the higher income brackets, and evasion was relatively easy for an ex-husband. Today this has changed. Evasion and nonpayment of alimony can be subject to a heavy fine, and even a prison sentence, usually "suspended" but nevertheless put down in the family book that every French citizen is obliged to carry.

TWO YEARS AGO the government was presented with a proposal to grant financial relief for elderly women living alone, also a special money grant to low-income mothers of children up to 3 years old. Another measure stipulated that after the birth of a child a woman could stop working for a period of two years and find her job still available if she wanted it. These measures were recognition of the new equality of women. In the same category, a parent staying home to care for a sick child would receive the equivalent of 50 per cent of his or her salary.

The matter of equality of pay is still in the embryo stage. Last year a proposition was submitted to the government whereby official organizations were called upon to refuse to sign business contracts with any company where this equality was not observed.

Social security is open to divorced women and widows for one year following death or divorce. A law passed in 1975 ensures this benefit to solitary women. Finally, mothers taking care of handicapped children automatically benefit by social insurance medical aid.

Women 55 and older and widows now will be entitled to a supplement to the state old age pension.

THE QUESTION of alimony now under study also would provide an ex-wife with a lien on her ex-husband's pension, computed by the number of years the couple lived to gether.

Two years ago the women's movement was responsible for the proposal that a national community service be set up for girls leaving school at 16, which then was considered quasi-revolutionary. The compulsory service, from four to six months, would establish equivalence between boys and girls, since all boys are liable to military service. This was one of the 102 recommendations put forward by Francoise Giroud when she was appointed the first State Secretary of Women's Affairs in 1975.

According to Madame Giroud, this service "would mix social classes and permit the girls to acquire useful knowledge for facing the "realities of life."

Details on how this project could be achieved did not go far beyond the discussion stage especially when the Assembly learned that it would cost around two billion francs ($400 million), besides calling for a complete revision of the military service.

According to one political pundit, Madame Giroud's 102 proposals ranged from the symbolic to the revolutionary, from the substantive to the utopian, from the sublime to the ridiculous in the view of conventional citizens who still regard the woman's movement largely as a woman's fantasy.

Newcomers plan shopping trip, luncheon

A Christmas shopping expedition to Haeger Pottery in Dundee has been planned for Wednesday by Elk Grove Village Newcomers Club. Shopping will be followed by lunch at The Milk Pail. Interested newcomers may call Anne O'Brien, 593-2409, for further information. Those interested in attending a new member coffee at 8 p.m. next Thursday may call Cheryl Gravina, 439-0244.

The club's Gourmet Group will host a Christmas dinner, French style, Dec. 3 in the home of Dianne Aubert, Elk Grove.

Applications ready for youth citizen award

To recognize and reward the outstanding contributions of youthful citizens in the Northwest suburbs, Soroptimist International of Des Plaines is seeking applicants for its annual Youth Citizenship Award.

In announcing the Jan. 2 deadline for the 1978 competition, Carmen LaSalle, chairwoman, said the $100 prize is for an area boy or girl to be recognized and rewarded for unselfish service in home life, school, church and/or community activities.

The local Soroptimist club's winner also will be eligible to compete with other nominees in District I and in the Midwestern Region of Soroptimist International for the regional award of $1,000, and the 19 regional winners will compete for a $1,500 finalist award, making a total prize of more than $2,500 to top winner of the Soroptimist Foundations Youth Citizenship Award.

TO QUALIFY, THE applicant must be a high school senior boy or girl living in Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows.

Applications are available from Mrs. LaSalle, 2005 Seneca Lane, Mount Prospect, Ill., 60056, or 824-3912 evenings.

Workshops at Harper

Two all-day workshops, "Assertive Communications" and "Back To School," are the final offerings in the Expanding Horizons series offered by Harper College women's program this fall.

"Assertive Communications," an overview of assertive, passive and aggressive communications, will be led by Jane Thomas and Joann Mantelman from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday at Palatine Library, 500 N. Benton St. Tuition is $7, and participants are asked to bring a sack lunch.

Women considering entering college can gather information and share concerns at "Back To School" from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. next Thursday in the board room, Building A, on the Palatine campus, Algonquin and Roselle roads. Tuition is $10 and includes lunch.

To enroll, those interested should call the Continuing Education admissions office, 397-3000, ext. 410. Child care for a fee can be reserved at 397-3000, ext. 262.

Ron Hunter keeps talk show low-key

Things aren't just lonely at the top, they also are lonely in the wee hours of the morning before dawn, when one hears the clink of milk bottles being delivered in sleepy neighborhoods.

But, WMAQ-TV anchor Ron Hunter likes to think weekday mornings are less lonely for Chicago area viewers because of his new talk show, "Ron Hunter Today."

Hunter, who co-anchors the station's 4:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. newscasts with Don Craig, has carved out his own little niche with the prerecorded show, which airs Monday through Friday at 1 a.m. on Channel 5 and is rebroadcast later each day at 6:30 a.m.

The chance to work in a non-news element and on a project Hunter views as his own personal statement is something he has wanted since he signed on with Channel 5 in June 1976.

CERTAINLY JOHNNY CARSON'S "Tonight" show and Tom Snyder's "Tomorrow" show might be considered hard acts to follow each night on NBC, but Hunter says he doesn't think that is a problem.

"The 'Tonight' show is mainly a big production number and 'Tomorrow' is a one-on-one with a guest. I think my show offers just the right kind of lay-back kind of conversation after that to keep the audience flowing into the early morning hours," Hunter said.

Of course, time will tell for certain, but Hunter boasts that his new show, in just the four weeks since it premiered Oct. 24, has averaged between a 2 and a 3 rating and anywhere from 13 to 27 per cent of the area audience watching television at that time.

THAT IS ABOUT PAR or slightly better than what reruns of "The Fugitive" were doing at that same time before they were moved to 1:30 a.m. to make way for Hunter's show.

Although the ratings have been respectable, keeping in mind there is a preciously small audience that time of morning, Hunter's show so far has been somewhat anemic.

It's lacking the vitality and pizzazz that makes even a half-hour talk show exciting and invigorating. The interviews sort of just trudge along, most of them without really probing questions or heavy conversation.

Maybe it's just that we've been conditioned to expect any interview conducted by a television newsman to come off with the zip and the zap of a Mike Wallace interrogation.

CERTAINLY HUNTER has to take part of the blame for the low-key and soft approach as host of the show, but he insists he wants it that way.

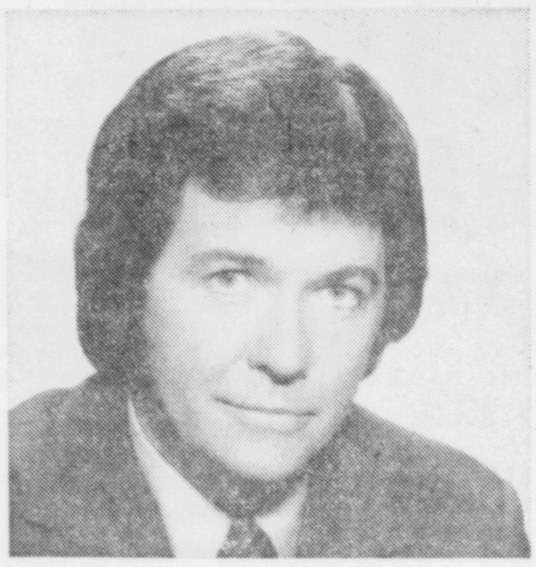
"It was not meant to be a news show like 'Meet the Press' or 'City Desk,' " he said. "I don't think anyone sitting around at that time in the morning wants to hear a hard news interrogation."

Hunter doesn't think that shedding his newsman role or working in a more subdued news function on his talk show will confuse or discourage viewers.

"If anything, I think people are better able to understand and relate to me on the news once they watch my show because they realize I have other interests. There is an emotional attachment between an early morning talk show host and his audience," Hunter said.

"I'm hoping, in fact, there will be a fall-out factor there — that people who enjoy the 1 a.m. show will begin watching our newscast," he said.

HUNTER SAYS HE was careful not to allow his new show to become a "catch-all for Channel 5's public service commitment" and that he wasn't able to begin hosting his own talk show sooner because "improving the newscasts was the first priority when I came here."



RON HUNTER

He boasts that the station's late night news increased three ratings points and three share points without the benefit of special advertising while he still was solo anchoring the show from July 1976 to July 1977.

Hunter, who solo anchored news shows in Buffalo, Miami and New Orleans before coming to Chicago, admits he is sensitive to working alone and says he has nothing to apologize for "as far as my ratings alone go."

HE SAYS HE'S adjusted "very well" to co-anchoring with Craig and that there are no hard feelings. "If you're going to give up your solo status, it's better to give it up to a friend," he said.

Hunter believes his talk show eventually will help the station's newscast more than his anchoring of the news will help his talk show.

If "Ron Hunter Today" proves itself in the ratings six months from now, it might possibly be broadened to a one-hour format or even give way to other kinds of local programing in those early, inconspicuous morning hours.

Most assuredly, the show and its host need to be given the chance to grow.

TV NOTES:

ABC newsman Ted Koppel, recently in Chicago to hype his new book co-authored with Marvin Kalb, admitted network news chief Roone Arledge would not accept his resignation several months ago and that the two met for nearly two hours to discuss their differences. Koppel won't detail the reasons for wanting to resign, saying only he was motivated by "principle" and not money. Koppel denied his action had anything to do with the assignment of Sylvia Chase to the "ABC Saturday Evening News" which he once anchored or the recent hiring of some newswomen by ABC for big bucks. "I can tell you with complete honesty that it didn't have anything to do with that," Koppel said, admitting he is dismayed with the way things are going in the news organization. But Arledge has promised some changes and has asked Koppel to give him six months before deciding to leave.

• WLS-TV meteorologist John Coleman, who is a regular on ABC's "Good Morning, America," is now a regular contributor to the "ABC Evening News" with depressing reports of winter weather from all over the country. He is really moving up in the world and it leaves you wondering how he still manages the station's 10 p.m. newscast here in Chicago.

Television offers feast for eyes on Turkey Day

Knowing that parents and children alike will be spending the day at home or at grandma's gathered around the Thanksgiving Day dinner table and the television set, the networks and independent stations today are offering their own version of holiday feast.

CBS and NBC compete on the parade circuit first thing this morning. William Conrad hosts the "Thanksgiving Day Parade" at 8 a.m. on Channel 2 that will feature highlights of processions in Detroit, Honolulu, Toronto, Philadelphia and New York. Guest announcers for the two-hour event will include CBS stars including Loretta Swit, Jack Lord and Ned Beatty.

NBC's "Thanksgiving Day Parade" coverage begins at 8 a.m. on Channel 5 with Ed McMahon anchoring the 51st R. H. Macy's extravaganza from New York which will include performances by Carol Lawrence, Andrea McArdle and the Metropolitan Opera Ballet.

THE SPORTS SCENE is going to be a real delight for football fans.

Beginning at 11:30 a.m. on Channel 2, the Chicago Bears meet the Detroit Lions in Pontiac, Mich.

In college football, the Arkansas Razorbacks meet the Texas Tech Red Raiders in a Southwestern Conference challenge at Lubbock, Tex., at 1:45 p.m. on Channel 7.

In NFL football, the Miami Dolphins meet the Cardinals at St. Louis at 2:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

There will be plenty of cartoon action for the kiddies beginning at 10 a.m. with what ABC is calling an "All-Star Thanksgiving Festival," which kicks-off with "The Krofft Supershow" on Channel 7, followed at 11 a.m. by "Scooby's All-Star Laff-A-Lympics" and at 1 p.m. by "Superfriends."

THERE WILL BE A dose of more sophisticated animation on television that will include a new version of Jules Verne's "Five Weeks in a Balloon" at 2:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

CBS also will feature "The Happy World of Hanna-Barbera" at 7 p.m. on Channel 2 that celebrates the cartoon team's 20 years in the business and some of their more popular creations, including "The Flintstones," "Tom and Jerry," Yogi Bear, Augie Doggie, Huckleberry Hound and Quick Draw McGraw.

There also will be plenty of old films starting with the earliest film version of Mark Twain's classic, "Tom Sawyer," at 1 p.m. followed at 2:30 p.m. by another of Twain's Mississippi boy adventures, "Huckleberry Finn." Both movies air on Channel 9.

"Doctor Doolittle," starring Rex Harrison as the eccentric doctor who talks to the animals, airs at 7 p.m. on Channel 9 against Gene Kelly's movie version of "The Three Musketeers" on Channel 32.

In addition, public television airs "Nicholas Nickleby," Charles Dickens' tale of a schoolmaster who struggles to improve the conditions of education, at 1:30 p.m. on Channel 11.

In case you're looking for a musical reminiscence, "The Beatles Forever" is a one-hour special at 9 p.m. on Channel 5 hosted by Tony Randall. It features Paul Williams, Bernadette Peters, Diahann Carroll and Anthony Newley in a musical salute to the foursome from Liverpool.

Bernadette Peters and Tony Randall in 'The Beatles Forever.'
